DRASTIC PAY CUT TASK FACES COUNCIL

Today

Uncle Sam's Pay Day.
Science at Work.
Head, Heart, Socialism.
The Most Beautiful Words.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YESTERDAY WAS pay day, and NO PAY day, for Uncle Sam. Eleven European nations owed him $124,934,421 payable in Washington. Great Britain pays $95,550,000 in gold. Five other nations that paid were Italy, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Finland, Lithuania, small amounts, the largest $1,500,000.

France defaulted on the payment of $19,261,432, all interest. Belgium, Estonia, Hungary and Poland also defaulted.

Whatever Uncle Sam has to say about defaults he will say later.

IF WOODROW WILSON'S government had thought George Washington's advice good enough to follow, this government would have saved about ten thousand million dollars, LENT, and many other billions, SPENT.

The experience of 1932 and others like it to come later, may save this country much money in years to come.

A POMPOUS British coal mine owner, who asked a famous scientist, "What practical good is all your science?" was surprised to learn that he had wasted thousands of pounds boring for coal through certain strata below which coal does not exist.

Other mine owners, worried by gas explosions that destroyed innumerable miners, got from Sir Humphrey Davis the miner's lamp that ended the explosions.

WHEREVER YOU go, science is at work, visible or invisible. John P. Bickel, of the McIntyre Porcupine mine in Northern Ontario, tells what science does for gold miners, that work far under ground, during the hours of sunlight.

Leaving their work, they take off their digging clothes and walk through a series of showers graduated in temperature, and get rid of the dust of the mine. Then they sit, naked, on a moving platform, with brilliant artificial sunlight shining on them, stimulating their blood through the power of actinic rays.

Their ride of a few minutes through artificial sunshine lasts long enough to give them exactly as much of the rays as doctors want them to have, equivalent to six hours in natural sunlight.

THEY CHANGE to their surface clothes, refreshed by the showers of water and actinic ray baths.

That is an improvement on mining methods of old days, when women on their hands and knees, in low tunnels of British coal mines, dragged cars loaded with coal, attached to chains around their necks, running under their bodies.

CORLISS LAMONT, whose able father, Thomas W. Lamont, is a partner in J. Pierpont Morgan and Company, returns from Russia with high praise for that country, advising people to buy Russian bonds.

Wall street gentlemen, who bought bonds from Kerensky, will cross their fingers rapidly when they hear that advice.

Young Mr. Lamont, it is said, believes in Socialism, although nobody knows just what Socialism is, except that it is professed by many sincere men and women anxious to improve social conditions.

MR. HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE, whose son also is determined to make the world better in a hurry, not at all agitated, tells Mr. Lamont, the father:

"A boy who is not a Socialist before he is twenty-five has no heart. If he is a Socialist after twenty-five, he has no head."

Young Mr. Lamont, whose sincerity and intellectual independence do him credit, reminds you that Russia's czars would not recognize the American government for thirty-three years after it declared its independence.

It is difficult to understand why the United States should imitate that foolishness.

LEARNED PERSONS are asked by the New York American to select the twenty most beautiful words. Edwin Markham's list includes "reverberating, coliseum, chryselephantine, California." Rupert Hughes' includes "immemorial, translucent, tremulous" in his list.

The beauty of words is a matter of opinion and location. The most beautiful word in prison is "freedom." in the death house it is "reprieve." In Wall street it is "dividends." In war it is "victory." In courtship it is "yes."

The most powerful words are short words. Men have made them short for convenience, "God, life, gold, far, near, good, bad, light, stars, sun, moon," all of one syllable.

BERNARD SHAW starts a trip around the world, announcing "I will not give a single autograph," and, as a farewell jest, not very good, says:

"Give Ireland to the United States and liquidate all the war debts."

Ireland has removed herself from British control, and only the Irish have power to dispose of her. But Ireland has already given to the United States that which is worth more than any territory—hundreds of thousands of intelligent, courageous, enterprising men and women.

4 DEAD HERE IN SUB-ZERO WEATHER

Coldest Spell Since 1930 Sends Mercury To 21 Below

One man was frozen to death, three boys were killed and many others were injured in coasting accidents as a wintry blast sent the temperature to 21 degrees below zero in outlying districts and the official mercury down to one degree below zero at 8 a. m. It was the coldest night in Pittsburgh since January, 1930.

Fair and continued cold was forecast with a low tmperature of zero to 5 above tonight. Increasing cloudiness with slowly rising temperature was promised for tomorrow.

DIES ON PORCH

With $1,500 in his pockets, William Rudy, 50, painter, was found frozen to death on the porch of his rooming house, 336 Meyran avenue, Oakland, at 6:30 a. m. today. The body was discovered by William Evans, roomer, who failed to recognize Rudy.

Seeking to reduce the number of accidents, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang has instructed the highways department to rope off streets used for coasting, but to avoid interference with traffic. Police have been instructed to supervise the sport.

COASTERS HURT

Injured in coasting accidents were: Syanley Janis, 13, of 1516 Woodmont avenue; Joe Bissell, 17, of 1340 Orchard avenue; Harry Pink, 15, of 1512 Woodmont avenue; Thomas Elder, of 1615 Tay-

All the new models will be displayed under auspices of the Allegheny County Chevrolet Dealers' Association. The exhibit will be open daily, except Sunday, from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. Dealers' showrooms will exhibit models throughout the district simultaneous with the general show downtown.

PRISONER FAILS IN ESCAPE DASH

A prisoner slipped out of his handcuffs and made a wild dash for liberty at Central Police Station today. He was captured at the Point Bridge, a quarter of a mile distant.

The prisoner, Henry Estrada, 26, was being taken from the police patrol outside the station when he tore loose. The cuffs had been applied loosely because Estrada was cut on the wrist, police said.

Down Water street he raced over the icy pavements Patrolmen Harvey Roberts and Charles Davis caught him, a half-dozen other policemen and detectives trailing. Several fell in the chase.

A few minutes later Estrada was held for court on a charge of larceny. He admitted robbing the Palace Credit Clothing Company store of a dozen fur coats Sunday night. Ben Muniz, 40, of Homestead, to whom Estrada said he took the coats, was held over, and Frank Smith, 30, of Homestead, was discharged, along with Paul McCleary, 24, taxi driver, who helped police find Estrada.

CHAIN GANG DEATH FEAR OF 'FUGITIVE'

Burns' Mother Appeals To People of Nation To Save Her Son

International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 16.—A fugitive no longer, Robert Elliott Burns, who escaped from a Georgia chain gang, became a magazine editor, was sent back to the gang, escaped again and wrote a book detailing his adventures, sat in a jail cell today awaiting arrival of Georgia extradition papers and a hearing before Gov. Moore.

Warden Hardy, of Troup County, from where Burns fled the chain gang after being sentenced for participation in a $4 holdup, was en route here with a requisition from Gov. Russell for Burns' return.

WILL FIGHT

But Burns indicated he would battle to the limit to remain free. He said:

"I am not a criminal. For two years and three months I conducted an honorable business and took an upright part in the affairs of the community. I am looking for the justice of New Jersey to save me from certain death—if I am returned to Georgia."

Gov. Moore has promised Burns a full hearing on the extradition request and that he will consider the matter "gravely and on its full merit."

The literary convict indicated that romance had again crossed his path.

In Chicago, the first time he escaped, Burns married his landlady, Mrs. Emily Pacheo, who ran a beauty parlor. When he left his wife to court Lillian Salo, taxi dancer, Mrs. Pacheo exposed him to the police and he was returned to Georgia. Now it is reported he is engaged to a school teacher here, but he gallantly declined to discuss his love life other than to say:

"If I were free, I would marry the lady of my choice."

MOTHER APPEALS

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 16.—(INS.)—A mother's plea went out to the people of America today to save her son, Robert Elliott Burns, from being returned to a Georgia chain gang.

Mrs. Catherine Burns, 59-year-old widowed mother of Burns, a daughter of a Civil War veteran and mother of two World War veterans, called upon the American people to assist her in freeing her son from that "blackened monster" which has trailed him for a decade.

Mrs. Burns said she may turn to President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt for assistance. She revealed that she had an audience with Mr. Roosevelt in Warm Springs, Ga., in 1929, and that "he promised me if ever he could help me he would do his best."

PARIS VEERS TO DEBT PAYMENT

Sentiment in France Shifts; Senate Delays Debate

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—France has protested, but France will pay—such seemed to be the position in Paris this afternoon on the problem of the American debt.

Camille Chautemps, fashionably dressed, 47-year-old potential premier, told the Associated Press he believed France will pay America and that payment merely has been delayed.

M. Chautemps said he hoped to have Edouard Herriot, the retiring premier, in his cabinet, but he warned that M. Herriot's acceptance would entirely depend upon whether the Chamber of Deputies would rise to the situation and help settle the crisis by indorsing a formula permitting payment.

SENATE DELAYS DEBATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(INS.)—Upon the urgent advice of the administration, the proposed war debt discussion in the Senate was called off today.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, administration spokesman, explained it was feared a general debate in the Senate on the action of France and the four other debt-defaulting European nations, would complicate matters.

Reed pointed out that influential quarters in Paris were making efforts to change the sentiment of the Chamber of Deputies, which prevented the debt payment.

Pending the outcome of these conciliatory efforts, Reed urged Senators to withhold any pent-up criticism which was expected to be released against the defaulting nations.

Both Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and

MOTHER'S SOBS FAIL BANDIT

Before the echoes of a mother's screams had died in Criminal Court today, Judge Frank P. Patterson served notice her son and others who committed "desperate robberies" could expect no "indulgence" in the courts.

Fred Prince, 36, of 866 Florida avenue, Mt. Lebanon, was sentenced to from 15 to 30 years in the penitentiary, and Elmer Ginter, 22, same address, was given a 5-to-25-year sentence in the workhouse for the armed stickup of 10 Pittsburgh district grocery stores, to which they had pleaded guilty.

As Ginter was being led away to the "cage" at the end of the "Bridge of Sighs," his mother screamed a futile request to kiss her boy goodby. Judge Patterson's answer was:

"We are serving notice that young men who come before the court with a trail of desperate robberies in their wake can expect no indulgence. They are potential murderers and the appalling frequency of these outrageous crimes has made it dangerous for citizens to be abroad after dark."

Judge Patterson later sentenced Clifford W. Right, 22, of Hopewell, to one to five years in the workhouse when he pleaded guilty to the attempted robbery of a downtown restaurant, December 2.

MISS HILDA SHAW, 27 . . JAILED FOR THEFTS FROM FATHER

Miss Shaw, Marietta (O.) school teacher and former Muskingum College co-ed, today in jail after Prosecutor Everett Folger announced that she had confessed taking from her father $2,400 with which she entertained her sweetheart. Her dad's a truck-farmer.

Confesses $2,400 Theft; Cash Spent On College Boy

MARIETTA, O., Dec. 16.—An attractive young school teacher was behind the bars today after confessing that she took from her father $2,400—with which she entertained her college sweetheart, Prosecutor Everett Folger announced.

She confessed, too, that she had written two fantastic extortion notes to give her father the impression both had been victimized by criminals, Folger added.

She is Hilda Shaw, 27, daughter of William Shaw, well-to-do and prominent truck farmer of New Concord, O. This afternoon Folger was preparing a charge of forgery against her.

TRIPS TO GRID GAMES

And then there came a whirl of trips to Columbus and Pittsburgh and New York to football

Conneaut Lake Park To Go Under Hammer

Conneaut Lake Park was ordered sold to the highest bidder in an order by Judge R. M. Gibson today in Federal Court.

R. J. McDonald, receiver for the Conneaut Lake Park Company, was instructed to sell at auction, with the power to reject any or all bids and reauction from time to time, the real and personal property of the company. McDonald was named receiver in 1929. No date was set for the auction.

MUST SLASH 11 MILLION WAGE LIST

Tax Reduction Makes Heavy Paring Vital To Balance Budget

With the city tax millage for 1933 set at 20.6 mills on land and 10.3 mills on buildings, a reduction of 2.4 mills on land and 1.2 on buildings, City Council will start Monday to cut $4,000,000 more out of the $25,000,000 budget of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

The action of Council has won praise from the leaders of civic and business organizations who had pleaded for the tax reduction.

In setting the millage, Council followed the recommendation of the Citizens' Committee on Tax Sources, headed by W. P. Witherow.

PAYROLL CUT LOOMS

Council is now faced with the problem of readjusting the $11,000,000 city payroll. According to President of Council John S. Herson, both the salary and appropriation bills should be complete by next Thursday.

Police and fire payrolls, totaling more than $5,400,000 in the Kline budget, or almost half of the entire city payroll, are in for a thorough investigation by Council, particularly the Detective Bureau.

Many of the business and civic leaders active in the battle for lower taxes heard Councilman Harry Little put the motion for the reduced millage which Council yesterday passed unanimously.

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board has issued a statement of congratulation, and promised the moral support of its members in "the necessary but distasteful and unpleasant duty of fixing salaries and appropriations."

CUT HELD TOO SMALL

Only one taxpayers' organization failed to applaud the action of Council. The new Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League sent a letter declaring that the millage might have been lower in view of suggested economies, and that a cash surplus in the city treasury will be expected at the end of 1933.

The suggestion of Councilman Anderson that Council call upon the department heads to reduce the payroll now that the millage has been set was answered by Herron, who said:

"I think the time has passed for Council to expect any aid from directors."

The department heads, however, have been granted until next Thursday to make further recommendations.

Slain Man Parked At Police Station

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Some one drove up to police headquarters in Center street today, parked his car, and walked away. A bomb squad detective looked into the car, saw a bulging burlap bag, cut it open and found the body of a man who had apparently been strangled.

The car was parked under the windows of the missing persons bureau and 25 feet from the main entrance of police headquarters.

PINCHOT LOSES TRAFFIC SUIT

READING, Pa., Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who directed his chauffeur to arrest John H. Wertley, of Hamburg, a garage proprietor, on a drunken driving charge, lost in the Berks County Court today when a jury acquitted the defendant after 10 minutes' deliberation.

Costs in the case were placed on State Highway Patrolman W. J. Byanne, assigned to special duty as the Governor's chauffeur, who was listed as prosecutor.

Byanne arrested Wertley three months ago at the Governor's instance and accused him of zigzagging in front of the executive's car. He charged Wertley was "on the wrong side of the road."

Mother-to-Be Frantic As Chair Claims Killer

By JOHN K. AULL

International News Service.

STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBIA, S. S., Dec. 16.—South Carolina's electric chair sang a hymn of death today as it snuffed out the life of a convicted murderer, and an expectant mother, herself condemned to die, crouched in terror, on the verge of hysteria, as the switch was thrown.

Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, mother-to-be, as O. E. S. Howell, slayer of his wife's attacker, was marched to the chair, sobbed:

"Oh God—help me!"

Dimming of lights in the long steel corridors told prisoners the switch had been thrown for the fatal charge in the electric chair. To this signal was added the unearthly din of prisoners clanging their bunks and rattling steel doors, shouting and screaming.

Mrs. Snipes said, her voice high-pitched and near the breaking point:

"I believe I'm going crazy. If they put me to death for what I did it will be like shooting a person in the back."

Mrs. Snipes, who early next month expects to give birth to a child, is under sentence of execution April 7. She was convicted of slaying a highway policeman. She claimed self-defense.

MARTIN SOUNDS WARNING TO ASSEMBLY

Lower Taxes, Curb on Bus Transportation To Be Sought

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—A cry for economy is sounded in the Republican state organization's 1933 legislative program, announced by State Chairman Edward Martin.

Martin said yesterday:

"Overlapping, duplication and frills must be eliminated. Even after this is done it may be necessary to cut down the cost of fundamental government activities . . ."

The program calls also for relief of the tax burden on real estate; help for industry; no new taxation unless needed to give unemployment relief, and lower county and township road taxes.

It demands further restriction of the weight and length of motor trucks and buses; reduction in state and local officials' salaries; elimination of all but absolutely necessary public construction; fairness to consumers, investors and employes by public utilities, and a short session of the Legislature.

Martin also indorsed a policy of employing Pennsylvania labor and using Pennsylvania products.

'Hands Off' by Pinchot Ends Speaker Rivalry

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—A united Republican bloc of 139 Representatives will elect Grover C. Talbot, Delaware, Speaker of the House next month.

Possibility of a rift in the Republican ranks was dispelled today with Gov. Pinchot's announcement that he is taking no part in the election of a Speaker.

As a result, Talbot will have only nominal opposition from the Democratic bloc of 65, who probably will support Representative Wilson G. Sarig, Berks. Talbot is the Republican organization candidate.

TEACHER LOBBY TO FIGHT CUTS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—A fight over reduction in teachers' salaries appears in the offing as the 1933 Legislature draws near.

Teachers, who maintain an effective lobby during legislative sessions, already have organized in many communities to fight substantial salary cuts.

Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, has suggested that the Edmonds' act, which prescribes teachers' pay, be amended to prevent any increases in the next two years and to provide a temporary 10 per cent reduction in the minimum salary limits during the next two years.

Postal Rate Increase Blow to Legislators

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The increase in postal rates has curtailed stamp allotments for legislators. The law provides $150 for each legislator for stamps during a regular session.

This sum formerly would provide 7,500 2-cent stamps. With letters requiring 3-cent stamps, the legislators can purchase only 5,000 3-cent stamps.

Pinchot to Spend Christmas at Home

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot will spend the Christmas holidays with his family in Milford. He leaves here Thursday, December 22, and returns the following week.

Gifford Bryce Pinchot, son of the chief executive, will fly to Harrisburg Sunday from California where he is a student at the Thatcher School.

Youth Terrorizing Congressmen Held

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Marlin R. M. Kemmerer, 25, of Allentown, Pa., who flourished a pistol toward members of the House of Representatives Tuesday, when he demanded "20 minutes to make a speech," was held for grand jury action today in police court. His bond was placed at $2,500.

MELLON PARLEY SEEN

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Ambassador Mellon, who will sail for the United States tomorrow aboard the liner Europa to spend Christmas at home, may go to Washington for a conference with President Hoover on the war debt situation.

This was indicated today by a spokesman at the United States embassy, who declared:

"Naturally Ambassador Mellon will go to Washington if President Hoover invites him."

Ambassador Mellon will be accompanied to America by his daughter. He will spend Christmas in Pittsburgh.

R. H. Martin Official For Dry Conference

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, comprising 30 national organizations, announced election of officers today as follows:

President, Dr. James A. Crain, of Indianapolis; vice presidents, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of New York, and F. Scott McBride, Washington; secretary, Edwin C. Dinwiddie, Washington, and treasurer, R. H. Martin, Pittsburgh.

Custer Kin, Nurse, 94, Burns to Death

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—A raid on what detectives said was once the motion picture studio of the old Lubin Company at Betzwood, revealed a 5,000-gallon still yesterday.

Mayhem Charged to Cat, Police Hunt Launched

At roll call in the South Side Police Station this morning, patrolmen took out their pencils and added the following description to the "wanted" section of their notebooks:

"A common gray alley cat. This cat will most likely be found in the vicinity of South Eighteenth and Carson streets. If apprehended, notify the Animal Rescue League."

Although the charge was not stated, it is mayhem.

As Mrs. Lena Dell, 50, stood behind the counter of her fruit store at 1732 Carson street yesterday, her cat, Josephine, purred contentedly by the stove. But suddenly all was not well; Josephine and a strange cat were howling and fighting in the center of the store.

Mrs. Dell succeeded in separating them. The stranger seemed to resent this, for he bit her upon the leg, then fled through the partly opened door.

Mrs. Dell hastened to the South Side Hospital, where the wound was cauterized.

The Animal Rescue League, being notified by the hospital, obtained a description of the cat and asked police to apprehend it.

DEADLOCK NEAR ON RAIL PAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—A stalemate appeared today in the railroad wage conference when the unions decided to stand pat on a proposal that the 10 per cent reduction now in force be extended on present terms for a period of one year.

The only change in the labor proposal was in the specification of a time for possible negotiations at the end of the extension. Notice might be served proposing a further extension on or after December 1, 1933.

PINCHOT DELAYS DAVIS PAPERS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot will delay until after the first of the year action on issuing a certificate of election to United States Senator James J. Davis.

The Elections Bureau, working on the official vote of the Legislature, is not expected to complete its check on the senatorial vote before the end of the month. These certificates must be issued before January 2; those of members of Congress are not required until some time prior to March 4.

Gov. Pinchot said recently he would issue a certificate to Davis, but would attach a letter noting his doubts as to Davis' qualifications.

UTILITY PROBE STUDIES P. S. C. LEGISLATION

Curb Proposed for Holding Companies; Wait Court Moves

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Recommendations for changes in the state's utility laws will be submitted today to the Senate committee investigating the Public Service Commission.

At an executive session, the committee's attorney will outline measures to give the commission control over holding companies, reparations to consumers where rates have been found excessive, control over security issues of utilities and prohibition of increases in rates until approved by the commission.

The attorneys will discuss also the court orders which have forced postponement of public hearings by attacking the validity of the committee's $100,000 appropriation and challenging its authority.

The Fayette and Dauphin County Courts soon will decide whether two of these temporary injunctions shall be made permanent. Argument on the permanency of four other writs will be held in the Dauphin County Court after these decisions have been made. An appeal is already on file with the State Supreme Court from the restraining order issued by the local court to Ira Jewell Williams, Philadelphia attorney.

The Williams writ prevents the committee from using its $100,000 appropriation, alleging the allocation is invalid because it was passed at a special session of the Legislature called only to consider unemployment relief.

The future course of the committee's investigation cannot be planned until legal obstacles are cleared, but in the meantime the committee is preparing bills to amend the utility laws for early presentation to the Legislature.

BEAUTY PARLOR FEES SOUGHT

The Department of Public Health is doing its bit to increase the city's income, it was revealed today, by making a drive to collect license fees from operators of beauty parlors and physical culture schools.

In announcing the drive, Baron H. Hill, chief clerk in the Bureau of Sanitation, said some operators had neglected to pay their fees and that they were difficult to trace because many had their shops in their homes. The city ordinance provides for a $5 fee for an establishment employing not more than two operators, and $1 for each additional operator.

'Youngest' Relief Aide Busy in West Newton

MISS LILLIAN ROHLAND, AT 20 SHE HEADS RELIEF WORKERS

Girl Only 20 Holds Four Jobs Helping Care for Needy

WEST NEWTON, Pa., Dec. 16.—Believed to be one of the youngest persons engaged in relief work in Western Pennsylvania, Miss Lillian Rohland, 20, holds the post of chairman of the Red Cross Sewing Committee of West Newton, and does the secretarial work in distribution of funds of the West Newton Relief Committee.

The girl, a graduate of West Newton High School in 1930, was appointed to supervise the distribution of cloth obtained for the needy through the Red Cross. She also is engaged in distribution of Red Cross flour.

In addition to her Red Cross activities, she asists W. F. Cummings, chairman of the relief committee which has charge of state and local relief funds.

2 GIRLS SOUGHT IN CHARITY FAKE

Police in the county office building were looking for two young women, posing as Mercy Hospital nurses, who solicited funds in the offices and corridors of the building this morning.

That they were fakirs was learned by an unidentified victim who questioned them after he had given them $1. When they failed to convince him, he demanded the return of his money and got it. The hospital announced it had no solicitors out.

From one man solicited, the women asked the whereabouts of the county detective bureau. The sleuths were not visited, and the query was believed to have been a precautionary measure.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TALK LAUDED

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was commended today in a letter written by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, for references to prohibition in a recent speech by the wife of the President-elect. Mrs. Sabin wrote:

"I know I am speaking for the members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform when I express to you our admiration of your courageous statement.

"I am cognizant that for many years you had hoped for the success of national prohibition. Therefore, I realize that your statement took unusual courage, because, behind it there must have been a sense of keen, personal disappointment.

"You have undoubtedly learned, in the training of your children and your experience as an educator, what we have learned—that temperance can only be achieved through the influence of the church, the home and the school by example and education."

GIVE YULE FETE FOR FIRST LADY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The Girl Scouts, who have sung Christmas carols to Mrs. Hoover every year she has been in the White House, chose today for this year's carolling, just to make certain she wouldn't miss out through that talked-of Yuletide trip southward.

In Mrs. Hoover's honor, a gayly decorated Christmas tree was set up in the Girl Scouts' little house, and girl volunteers worked like beavers to give her a sample of the Christmas cheer they will scatter.

The organization has been cooperating with the Red Cross in making clothing for needy children from government cotton. As a special Christmas project, the girls have been making cookies of festive cut and decoration from the federal flour distributed by the Red Cross.

BILL LEGALIZING WINE LOSES IN COMMITTEE

Group Votes 14 to 9 Against Reporting Issue to House

By WILLIAM K. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The House Ways and Means Committee by a vote of 14 to 9 today refused to report the bill of Representative Lea (Dem.), of California, legalizing light wines. Yesterday it reported a 3.2 per cent beer bill.

The committee battled over the wine question for an hour behind closed doors before the vote was taken.

When the committee yesterday voted to report out the 3.2 per cent beer bill, it struck out a section in the bill legalizing light wines. The committee, however, agreed to consider a separate wine bill.

BEER UP TUESDAY

Democratic leaders planned to bring the new 3.2 per cent beer bill up for passage next Tuesday. They were confident that the bill will pass by a fair margin.

The two to one vote in the Ways and Means Committee for the beer measure was accepted by House wets—and some drys—as an indication of sufficient strength to insure passage of the bill.

The drys, nevertheless, were prepared to fight the beer proposal to the limit. They recalled that Democratic leaders also predicted passage of the Garner repeal resolution, but it failed by six votes.

Many amendments will be proposed to the beer measure, with the result that it may be materially changed on the floor.

FIGHT ON CONTENT

Efforts will be made to reduce the alcoholic content to 2.75 per cent, raise the tax from $5 to $7.50 a barrel, restrict sale to bottles and outlaw the saloons.

Democratic leaders believe that the bill reported will yield $300,000,000 revenue a year to the federal treasury, despite the testimony of Secretary of the Treasury Mills. He estimated a maximum $150,000,000 return on a 2.75 per cent measure the first year.

Meanwhile the first step to protect dry states from the liquor traffic once the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, was taken today by the Senate Judiciary Sub-committee considering repeal resolutions.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, member of the sub-committee, announced an agreement had been reached on the language to be used prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquors into the dry states.

Repeal of Snyder Act Issue in Assembly

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The Snyder-Armstrong state prohibition enforcement act will play a leading role in the legislative drama beginning next month.

The administration, holding the whip hand with the power of veto for any proposed changes or repeal, has indicated that it will take no stand unless Congress acts. However, it is generally believed that the Governor would veto any measure modifying or repealing the measure.

BEER'S DEFEAT SEEN BY POLING

Defeat of the pending beer bill will be caused by its own friends, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, national leader of the Allied Prohibition Forces, predicted here today.

Dr. Poling, in Pittsburgh for a luncheon meeting of the National Youth Vocational Conference in the Keystone Athletic Club, said:

"The defeat begins in its friends' dissension over alcoholic content and with their regard for inclusion of wine. The attempt at solving the problem of distribution along with these other factors makes it apparent that the movement is becoming more demoralizing every day.

"It looks as though the bill would make beer as free as soda water. And how will we all like it when advertisers croon beer over the radio morning, noon and night."

Dr. Poling, who speaks weekly over the radio on the National Youths' Radio Conference, speaks in Johnstown tonight.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The press of his own state's and New York city's financial problems behind him, President-elect Roosevelt goes traveling again today.

Mr. Roosevelt's program today called for departure on an afternoon train for New York to a dinner and party for Democratic workers in the last campaign, later going to his Hyde Park home for the week-end. At Hyde Park he may sign the bills passed by the State Legislature yesterday bringing relief t hard pressed New York City by permitting economies to be undertaken to the extent of $40,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—President Hoover had virtually decided today upon a Christmas vacation trip in Florida, leaving the capital a day or two before Christmas and spending at least a week in the South traveling by boat and automobile.

Only the possibility that Congress might not adjourn for the customary 10-day recess over the holidays, or the occurrence of some entirely unexpected crisis in national or international affairs, stand in the way of a final decision.

YOUNG WOMAN HERE BELIEVES FLIER SAFE

Story From Amazon Jungle Declares He's Prisoner

The young wife of Paul Redfern, aviator missing since his nonstop flight to Brazil five years ago, today raised hope that a rumor reporting him as the captive "king" of South American savages would prove true and result in his return.

Mrs. Gertrude Redfern, living at the Fairfax Apartment Hotel, believes her husband still lives. Yesterday she learned from an Associated Press dispatch that an unnamed aviator is said to have talked with her husband and that a rescue expedition will leave New York December 22.

Many times Mrs. Redfern's hopes were raised by rumors which proved false. She was anxious to communicate with the aviator reported to have talked to her husband.

The story which the unnamed pilot was said to have told follows:

Lost above the Brazilian jungle, somewhere near Manaos, capital of the state of Amazonas, he saw a clearing and landed. He found himself in the village of a tribe of head-hunters and soon discovered that another white man was held captive by them. This man, he learned, was treated as a king, although not permitted to leave the village. The "king" was Redfern. The second aviator managed to communicate with Redfern, and claims to have brought back a verbal message to his family in which the flier begs for rescue.

Heavily armed and carrying paraphernalia for life in the wilderness, Redfern remarked that it would be a good gamble to search for him in the Amazon swamps, when he took off in Georgia.

DRINKING WIFE UPHELD IN TRIAL

SMETHPORT, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Beatrice Sullivan, on trial for her life on a charge of slaying her salesman husband, Neil, today was pictured by her counsel as a home-loving woman who started drinking to "keep her husband at home."

Following a parade of character witnesses to the stand, R. T. Muteabaugh, Mrs. Sullivan's attorney, made his argument to the jury, asking acquittal. The case is expected to go to the jury late today.

Sullivan was shot twice through the head one night in October as he sat in his mud-mired automobile near Kane. The slaying climaxed a night of carousing during which Mrs. Sullivan became so drunk she had to be carried from one speakeasy to her husband's car.

Beside Sullivan, mortally wounded, sat his wife. She was holding the death gun and seemed dazed. She has professed no knowledge of the shooting.

ROXIE RETURNS, DENIES FEAR

Rocco DiPippa, alias Roxie Long, is not a Santa Claus. Neither did he leave the city fearing revenge because he testified against 21 men convicted of liquor conspiracy in Federal Court.

This DiPippa explained today as he reappeared at the Federal building after being absent since near the end of the conspiracy trial. Asked why he testified against the men with whom he claimed to be associated in liquor law violations, he said:

"Why shouldn't I? I'm not a Santa Claus to them."

DiPippa said he had been visiting a cousin in Rochester, N. Y., and had no fear of retaliation for his testimony, given after he pleaded guilty with 19 others to the conspiracy charges. He is free under bond pending sentence.

Actress' Screams Lead To Husband's Shooting

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—(Universal.) — Wild screams of a woman running down a street early today caused an innocent bystander to believe a kidnaping was in progress and prompted him to shoot Roy D. Barnes, 33-year-old radio musician, detectives disclosed today.

The bystander, according to detectives, is Titus E. Berry, who admitted the shooting late yesterday and said that he had drawn his gun and shot at the tires of Barnes' slowly moving car, only to have the bullet penetrate the musician's skull. Barnes has an even chance to live.

Berry did not know his bullet had struck Barnes. He was not held.

The wild screams which caused the shooting came from Mrs. Gloria Barnes, 22-year-old movie extra and wife of the musician, who admitted fighting with her husband following a gay drinking party at the home of Mrs. Peggy Hall, also an extra.

ZERO COLD HITS HALF U. S.

Associated Press.

The chilling rapier of winter stabbed a shivering nation beneath its Mason and Dixon belt today.

Zero, keeping relentless grip over the Northland and Great Lakes states, widened its realm as it smote the South and East.

Into more than half of the 48 states zero had come, and deep down in the old South, far down along the Texas international boundary, even into Louisiana, the fringes of the early winter brought freezing temperatures.

From the frozen cornfields of Iowa and Lake Superior shores came the lowest readings, 20 below zero at Charles City, Ia., Duluth, Minn., and La Crosse, Wis.

An official 4 below at Chicago was laughed to scorn by the unofficial suburban readings of 12 to 18 below, coldest in years.

Zero came to Detroit for the first visit in three years. It rounded Lake Erie, dipped to 2 below at Toledo, and swept into the Ohio River valley, where Cincinnati crowded together for warmth in its valley basin at a temperature 6 below zero. Ohio was suffering in the coldest snap in years.

JUDGE DIRECTS DRY RAID

On complaint of Common Pleas Judge James H. Gray, county detectives today arrested Louis Demauro, following a raid at 6357 Apple avenue, in which they confiscated a 50-gallon still and additional equipment. Demauro was held for court by Alderman Thomas M. Geary on a charge of violating the Snyder act.

Judge Gray made the complaint, according to the detectives, when Samuel Magiro, 533½ North Aiken avenue, appeared before him yesterday on a charge of violating his parole by selling liquor. Judge Gray told Magiro:

"The court will consider extension of your parole if you will tell the court where you got this liquor."

Magiro said he got it from Demauro, according to the detectives.

Giordino, police charged, gave the puzzle marker a jig saw of a different sort. Before they arrested him, police had to piece together an assortment of alleged fictitious names and addresses.

Evans commit them to state institutions.

John was sent to the Glen Mills School for Boys and Lillian was placed in the care of the House of the Good Shepherd, Philadelphia.

CHARGES MATE SET DOGS FREE

Kathleen Campbell Gregory, of 120 North Homewood avenue, testified today in her suit for divorce that her husband once freed all the dogs in the Norfolk (Va.) dog pound, and caused "quite a commotion."

The escapade was cited in her action to obtain a divorce from Iredell Phipps Gregory, member of a prominent Norfolk family, on grounds of cruelty and indignities. She said he was an habitual drinker. He was intoxicated, she said, when he opened the gates of the dog pound.

They were married in 1922 and separated in 1927.

PAIR TO FIGHT FOR WAIF

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(Universal.)—Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Connor today were to begin a court fight for the baby they found on a doorstep 10 days ago, little Susan Gill, now almost a month old.

Official red tape and the arbitrary tagging of the baby as a Catholic by authorities at the Brooklyn Nursery have threatened to deprive the foundling of the home and care of the prosperous middle-aged Jewish couple who are determined to adopt her.

The Connors, asserting their finding the baby on the doorstep of Connor's brother was "an act of God," were to be given a hearing today on their application for a writ of mandamus.

They contend the baby must be Jewish, because of the letter received by Mrs. Connor, apparently from the child's mother, saying the baby was "Jewish on both sides of the family."

The baby was tagged a Catholic by the authorities, which fix the religious faith of foundlings by a system of rotation.

HOLLAND WILLS SPECIMENS TO MUSEUM

Rare Collection Left To Public; Proposes Scholarships

Dr. William Jacob Holland remembered his beloved sciences of botany and zoology even in death. The valuable collection of butterflies and moths assembled by the late director emeritus of Carnegie Museum, was bequeathed to the museum today with the filing of the noted scientist's will. Coincidentally, came the announcement of the death of Dr. Holland's protege, William Densmore McIlroy, Jr., 25-year-old assistant in the department of entomology of the museum, at his home, 192 West Prospect avenue, Ingram, yesterday. Dr. Holland died Tuesday.

KIN REMEMBERED

Dr. Holland's $62,000 estate, consisting of $50,000 in personal property and $2,500 in real estate, was divided among relatives and the museum with which he was so long associated.

The insect collection was given with the stipulation that trustees of the Carnegie Corporation establish a $10,000 fund to be known as the W. J. Holland Fund, for acquiring more specimens and maintaining the collection, and that within two years of his death, $5,000 shall be given by the corporation to the University of Pittsburgh to be known as the Carrie T. Holland Scholarship, to assist naturalist students.

LIBRARY INCLUDED

The gift to the museum also includes the herbarium collected by the late Jacob Wolle, Dr. Holland's grandfather and the Holland library.

The bulk of the remainder of the estate and the insurance were left to his wife, Mrs. Carrie T. Holland. Of the insurance, he requested her to set aside $15,000 in trust, the income to be paid to his sister, Mrs. Anna R. Thrapp.

To his son, Moorhead Benezet Holland, he left a portrait by Nicholas Largilliere of Judith De la Majanelle, long in the family.

To his other son, Francis Raymond Holland, he left the portrait of Col. Timothy Horsfield, by Valentine Haidt.

2 DIE IN CHASE OF BANDITS

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—County Patrolman Dan Souders and a robber were killed here today following a $3,418 payroll robbery in the heart of the city. A second robber was shot and wounded. A third escaped.

The battle occurred after four men had entered the lobby of the Globe Tailoring Company and forced William Morgan, bookkeeper, and Harry Banke, cashier, and four others, into an elevator and escaped with a bag of money, which was being brought from a bank.

Officers gave chase to the robbers' car, overtaking it about two miles outside the city, when it went into a ditch. As the officers came up the robbers opened fire.

The police were enabled to catch the fleeing band because persons watching the getaway noted the number of the robbers' car.

14 DIE, 50 HURT AS FIRE TRAPS HUNDREDS

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Dec. 16.—Screams of panic-stricken shoppers mingled with the roars and yelps of caged bears and monkeys today in a fire which resulted fatally to 14 persons.

Hundreds were trapped when flames swept through the seven floors of the Shirokiya store, the largest in the Orient. Damage was estimated at about 20,000,000 yen (approximately $4,000,000.)

At least 50 persons were seriously injured. It was the first fire to occur in a large building in the history of the city and completely nonplussed the Japanese fire fighters, who found themselves without proper equipment to cope with it. They had no hook and ladder equipment and insufficient water pressure.

When the fire broke out, the customers and employes rushed for possible means of escape, some flinging themselves from windows while others rushed to the roof, where the store's zoo was located.

Bears and monkeys in the store zoo fought desperately to escape, their cries piercing the roar of the flames and the shouts of frightened men and women.

Six military airplanes dropped ropes to the shoppers stranded on the roof, enabling them to lower themselves to the street or to the roofs of adjacent buildings.

TEACHER HELD IN SWINDLE OF FATHER

games and other entertainments—always with her sweetheart, a freshman at Marietta College.

After questioning the sweetheart, Folger was convinced of his innocence. Hilda, too, absolved him, but Folger said he was convinced the girl was encouraged in the forgeries by a second man who is being sought. Folber said today:

"The girl's father isn't anxious to have her prosecuted, but I can't overlook a felony like that. I understand the father is going to tke the loss."

REMAINS CALM IN JAIL

Folger said that $700 of the $2,400 had been recovered from a dresser in Hilda's bedroom.

The forged certificates were presented at three of Marietta's banks from time to time. And the forgeries might still be unnoticed if the former Muskingum student hadn't foreseen the discovery when the banks mailed out their statements next month, Folger said.

Anticipating this, she went home Wednesday with two notes she told her father she had found in her car, one for her, another for her father.

'EXTORTION' NOTES

Hilda's note read:

"Dear Miss:

"You love your father and your mother and your home, don't you? You want them to keep on living, don't you? If they do you must help us. Here is our demand—take these certificates to different banks and get the cash. Put it in a big envelope. Leave it just where it is. Give the sealed envelope to your father when you get home. You'll find your help money in an envelope behind the seat. Go to a show and stay till it's over. But don't tell a person. Thanks for your invited co-operation.

"X AND X 2."

The note to her father said:

"Dear Stranger:

"Four evenings past we captured from your home a deposit box containing certificates valued at $1,600 and some valuable papers, one of which might be quite important to you—your daughter's bill of sale. In our business we could use a Chrysler coupe very easily but if you will act wisely the car will remain unbothered and if not you will suffer great loss. Here is our demand—you must keep the whole matter to yourself. If you think you can converse with the officers without us knowing, ask yourself this—how did they get the box and how did they know where it was. We'll find out if you tell this just as easy and our threat never fails. The more you do the more we do and it means a lot to a man nowadays, don't it?

"X and X and X-2.

"Please don't blame your daughter. She is very wise."

GIRL CONFESSES

Shaw went to Prosecutor Folger and Sheriff Gay Thorn. After questioning Hilda she confessed, Folger said.

Besides spending the money on football trips, she paid for damages to her car and bought clothes, according to Folger.

Fire After Blast Ruins Entire Block

DENVER, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Four gasoline tanks of 10,000 gallons capacity each, exploded at the Union Refining plant here today causing a spectacular fire which swept an entire city block.

The explosion was believed to have been caused by breaking of a gasoline pipe in the refinery, allowing the liquid to strike a steampipe.

MAN IN HOME NO DIVORCE CAUSE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(Universal.)—A jury in White Plains Supreme Court today had decided that Mrs. Evelyn Schmaling had not been indiscreet on December 1, last, when she permitted Ralph A. Donaldson, 22, Worcester (Mass.) explorer, to spend the night in her home.

Mrs. Schmaling contended that the raid in which her husband and two aviator friends discovered Donaldson in her home was a "put up job." Further, it was contended, Donaldson was remaining at the home to talk to the husband about a projected exploration.

PROBE MURDER OF DR. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Mystery concerning the motive of the fatal shooting of Dr. William J. Walsh, honorary police surgeon and physician to the New York Giants' baseball club, deepened today.

The police, after 36 hours of investigation, were unable to ascribe any definite reason why John William Wilson, an ex-convict of several aliases, killed the physician. They had theories, however, which they believed to be sound. They leaned strongly to the theory of robbery as the motive.

Dr. Walsh was shot Wednesday night in his office on Riverside drive. He died yesterday afternoon in Lutheran Hospital.

ZACK MILLER FREED AGAIN

NEWKIRK, Okla., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Col. Zack Miller, of the 101 Ranch, today stood temporarily free of assault charge because the Kay County prosecutor, Bruce Potter, believed his trial would be "foolish in the face of a certain pardon from Gov. Murray."

Miller was charged with chasing two attorneys for a receiver from the ranch "White House" with a shotgun during an auction sale. The attorneys, Neil A. Sullivan and R. O. Wilson, were not injured. Judge Dale I. Heltzel sustained a motion by Potter for dismissal.

Gov. Murray recently granted Miller a pardon after Judge Claud Duval sentenced him to jail for contempt of court in failure to pay temporary alimony to his estranged wife.

The chief executive asserted Judge Duval, certain attorneys and prominent businessmen of Ponca City, Okla., had conspired against the plainsman "to rob him of his home."

While passing Miller's case today, Potter said he would open the way for complainants to refile the charges after Gov. Murray leaves office, January 1, 1934.

2-YEAR CRIME PLAN BALKED

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The two-year crime plan of two Zanesville (O.) youths, designed to net $2,000,000 had come to an abrupt halt here today, two weeks after its inception.

Charles Diffenbaugh, 19, and Emmett Bowman, 17, grinned sheepishly in Southside Court as Judge Carlin P. Smith read what the two youths frankly admitted was their carefully worked out schedule of banditry which was to traverse America and reach to distant foreign shores.

The amount of money which each city must yield, the amount of time intended to spend at various places, were itemized precisely. They asserted their two-year plan in its fortnight of operation, already was behind in "production."

FRENCH OFFICER AIDS GERMAN

DUEREN, Germany, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—After 15 years, a hand has stretched across No Man's Land to drive the wolf away from the door of Hans Schultz, an unemployed laborer.

During one of the 1917 drives, Schultz rescued a French officer who was badly wounded. They exchanged letters as the Frenchman convalesced in a hospital.

Schultz, who has been without work for eight months, recently received a letter from his French friend with 400 francs as a "Christmas present."

The officer explained he had just run across the German's name in an old diary and wanted to renew the friendship.

3 Injured in Crash Near Schwab Estate

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 16.—When their automobile skidded and crashed into a stone marker near the entrance of Charles Schwab's estate, at Loretta, Mrs. Anna Epstein, 30, of Brooklyn; Clarence Wood, 43, of Rolling Green, O., and Samuel E. Abrams, en route from Cleveland to New York, were injured. All were taken to Altoona Hospital. Highway patrolmen said they were unable to locate the driver of the car, which, they said, was registered in the name of H. D. Austin, of Erie.

Bible Warning Wins Women Freedom

The biblical warning that only those without sin should cast the first stone helped two women win their freedom in Morals Court today. Mrs. Anna Corrigan, 38, and Mrs. Stella Lawson, 45, of Cleveland, were discharged as suspected pickpockets after their attorney, Louis Little, had reminded Magistrate Leo Rothenberg of the Bible's admonition.

ARIZONA DECIDED to hang Winnie Ruth Judd, who, in some horrible fit of anger, jealousy, hatred, and perhaps insanity, killed two women. It was a hideous crime, but future civilization will call it less hideous than the judicial crime of strangling a woman in cold blood.

SECRETARY MILLS wisely warns Congress that the dream about hundreds of millions from a beer tax will never be real. It is a fact, as Mr. Mills says, that within a country without beer saloons, distribution and drinking of beer will be limited, yielding not more than $150,000,000 in taxes.

Mr. Mills' statement that only a manufacturers' sales tax can provide adequate revenue is accurate.

CERTAIN CONGRESSMEN would give the Philippines their independence eight years hence. THEN why not NOW?

Why continue spending the money of American taxpayers in Asia if we intend to let them become Japanese in a little while? Why not say "at once" to Japan:

"We are going out, help yourselves, you need more room."

TEACHER GIVES ADVICE ON LOVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Advice on affairs of the heart by a professor is one of the newest accommodations offered at Teachers' College, Columbia University, it was learned today.

The professor is Dr. Goodwin Watson, psychologist, and the students take all kinds of troubles to him for solving, whether it be about love, social maladjustment or inhibitions.

Both co-eds and college youths come to the professor for advice, and the professor consequently has found himself in position to learn all about the ways of college girls and boys at Columbia. When it comes to taking the actual leap into the sea of matrimony, however, it seems, according to Dr. Watson, that the Columbia boys and girls stay away for some reason or other.

BOAK ELECTED GRANGE HEAD

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—J. A. Boak, of New Castle, heads the Pennsylvania State Grange today as state master, succeeding E. B. Dorsett, of Mansfield.

Boak was installed last night at the grange's final convention session with other officers, who include: Overseer, M. A. Spleen, of Ridgway; lecturer, Ira Gross, of Johnstown; gatekeeper, V. E. Carr, of Punxsutawney; ceres, Sara Caven, of Beaver; Flora, Ethel Richards, of Bedford; pomona, Mrs. Frank Stoner, of Somerset; member of the finance committee, W. F. Hill, of Huntingdon; director of the Keystone Grange Exchange, John Johnson, of Washington.

MUCH-WED GOB HELD FOR TEST

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The marriage and divorce score of Louis George, seagoing engineer, apparently doesn't add up.

So George faced a mental test today to determine his sanity.

And through the test General Sessions Judge William Allen, the court probation officers, a couple of attorneys and George himself hope the thing will be straightened out.

George, it seems, married four women seven times, but didn't have the proper number of divorces. Even George admitted his marital affairs were "too mixed up" for him.

Last year he was arraigned on a bigamy charge and pleaded guilty. But because he was at sea so much, the court put him on probation and ordered him to report by mail.

Not only did he fail to report, a probation officer told Judge Allen yesterday, but he got married again during the probation period.

JURY CONVICTS RENALDO

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Duncan Renaldo, film actor, today stood convicted on a charge of falsely representing himself as an American citizen. A Federal Court jury returned its verdict last night. He was released under $2,000 bail pending sentencing next Monday.

Renaldo's attorney announced "an immediate appeal" would be taken in the event his motion for a new trial is denied.

Renaldo was convicted of making a false statement in a passport, claiming to be a citizen of the United States, and perjury. The indictment was made on a passport application signed by the actor March 14, 1929, prior to his leaving for Africa to film a jungle motion picture.

Immigration authorities said deportation proceedings probably would be instituted against the actor if his conviction is upheld.

Soon after Renaldo returned to the United States from Africa, his former wife, Mrs. Suzette Duncan, filed a $50,000 alienation of affections suit against Edwina Booth, film actress, who played opposite Renaldo in the jungle picture.

SPUR JAPANESE FEUD IN LEAGUE

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT

International News Service.

GENEVA, Dec. 16.—Possibility that Japan may withdraw from the League of Nations because of the Sino-Japanese Manchurian dispute came to the fore again today following approval by the Committee of Nineteen of a resolution placing the onus for the controversy on Japan.

The resolution would place settlement of the dispute in the hands of a conciliation committee in which Soviet Russia and the United States will be invited to participate.

Gets 2½-Year Term For 5-Cent Holdup

BEAVER, Pa., Dec. 16.—For a holdup in which he stole a nickel, Edward A. Concelman, 19, of Rochester, was sentenced to serve from 2½ to 5 years in the penitentiary by Judge W. A. McConnel. Concelman was convicted of robbing Paul H. Mann, of Washington, Pa., at Rochester. Lawrence Crudden, of Monaca, Concelman's alleged companion, was acquitted.

Settlement to Give 2 Children's Plays

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement Children's Theater will present two plays followed by a musicale as part of an entertainment Sunday night. The plays, "The Barnyard" and "Sleeping Beauty," in which more than 40 children will take part, are under the direction of Mrs. Kenneth Mulholland.

Chicago Gangsters Burn Police Auto

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Three drunken hoodlums of the notorious "42" gang faced arson charges today after they had set fire to a police squad car in revenge for the arrest of a pal.

Those arrested after their gesture of defiance were Michael Destefano, 25; Michael Messino, 22, and Tony Ponico, 22. Sam Destefano, brother of Mike, was the man whose arrest prompted the action. About $100 damage was done to the squad car.

'Millionaire Waiter' Held in Check Case

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Albert J. Guggenheim, 23, scion of a wealthy New York family who has been working in Hollywood as a waiter, was arraigned yesterday on charges of passing worthless checks. His preliminary hearing was set for December 22.

Guggenheim was arrested on complaint of Sally Arnold, Hollywood cigaret girl, and Terry Meyers, parking lot operator, who said he induced them to cash checks for $345 on a bank in which he had no funds.

U. S. Marines Quit Nicaraguan Troops

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Officers of the United States Marine Corps who have been serving with the Nicaraguan National Guard in the northern sector today turned over their commands to Nicaraguan officers.

This was the first concrete step in the carrying out of Secretary Stimson's promise that the guard would be turned over to Nicaraguan authorities immediately after the inauguration of President-elect Sacasa on January 1.

Two Flying 'Blind' Die as Plane Falls

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Two Army aviators plunged to death in San Francisco Bay late yesterday with a service biplane in which they were practicing flying "blind."

The fliers were Lieut. John J. "Laddie" Miller, Oakland Reserve pilot, and Lieut. Donald W. Arnagost, Regular Army pilot, who was giving Miller instructions. Their bodies were recovered by coast guards.

COX AUTOGRAPH FOR DONATION

When the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter announced a few days ago that there was little probability of any one forging the signature of Father Cox, it excited a lot of curiosity. Incidentally Father Cox says "It would be time wasted to forge his signature as he hasn't a dollar in the bank.

This curiosity opened up a suggestion. If readers of the Sun-Telegraph want an original copy of this strange autograph, they can get it by making a donation to the "Father of the Jobless." He personally acknowledges all donations by letter. Anyway, it's an unique suggestion and a more unique signature, Father Cox says that he could do a lot more good among the needy if his signature was good as the cashiers' windows of the Pittsburgh banks.

The Sun-Telegraph Subscription Drive for the benefit of the "Father Cox Unemployment Fund" is going along with gratifying results. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings a liberal cash commission to this fund.

SEATTLE, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The currents in the North Pacific Ocean brought a bottle from the coast of Japan to Vancouver Island, upwards of 4,500 miles, in two years and 10 days.

The bottle, belonging to the United States hydrographic office and bearing a note giving the date and place where it was tossed into the ocean, was picked up by Charles Woollings, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, he said here today.

He forwarded it to Washington, D. C.

WARNS DRIVERS ON PASSING

Motorists were warned today that conviction for passing other cars on curves and on the brows of hills will bring suspension of drivers' licenses for a month. The penalty was set as part of a campaign by Gov. Pinchot's committee on street and highway safety.

Indorsing the ruling, C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, pointed out that a first offense plea will not save a driver from losing his license. Motorists believing themselves unjustly arrested should waive hearing and stand trial in court, Roth advised.

In addition, the city will retain 25 per cent of all salaries until delinquent tax collections are made. The tax rate of 13.5 mills remains unchanged.

BOY, 12, WRITES CIPHER FOR CHILDREN

Cipher No. 26

22 28 35 27 24 37 39 27 28
38 28 25 44 34 40 22 20 33

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Here's another original cipher for children. It was submitted by a lad who doesn't sign his name. He says he's 12 years old and a real cipher fan despite his age.

"It is a wonder if everyone doesn't solve it."

Now, as for Cipher No. 25—there wasn't a chirp out of you cipher fans until after clues appeared in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday. You asked for a hard one and were stumped on the first that came along.

Well, the clues helped many of you and the solution today should clear up the difficulty.

The Cipher Editor thought it would be enough to tell you it was a biliteral cipher and an adaptation of Cipher No. 5. Anyhow, he was wrong (what, again?) and here's the method:

According to the instructions in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, write the letters of the alphabet, one under the other, on 24 lines, with "i" and "j" on the same line and "u" and "v" on the same line. Opposite "a," write the letter "a" five times.

In the column headed by the first "a" place 16 "a's," including the first, and eight "b's;" in that headed by the second "a" place seven more "a's," eight "b's" and eight "a's:" in the third column, you should have four "a's," four "b's" four "a's" down to the "z's;" in the fourth, alternate two "a's" and two "b's;" in the fifth, every other letter will be "a," every other "b."

Now write your alphabet in ordinary sequence, joining the "i" and "j," the "v" and "u." Under every other letter place an "a," beginning with the letter "a," under each of the other place a letter "b," beginning under "b." There will be "a's" under a, c, e, g, i, k, m, o, q, s, u, w and y; there will be "b's" under b d, f, h, j, l, n, p, r, t, v, x, z.

Write you cipher in groups of five letters, instead of in its original form. Now place under each letter of the cipher the letter "A" or "B", as it appears under your alphabet. This will give you groupings of five which should correspond to your table as printed today.

Thus, the first five letters in the cipher—JUSTK—are found to represent the combination BAABA on your table. This combination is found on the line opposite "T." So your first letter is "T".

The second five letters—EEPTR—represent AABBB, or "H".

How long did it take you?

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

AWAIT PERMIT FOR WHARF JOB

The Department of Public Works is awaiting a state permit to improve the Duquesne wharves from Ninth to Stanwix streets, Edward G. Lang, director, said today.

The State Water and Power Resources Board acted favorably on the city's application for the permit this week at a hearing in Harrisburg. The permit soon will be forthcoming, according to Lang. When received it will be presented to the federal government for final action.

Sheriff Acquitted Of Rum Plot Charge

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Sheriff J. Hasty Golden, of Elmore County, and five co-defendants were acquitted yesterday of a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

RELIEF BY MINE HEADS LAUDED

C. B. Huntress, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, told the Coal Mining Institute of America last night the bituminous operators are foremost among industrialists in efforts to alleviate suffering of their labor in times of stress.

Huntress presented a six-point program to reduce overhead in production and distribution. One provision was a reduced working force for which there would be larger returns. Touching on taxes, he said:

"Yours is an exceptionally crushing weight of taxation. Naturally, you are bending every effort to bring about relief.

"Eternal vigilance is required at the county seat and the state capital to save you from crucifixion. Forces in Washington would appreciably add to the overhead cost of your business if they had their way about it—more jobs, more bureaus, more taxes."

Huntress said operators are housing and feeding thousands of miners, and the aggregate in rebates given by operators on house rents runs into millions.

SPEED IN SEAL RETURNS ASKED

Out of 25,000,000 Christmas seals sent out four weeks ago by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, 13,000,000 still are unaccounted for, officials announced today. They urged persons receiving the seals to mail checks at once, as work of raising $100,000 to carry on work of the league is progressing slowly.

To date receipts have been $27,000, which represented a gain of $2,000 yesterday. The mark is far below the returns of the 1931 sale.

The booth in the William Penn Hotel, in charge of Mrs. Jerome Seder, yesterday led all in the downtown district, Mrs. J. Paul Warner, general chairman of the sale, announced.

MARSH TAKES CAPITAL POST

Burton W. Marsh, former Pittsburgh traffic engineer, yesterday resigned a similar post in Philadelphia to become manager of the American Automobile Association's new department of traffic and safety in Washington. Marsh served here five years. He was the first man to be appointed a municipal traffic engineer in the United States.

In his new position he will act as consultant for the association in all national safety and traffic conferences, as well as rendering service to cities lacking funds to employ technical traffic consultants.

MOTHER-TO-BE HEARS DOOM IN DAZE

In the concluding installment of her life story, Mrs. Beatrice Snipes describes her feeling during the last months in jail, and her trial, ending with a story that has never been told before—the emotions of a woman being condemned to death.

(Copyright, 1932, by New York Daily Mirror, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

By BEATRICE SNIPES

STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 15.—Months of suffering dulls everything. I knew I was guilty of killing this man, but as it was accidental and started in the defense both of myself and my husband, I thought the very worst that could happen would be a verdict of manslaughter. I knew, too, from my lawyers that this carried a sentence of from two to 30 years, but I felt sure that the court would understand my position and my state of health and be merciful.

At last the date of trial came, and, with my husband and Clyde, Jr., I went into court.

MOTHERS APART

Across the court, Mrs. Harris sat, her four little children beside her. She never once looked at me. And how could I look at her, and endure the sight of her suffering?

No one can ever know the horror of those hours.

The long days dragged on, it seemed years—the same questions over and over again, Clyde giving evidence—then my turn came.

I went back to the prison that night. I know people have said I was brave in court, but I could not keep up any longer. The doctor came to me and gave me something to soothe my nerves.

The morning came. We went back into court. The jury filed back. My lawyers put their case, the judge spoke. He was so kind.

Then four hours—four hours of hell! Just because I did not cry, people think I am hard. I can never describe my feelings then. I have suffered too deeply since. The jury came back and the judge spoke to them. I felt Clyde push me and knew I had to stand up.

DOOMED TO DIE

I heard him say "you are duly arraigned," then I couldn't hear, so I started to ask him. The judge told me to come forward and I left the table where Clyde was and went as near the bench as I could get.

Then somehow from a distance I heard the judge saying:

"Between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m., you are to be taken hence—put to death. And may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

I looked up, the judge was crying—tears were running down his face. Everyone was very kind to me, but they seemed to treat me with a kind of awe. I felt that it was all over. I could rest now. I should have peace, peace to prepare for the coming of my child and to make plans for a new life. Then suddenly, as if something burst, I understood, a terrible light came to me.—I had been sentenced to death.

Slippery Rock Aids Needy Communities

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Free from destitution and poverty, Slippery Rock hailed the coming of the Yule season today with preparations to aid sufferers in nearby communities. Baskets, loaded with provisions, are being filled for distribution in other towns and boroughs. Plans are being pushed to provide for approximately 100 poverty-afflicted families, all outside of Slippery Rock.

Franklin Pays Off School Bond Issue

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 16.—The school bond issue of 1902 is only a memory. Miss Helen Black, secretary, reported final payment of $2,000 on the original issue of $22,000. There is still outstanding $22,000 in bonds, remnant of the $50,000 bond issue of July 1, 1914, which built the addition to the high school.

Widow Asks $100,000 Balm From Author

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 16.—(INS.)—John C. Craven, Jr., author, was named defendant in a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed by Mrs. Lillian E. Davis, 31, a widow.

Mrs. Davis charged Craven wooed her after they met last summer, promised to marry her, and then failed to carry out the agreement.

Women Would Prevent Bi-Party Nominations

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

On the program of legislation to be supported by the Council of Republican Women is a proposal to prevent candidates for public office—with the exception of the judiciary—running for more than one party nomination.

As designed by the Republicans of the speaker sex, there would be nothing to prevent fusion movements after a primary, a subject which has given concern to others who have approached the same project, distressed at the lack of party representation which can and does obtain under the existing system.

At a general election a Republican or Democratic candidate might also be a candidate on an independent ticket, his name put there through the petition process. But in primaries we no longer would have the spectacle of candidates running for nomination in Republican and Democratic and Prohibition and other party primaries.

This will not be the first time the subject has come before the Legislature, but in the past little headway has been made because it was to the advantage of the Republican organization to have the opportunity through affiliations with some Democrats of securing both nominations for favored candidates.

Democrats Have Not All Approved the Practice

Dyed-in-the-wool Democrats have resented the practice, and to it attribute much of the low estate to which the party has fallen in the Commonwealth, having a chance only in such cataclysmic years as this one. In the forthcoming Legislature there will be 65 Democrats. Some of them are only thinly-veneered Republicans, but the majority are real party men and can be counted on to support such a suggestion as that advanced by the Republican women.

To this strength can be added Republicans who believe their party should stand or fall of its own weight, such men as Senator William D. Mansfield. The Senator, it is understood, has believed it unjust to strike at fusion movements in a general election, in such instances as these are justified by political developments.

But when the restriction is applied only to the primary that objection is erased.

Judges are not included by the ladies on the theory that anything which encourages a non-partisan attitude toward judicial selection should be encouraged. This theory of the divorce of politics and the judiciary, of considering judges more devoted to the whole public service than the ordinary public official, is admirable, but it seems to be found more among the laity than the judiciary.

Attack on the Primary Is an Allied Subject

Bound up in this subject of restricting nominations is the attack to be made on the direct primary law in the coming session. Among some Democrats there is argument that their party would be preserved against raiders by a return to the old convention system of nomination.

Most Republican organization men also resent the primary system of choosing nominees, objecting to the rank and file of voters having two direct voices, at the primary and general election, in the selection of public officials.

Economy, the Greek horse, which will be used to facilitate more than one indirect attack on some phase of public affairs next winter, is to be utilized by those against the primary. Already they are arguing that the primary is costly to the public, and that the convention system would effect a saving.

But economy for the public is not the real basis of argument. Economy for the political leader or boss or cohesive group, as well as the slighter opportunity for slips in attempting to control nominations, is at the root of the attack on the primary.

It will be recalled in the last special session that a bill to repeal the primary act passed the Senate, but was held in committee of the House. In the Senate among Allegheny countians Senators Mansfield and Harris voted against the repealer; Senators Einstein, Coyne and Armstrong voted for it, and I cannot recall how Senator Brandt voted.

Lineup of Local Men To Be the Same in 1933

The local lineup probably will be unchanged next year. The bill may come to the floor of the House, but even if it passes it is probable that Gov. Pinchot will kill it with a veto, over which it certainly cannot muster the necessary strength, even in the organization-controlled Senate.

In the Council of Republican Women, however, there is not the same approximate unanimity either way on the primary act as on the proposal to restrict nominations.

Mrs. Hannah M. Durham, an able leader in the Council, is for repeal of the primary and urged it at the Council's last meeting in Harrisburg, but no resolution committing the body was adopted.

Stanford Extends President's Leave

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—(Universal.)—Acting on its own initiative, the Stanford University Board of Trustees today had unanimously extended the leave of absence granted to Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur as president of the university, until March 4.

President Hoover, whose term as trustee expired Wednesday, was re-elected to a 10-year term on the board.

'GIFT' OF $35,000 POLLING PLACES INVESTIGATED

BILL FOR LIGHT STILL CHARGED TO COUNTY

Riordan, Fife Ordered To Place Blame And Cancel Contracts

County-owned polling places valued at more than $35,000 were given away when the redistricting committee elminated several hundred districts more than a year ago, the County Commissioners have been informed. To make matters worse the Commissioners have been asked to pay a bill for light supplied one of the polling places.

Leo Riordan, head of the County Bureau of Investigation, and County Solicitor J. P. Fife are preparing a report for the Commissioners.

RIORDAN INVESTIGATES

Riordan said yesterday, as far as he has been able to learn, Gilbert Cloonon, former head of the Bureau of Elections, ordered approximately 75 portable polling places be given owners of the property where they were erected. This gift, Riordan says, was to compensate the owner for loss of the money which he had been receiving each election day from the county.

Reports show owners of property on which polling places have been erected get about $50 a year. County officials say the contract with the owner ended when the polling place was eliminated. The county was under no obligation to compensate the property owner for any loss he may have suffered by termination of the contract, the Commissioners declare.

LIGHT CONTRACTS

Riordan was instructed to investigate each of the 75 cases. He also was directed to make a full report on who gave away the county property. County Solicitor Fife was instructed to confer with th light company and cancel all contracts for furnishing light to the buildings.

It is possible, Riordan said, the county may have paid numerous bills for light furnished buildings after they had been given away.

The buildings are of sheet metal, double and single. The cost was about $400 for a single building and $700 for a double building.

BELLEVUE BANK APPRAISERS CRITICISED

Depositors Seek to Show Lack of Experience

A former paper salesman without any previous appraisal experience received approximately $5 an hour for his share of the work of appraising the assets of the closed Citizens Trust Company, of Bellevue, it was testified today at the hearing on the bank's depositors' exceptions to the first account of Attorney George F. Taylor, deputy secetary of banking.

Stewart A. Shannon, clerk in the Bureau of Elections and a former paper salesman, testified he received $750 for approximately 160 hours' work. Attorney Harry Shapera, another appraiser, received a like amount, it was revealed.

PROPERTIES APPRAISED

Although the appraisal was supposed to be of the bank's assets, Shannon testified that his appraised values on mortgages held as securities for loans were really the values of the properties themselves. Shannon said he had no previous experience in appraisal work.

The State Banking Department won a partial victory as the hearing reopened before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Judge Marshall specified there was no question of the legality of a central liquidating office for the Banking Department, but that the only question was whether it was legal to have this office outside Harrisburg. The office is now in Philadelphia and is presided over by Special Deputy Secretary of Banking, W. L. McGee, in charge of liquidation of all closed state banks.

McGEE TO TESTIFY

McGee was to go on the stand today in an effort to establish definite, specific benefits to the trust company from McGee's "central office."

Attempts to name services for which the bank was charged $941.60 over a period of nine months failed yesterday, and McGee was ordered by Judge Mar-

TROLLEY VICTIM IDENTIFIED

The body of a 56-year-old woman, killed last night when she was struck by a Beechview-Dormont car at Pennant Stop, was identified today at the county morgue as that of Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, of 1526 Methyl street, Beechview. Identification was made by her son-in-law, Fred Karam, who said she had left her home late yesterday for a walk.

The woman "folded her hands and lowered her head" and crossed in front of the street car, according to a statement given the Coroner by Motorman Andrew Raskansks.

Ammonia Water Flows From Faucets

Mrs. J. K. Riffle and neighbors in the 5100 block on Penn avenue were surprised this morning to find that instead of water coming pure and undefiled out of their faucets, they were getting vaporous streams of ammonia impregnated water.

Officials of the Bureau of City Water, sending men to check up, declared a few were effected, and attributed it to refrigeration ammonia being pushed back into city water pipes.

HITLER FIGHTS RIFT IN PARTY

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler today arrived at the Kaiserhof Hotel to confer with Prussian Nazi directors who still are wrangling over a possible coalition with other parties, whereby the Reich's commissioner will become unnecessary.

The leader of the National Socialist party, who, since the rift with his lieutenant, Gregor Strasser, has been jumping from place to place to prevent further defections in the ranks, will go to Halle Saturday and Hamburg on Sunday for Nazi district meetings.

Pittsburgh had something to say today as to which 10 words are the most beautiful in the English language.

Judge Patterson

This literary game was begun in New York a few days ago by Wilfred J. Funk, poet and dictionary publisher.

Mrs. Jacoby succeeded in compiling an euphonious list originally different from those named by Funk, Theodore Dreiser, Mary Austin and Dorothy Parker, among others. Judge Patterson's list bore a slight resemblance to that of Mayor Curley, of Boston.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 16.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Somebody will finally find a way to run this government yet. An old boy was on the right track the other day. He come into the Congressional gallery waving a gun and said, "I am for America. All not with me better take to the brush, for I am going to take a shot at 'em."

Well, the place was clear in a jiffy. Not a member left. Now they got a sign in the visitors' gallery, "Don't shoot your Congressman, without first getting a license."

England never stood higher in American opinion than today. That was the cheapest hundred million they ever spent. And they will gain in the end by it.

Yours, WILL.

36 CONVENTIONS HERE IN '33

While ranking fourth high among leading cities for the number of conventions booked to date for next year, Pittsburgh's standing was considered even better, since the World's Fair gives the two leaders an unusual advantage not available with normal conditions.

Latest convention records show Pittsburgh with 36 national and sectional groups scheduled. They are expected to bring 50,000 visitors to the city. More than 100 local members of organizations holding conventions elsewhere during the holidays will carry invitations to nine more groups. These groups draw 8,000 attendance.

Samuel K. Smith, convention department manager of the William Penn Hotel, cited Chicago with 196 and Milwaukee with 72 as leaders due to the World's Fair. Washington ranks third with 65 meetings. Latest Cleveland figures show 27 bookings. St. Louis ranks above the Ohio city with 35.

ANTI-FRENCH WAVE IN ITALY

VENICE, Italy, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Demonstrators rang bells in famous San Marco Cathedral yesterday and marched on the French consulate, shouting phrases of protest, as the Venetians joined the nationwide series of manifestations against incidents in Dalmatia.

The demonstrators, numbering over 2,000, did not resort to violence. The bells of the cathedral, which fronts on picturesque San Marco Square, noted for its pigeons, rang continually during the parade.

Resentment at the destruction of stone lions at Trau, Jugoslavia, is especially strong here, as they are symbolic of the former Venetion domination of Dalmatia. A demonstration also occurred Fiume.

Bankers Give You Only Air—And It's Frigid

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

New York City is trying to borrow money off the bankers. Now the boys know how a rabbit feels in a wolf country.

Have you called on a banker lately? The president has moved his private office into an ice box and is wearing blinkers.

The bankers aren't exactly telling us how to run the city. But they're in the back seat with a boathook stuck in the driver's neckband.

Well, we got into this hole ourselves. But, as the old Indian fighter said when he fell into the Grand Canyon, there should have been steps there.

If the bankers let us have the money we promise to be good until we get it. After all, this is the season of goodwill to men and we have a lot of shopping to do.

But it seems that when the spirit of giving is in the air all the bankers give you is the air.

Wife Seeking Divorce Defines Intoxication

Mrs. Maria Beals Vance, of 2803 Perrysville avenue, whose divorce suit against Edwin N. Vance, of Bridgeville, is being contested before Judge Ralph H. Smith, accuses her husband of drinking to excess, especially on week-ends.

She was asked by Attorney Karl E. Wise to define what she meant by intoxication, and her counsel, Walter J. Wagner, objected. Judge Smith permitted the witness to answer, and she gave this definition:

"When a man drinks to excess so that he does not have proper control of his legs and his mental faculties."

Mrs. Vance testified her husband unjustly punished their two daughters, that he brought persons to their home to drink, and embarassed her before relatives and friends. Mrs. Vance said she would take one drink only, merely to be sociable.

VOTE RECOUNT PETITIONERS CALLED

Prosecutor to Press Search for Fraud Evidence

Justices of the peace or aldermen responsible for ballot boxes of 12 districts under investigation by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, and the three petitioners in each of the 12 districts who asked the court to recount the ballots, are to be subpenaed in Park's inquiry.

They will be questioned as to their knowledge of alleged wholesale marking of straight Democratic ballots with crosses for Republican candidates after the November election, to save a Congressman and several Republican legislators from defeat.

First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt and Detective David Drexler yesterday completed interrogation of the judges and inspectors of election in all the districts, laying the groundwork for indictment of the "night riders," alleged to have obtained access to the ballot boxes after the election boards finished the count. The county authorities want to know why the boxes were not in the custody of the justices of the peace.

The District Attorney also wants to know how the three persons in each district who petitioned for recounts knew that anything would be gained.

Government investigators, here to probe the election, have not as yet revealed themselves to Park, or asked his co-operation.

Mission Voices Plea For Discarded Toys

Demands Largest In Forty Years; Scouts Aid Drive

Confronted by the heaviest demand within its 40 years, the annual Toy Mission today appealed for donations of old and discarded toys that their usefulness can be renewed to bring Christmas cheer to destitute homes.

Boy Scouts will open a concerted collection drive tomorrow. House-to-house canvass will be started in all sections of Allegheny County, H. Lloyd Nelson, district commander of the scouts, today appealed to householders to have at least one toy to contribute. Each troop will make necessary repairs to the toys before turning them over to the mission.

Contributors who might be missed in the canvass are requested by George L. Bond, director of the Toy Mission, to either deliver their toys to headquarters at Wood street and First avenue, or telephone (Atlantic 0127) and the contribution will be called for by volunteer workers.

Toys to children are more than amusement, Mr. Bond said. He pointed out:

"What is more natural for a little girl to love a doll. This apparent toy can be developing the mother instinct to make for a better womanhood. The boy can be playing with an old train and its tracks, but how do we know but that a future mechanical or engineering mind might be in its developments.

"Toys are a stimulating food to children. The demand this year coming from school principals is double of that last Christmas. While welfare groups are providing food, the mission must collect toys. Many persons buy new, inexpensive toys to contribute. Volunteer workers spend many nights repairing and preparing used toys for distribution. But we must have the largest contribution from the general public."

It was brought out that the central office and its agents throughout the state cost the depositors in 129 closed banks between $250,000 and $500,000 yearly. McGee was to give a definite figure today.

McGee and Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, must repay this money from their bonds if Judge Marshall decides the expenditures were not permitted by the state banking law and if higher courts sustain him.

Such a decision would upset the entire liquidating machinery set up by Dr. Gordon following the first rush of bank failures in the summer and fall of 1931.

115 ON PAYROLL

About 115 persons are on the payroll of the office, McGee admitted, occupied in instructing and helping deputy secretaries of banking in charge of the closed institutions in liquidation.

It was brought out that the McGee office—which was not established in the Pennsylvania banking code—must approve all deputies' expenditures, authorize sales of securities, collections on notes and mortgages. McGee denied he did the actual work of the deputies.

Many items of the exceptions were withdrawn by the exceptants yesterday following explanation by George Taylor.

Items in the account for employes' taxi and supper bills were explained by Taylor as items incurred when his staff worked overtime and Sundays and holidays without compensation.

Taylor showed he has so far liquidated the Citizens Trust at a cost of $4.68 for each $100 of collections, which total about $808,440. In comparison, 989 closed national banks whose affairs have been brought to a close since 1865 have cost $6.78 per $100 collected, while in 91 whose affairs were closed out in 1931, the cost was $8.37.

The practice of pro-rating costs of liquidation among several banks where the procedure was centralized was not disputed.

TEACHERS HOLD 'INSTITUTE'

What school children plan, do and say is significant in teaching, Dr. L. H. Wagenhorst, director of the training staff of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, told 100 teachers meeting last night at the "institute substitute" in Bellevue High School.

Dr. Wagenhorst discussed modern teaching methods. He added:

Members of the Slippery Rock school staff conducted a number of sectional meetings, which attracted teachers from McKees Rocks, Avalon, Ben Avon, Emsworth, Ross Township, Sewickley and West View.

J. Nelson Mowls, superintendent of Bellevue schools, and E. N. Schenkel, principal of the Bellevue High School, presided.

"'Trade-wind' conjures spice-laden shores, the West Indies, and 'Thessaly' the mysteries of Greece. 'Stallion' is vitality. 'Crystal' is mystic and romantic."

The resolution also urged that the appointee should agree to stay in the Juvenile Court the remainder of the term. Rotation of judges was cited as the greatest deficiency in the juvenile branch by A. L. Wills, superintendent of the Juvenile Detention Home, who addressed the meeting.

WALKER GAINS WEIGHT, LOSES HUMOR

International News Service.

According to local dieticians, who are among the few to get a word with him, the ex-Mayor rarely makes a crack and catches jokes only on the upbound now.

Contrary to the old-time saying that a fat man is always jolly, with every hollow that fills out in Jimmy's cheeks, a deeper hole is sunk in his funnybone.

Even Frank Scully, who is to help him with his memoirs, is looking anxious and understood to be counseling the former Mayor to "lay off the early to bed, early to rise racket and get back to the night life."

Walker himself refuses to say anything about his proposed literary effort, but it is understood he and his assistant, accompanied by Betty Compton and probably her mother, will move into the Alps in the near future and hide out for at least two months, while writing.

Walker at present is leading a sedate, easy-going life. Up at eight he plays a round or two of golf every morning after an American breakfast. He is always accompanied by Betty, who acts as his caddy.

Lunching quietly in the hotel with Betty and her mother, he drives around in the afternoon, or plays golf. He dines in a different restaurant every night. But the hotel staff says he is always back in bed by 10 o'clock.

That the greatest problem in the world today is to find some way by which a human race can get on together effectually and not kill each other in the process, was the basis of an address on "Devil Take the Hindmost," by the Rev. The talk was the main feature of the annual Christmas party and dinner program.

TOTAL OF DEER KILL SMALL

HARRISBURG, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Big-game hunters laid aside their guns last night, camp fires were extinguished and cabins and lodges padlocked for the winter as the 1932 season ended.

Generally, it was more of a success from the viewpoint of the hunted than from that of the hunters.

Where bears gather—if they do—there will be a kindly feeling toward the game commission for the 15-day season, shortened and terminated at the start of the deer period. The casualties among the bruin family were reduced materially by this conservation move. The kill, from indications, will show the 50 per cent reduction the commission looked for from the totals of the last three years.

In the deer herd, the does were protected by a closed season; the antlered bucks took good care of themselves. Reports from the camps and the discussions of hunters indicate the kill was light, compared with that of recent seasons.

DEATH SUSPECT HUNTED HERE

Pittsburgh police today reported they were searching for Leslie Mauer, alias Norman Leslie, 32, of Pittsburgh, in connection with the murder of a man and the wounding of three others and a woman in a speakeasy holdup in Detroit Monday.

Mauer was one of a quartet that invaded the speakeasy, police here were informed by Inspector William J. Collins, of Detroit.

The Detroit officers said Mauer was formerly associated with Harry Fleischer, Detroit underworld character, who was questioned in the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Mauer is believed by local police to be Leslie Maurer, alias Bruce Vernon, who was returned to Pittsburgh from Detroit in April, 1927, and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for the holdup of the East End Republican Club.

$15,000 HOLDUP SUSPECT HELD

Morris Kominsky, 31, of McKeesport, was held in the county jail today, suspected of having been one of two bandits who slugged Joseph Urban and forced his wife to open up a safe from which they took $10,000 in cash and diamonds valued at $5,000 last June, according to county detectives.

The pair gained entrance to the home by posing as furniture polish salesmen. Urban, ill in bed, was slugged and his wife bound to a piano with adhesive tape after she had opened the safe. Louis Bartha, a neighbor, hearing Urban's cries, entered the house and was tied to a table.

Kominsky was committed to jail yesterday by Alderman A. C. Marcus, of McKeesport, on charges of robbery and assault and battery. The cash and jewelry had not been recovered.

All in a Day

—By Mark Hellinger—

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA.—If you are one of those people who regard Arabs, Bedouins, caravans and North Africa in a romantic light, it would be wise for you to skip this column. Previous to my arrival here, my knowledge of this section of the world had been drawn from romantic novels and the motion picture films of the late Rudolph Valentino and the tardy Rex Ingram. It had all boiled down to a question of "sheik and ye shall find."

Oh, gentlemen, what a disappointment! I had looked forward to cloudless skies, handsome men and mysterious veiled beauties who would captivate the soul with one purple glance. And what do I find? Plenty of rain. Ugly men whose only occupation is to spend the day scratching flies—to be polite—from their whiskers. And a carload of dumpy dames who wouldn't get past the doorman in a chorus for a tenth-rate burlesque show.

Perhaps I'm a trifle harsh in these statements. There must be any number of cultured people in this city, and there is unquestionably plenty of wealth in many sections. But you must remember that I've been here but two days—and what I've seen thus far has been the worst and not the best. Trust Hellinger to see that.

As you doubtless know, Tunis is a French colony. It was a gift to France in years gone by—and it's a first cousin to a gift of a Christmas tie that you hate like the devil to wear. You don't particularly want it, but there it is. And to keep peace in the family, you wear it now and then.

France has a definite problem in Tunis. Not nearly as great as England has in India, but a perplexing problem just the same. The Arabs, who form far and away the greatest part of the population of the large colony of Tunis, are none too fond of the French rule. They object to taxation because they do not understand it. And there is a continual murmur of unrest that even the casual observer must always sense.

Perhaps the situation will be a trifle easier to understand when I tell you that the average Arab of today lives in exactly the same fashion as his forefathers lived in the countless generations that have gone by. He does not understand the outside world because he does not want to understand it.

He has his own customs, his own methods of living and his own ideas of what constitutes right and wrong. Practically any American will listen to those ideas and feel instinctively that there is plenty wrong with them.

The Frenchman who understands his Tunis is very philosophical about the entire thing.

"The Arab is the Arab," he says, "the same as the Frenchman is the Frenchman and the German is the German. We govern them and we can tell them that such and such a thing is best for their health and cleanliness. But if we attempt to enforce our statements, we cannot possibly ever hope to get anywhere.

"Were we to go directly into the lowest of the Arab sections and try to change living conditions, we would have terrible violence upon our hands. We know the filth that exists. We know it only too well. But the Arab is content as he is. He says it was good enough for his forefathers thousands of years ago, and it's good enough for him today. And there the matter rests.

Perhaps you would care to suggest something that might remedy the entire situation in a few moments. If you can, you are far wiser than we are—and we have spent fortunes in years of research. Would you care to say anything?"

You must reply in the negative . . .

I do hope all this stuff doesn't bore you. I find a great deal of interest in it, but perhaps that's because I'm actually on the ground. I'd better switch to something that has a little more life to it. The Arab system of marriage, for instance. Or the fact that the three greatest evils in Tunis are the filth, the drinking of tea and usury.

About the filth, you know already. About the drinking of tea—and certainly we don't consider that an evil—you may require a few words of explanation. The Arabs do not drink tea as we drink it. Instead of putting a few leaves into a cup of water, they reverse the process. They put a few drops of water into a pound of tea, squash the result in order to get the very last drop—and then drink the stuff as is.

The junk is then a bitter and highly distasteful mixture, but the Arabs in the lower quarters have grown to love it. They drink it down at a gulp and, strangely enough, it's the only drink that will get them completely drunk. They go daffy on this mixture, and the French have had a devil of a time curtailing the stuff. If we in America couldn't stop hard liquor, can you imagine what difficulties the French are having with tea?

We come now to the usury problem and, if you think that isn't tough to solve, you don't know us North Africans. In the first place, there is no one who really knows who owns a piece of land. If a great-grandfather was in a beneficent mood, he willed his land to a certain mosque without telling anyone about it.

If not, the land went to the children and the children's children. And since every Arab has the right to marry as many wives as he can support, it's a serious question which children's children are whose children's children.

At the present moment, the French are willing to lend money for farming purposes to those Arabs who wish to benefit by the ruling. But that also breeds trouble. For the Arab has no realization of the meaning of a loan. He considers every loan a gift. And if the government gives him 5,000 francs with which to buy farming implements, he very promptly visits the market-place and invests in the loudest jewels he can find.

All of which brings us to usury. When the Arab finds that he is broke and cannot afford to buy the implements he promised to get, he immediately visits the usurer and gets the necessary loan on his property. He also considers that money as a gift, but can you imagine what happens when he puts his thumbprint on a bit of paper to show that he has borrowed the money and that it must be paid back in a set period of time?

The French government attempts to straighten the thing out. It does fairly well until a bird pops up with a piece of paper which states that, through great-grandpa's will, the entire property belonged to a religious combination in the first place. Then the fun begins.

Lovely, eh? I'll bet the government would swap Tunis for Peggy Joyce any day in the week. She wouldn't be half as hard to handle . . . .

DEBATERS GIVE TO CHARITY

Judge M. A. Musmanno today had backed up his argument that man's humane instincts are evidence of his immortality by giving to charity his share of the proceeds of last Monday's debate with Clarence Darrow.

The judge turned over the $254.84 fee he received for the debate to the afternoon newspapers. Half of the amount, given to the Sun-Telegraph, was given to the Welfare Fund for distribution.

Darrow, the agnostic, who argued man does not possess a soul, gave a part of his fee also for charity. The remainder of the proceeds were distributed by the afternoon papers for Christmas charity.

COLD BUILDING IRKS JUDGE

Judges, court attaches and witnesses in court cases shivered today. Judge F. P. Patterson said he and other judges had complained of the cold in the building. He said:

"It is false economy not to heat the building properly. The Commissioners have spent $7,000 fixing up a room for themselves, but there are big holes in the rug in my chambers, where I must meet visiting jurists."

Two of the visiting judges were stricken with colds while presiding at murder trials. Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, completed a trial and then went home. Judge Patterson accepted the jury's verdict today.

Judge R. P. Sherwood, of York County, returned to court today in anticipation of a verdict in a murder trial and then returned to his hotel.

HAVEN IN CITY GIVES 16,000 NEW START

Sixteen thousand men have walked from prison gates to freedom to find, at this parting of the ways, a haven in Pittsburgh. It is the Parting of the Ways Home at 216 East Stockton avenue, believed to be the only place in the world where prison discharge papers gain men admittance.

Here crooked men are set straight, with no questions asked. Jobs are obtained for them when possible. All are fed and clothed, and given lodging until they are prepared to go their way.

This is fulfillment of the dream of the late Rollo H. McBride, founder of the home, and released prisoners throughout the country have been welcomed here since 1914. In 1932, 827 men were received at the home.

From a humble beginning, the institution has reached a place of prestige in welfare work, although it continues to be maintained solely by voluntary contributions. It numbers among its officers and directors prominent business and professional men.

Although its prestige has increased, the attitude toward the unfortunate ex-convict has not altered. Its object is reclamation of the man leaving prison without a home, friends or means of support.

The 1932 report of the institution discloses positions were obtained for 64 men; 763 were otherwise assisted; 7,167 obtained lodging; 42,570 meals were served; 435 were clothed and 108 re-entered church.

'Hill' Man Convicted By Murder Jury

He was convicted of shooting to death Russell Palmer, 35, Negro, of 1840 Rose street, August 27 in the apartment of Maud Wilson, 29, of 1901 Wylie avenue.

Front, side, rear—inside, outside—everything about this new car is advanced, improved, exciting. Longer wheelbase makes it the biggest automobile in today's low-price field. The latest principle of car design—"Aer-Stream" styling—gives it a totally different, ultra-modern appearance—as fine-looking as anything ever introduced at any price. Chevrolet is able to do all this—because Chevrolet has the advantage of being the world's largest builder of cars for 4 out of the past 6 years. Chevrolet builds cars in greater volume. Chevrolet buys materials in greater quantities. Chevrolet does everything on a bigger, more economical scale. Hence, Chevrolet is in a position to provide a better car at a better price than could possibly issue from any other source! Come, see this Great American Value for 1933. Parties Enliven Westminster Campus

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 16.—With the Christmas recess scheduled to start Saturday, the calendar of events at Westminster College is replete with parties, carol singing and other activities.

Monday night saw John Stein, baritone, and company, in an artist course number in the chapel. The French Club met Tuesday at the home of Miss Elizabeth Stewart. A candlelight Christmas service was held Wednesday evening by the Y. W. C. A. in the college chapel.

These were all preceded by a most impressive Christmas service Sunday evening under direction of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. James Jacobsen and Herbert Smith were the men leaders, while Isabelle Kildoo and Emily Parker were the women leaders. Carols and songs by the girls' chorus, directed by Miss Florence Thomas, and carols and songs by the mixed chapel choir, directed by Alan B. Davis, featured this service.

Last night a community carol sing was held on the South terrace of the college campus around a lighted Christmas tree under the direction of Miss Florence Mae Thomas, Donald Cameron, and Alan B. Davis. Selections by the girls' chorus and the mixed choir, as well as group singing featured the program. Instrumental music by a sextet of wind instruments, and solos were also on the program.

A number of Christmas parties were held by sororities later in the evening. Kappa Delta held its party in the sorority suite in the Hillside Thursday. The committee in charge included Miss Mary Lib Boland, Sharon; Miss Grace Kelly, West Middlesex, and Miss Lillian Baird, Carnegie. Mrs. J. A. Swindler and Miss Nandean Love were guests.

A group of faculty members enjoyed a Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Cordray on Tuesday. On Wednesday evening, the varsity basketball team journeyed to Sharon to play the opening game of the pre-season campaign.

Pitt Glee Clubs Carol at Yule Festival

The eighth annual Yuletide festival of University of Pittsburgh was held last night in the Schenley ballroom. The program consisted of carol singing by the combined men's and women's glee clubs and a Biblical pageant, "The Three Wise Men," which was followed by a formal dance.

The play was translated from the German version by E. F. L. Raeshcen, head of the modern language department, and was directed by Carl Cass. Charlotte Walker portrayed the Virgin Mary. Eugene Berkhart, Fred Hilton and Thomas Savage impersonated the three wise men.

At Sally Gibson's coming out tea Friday in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, her mother, Mrs. John Gibson, Jr., will have as her aides Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy, Mrs. Frank B. Gordon, Mrs. William S. Moorhead, Mrs. William E. Schoyer, Mrs. R. Wellford Tyler and Mrs. T. Coleman Ward.

To Wed Feb. 25

After the holiday season is over, social interest will not die out, for there'll be a wedding or two to anticipate.

One of the most interesting will be that of vivacious young Jane Irene Marshall, daughter of the Charles D. Marshalls, who has chosen February 25 for the date she'll meet Aiken W. Fisher, son of the Chester G. Fishers, at the altar.

Jane has decided on a small wedding with only members of the two families attending. And the ceremony will take place in the Marshall home with the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards, of the Church of the Ascension, officiating.

The mother of the bride-to-be is a cousin of Mrs. W. Harry Brown and Mrs. Edward Heaton Brainard.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

When she was a little girl visiting her grandparents, W. S. Siviter and the late Mrs. Siviter, Pierrie Pryor, now a child golf champion, startled the family when she insisted on saying, every time she was introduced to anybody, "Hot dog, hot dog."

When Pierrie, who is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. James Chambers Pryor, of Boston, formerly stationed in the South, returned to her home, her Negro mammy asked her if she had "minded her manners," and done as she was told.

Pierrie's mother learned at last that the mammy had taught the child to say, "How do, how do," when she met her mother's friends.

And it sounded the same to the child as her school boy brother's slang.

They look alike: Mrs. W. Edgar Reed and Mrs. Harry J. Miller—they're sisters. And Mrs. A. P. Brill and Mrs. William F. Hill.

Mrs. Hill is a needlepoint expert, by the way, and does it more rapidly than anybody I've ever seen. And her blonde, curly-headed daughter, Eleanor, knitted a dress in three weeks.

Juniors to Give Yule Affairs Next Week

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

There's a perfect epidemic of junior holiday affairs scheduled for next week. The Ingram Juniors are to have their Christmas party in Firemen's Association Hall Monday evening. After a brief business session Mrs. J. S. Thomas will introduce Mrs. George T. Spettigue, who will read Percival Wilde's "Toy Shop" and the club choral which will sing a group of carols. Bridge will round out the evening. Toys and candy for local welfare distribution will be brought by the girls.

The Dormont Juniors will have their party the following night with the choral caroling under the direction of Mrs. Robert Vroom and "Babouscka," a play, being given by Miss Phyllis Irons, Miss Betty Yellig, Miss Lona Stewart, Miss Marion Underwood, Mrs. E. L. Quinn and Miss Eleanor Wilson. The monthly book review will be given by Miss Gladys Campbell and the current topic by Mrs. J. R. McKee.

Monday has been chosen by the Sheraden Juniors, too, and again the club choral will play a prominent part in the evening's enjoyment. Bridge will be the chief diversion.

Aspinwall Woman's Club Gives Food for Needy

A history of carols, reading from the Scriptures and carol singing made up the interesting program given yesterday at the "Old-Fashioned Christmas" of the Aspinwall Woman's Club. Food stuffs were donated for the community's poor.

The Christmas program of carols and tableaux which the evening department gave on Monday will be repeated next Wednesday evening for the club husbands and families.

CANCER 'CURE' WORK HIDDEN

By CHARLES FLICK
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—Renewed efforts were made by two German scientists today to keep secret progress of their cancer treatment experiment, exclusively revealed by International News Service on Tuesday, in which a 2,500,000-volt X-ray was used upon a patient suffering from the disease in a hopelessly advanced stage.

The patient, Heinrich Wanke, 55-year-old farmhand, was moved secretly to a top-floor room in the private women's clinic, to which he was taken after voluntarily subjecting himself to the revolutionary treatment.

Although the patient was being kept under lock and key, it was reported that his condition was favorable. Indications were that the scientists expected some time to elapse before definite results of the experiment could be determined.

Dr. Ludwig Halberstaedter, of the Berlin Radium Institute, one of the two scientists who carried out the experiment, was indignant over the fact that it had become public.

DOZEN LAWYERS HOAXED BY GIRL

MEDIA, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Glamorous young women seeking divorces are viewed with suspicion by Media lawyers these days—especially when they do their seeking by telephone.

Last Sunday more than a dozen lawyers went journeying through unpleasant weather conditions to their offices. Each of the barristers, so the story goes, had made a Sunday morning appointment with the owner of a troubled voice to discuss divorce proceedings, and each waited in vain for the prospective client.

Now; the "girl with the seductive voice" is much sought after in legal circles, but romance, it is said, doesn't figure in the quest.

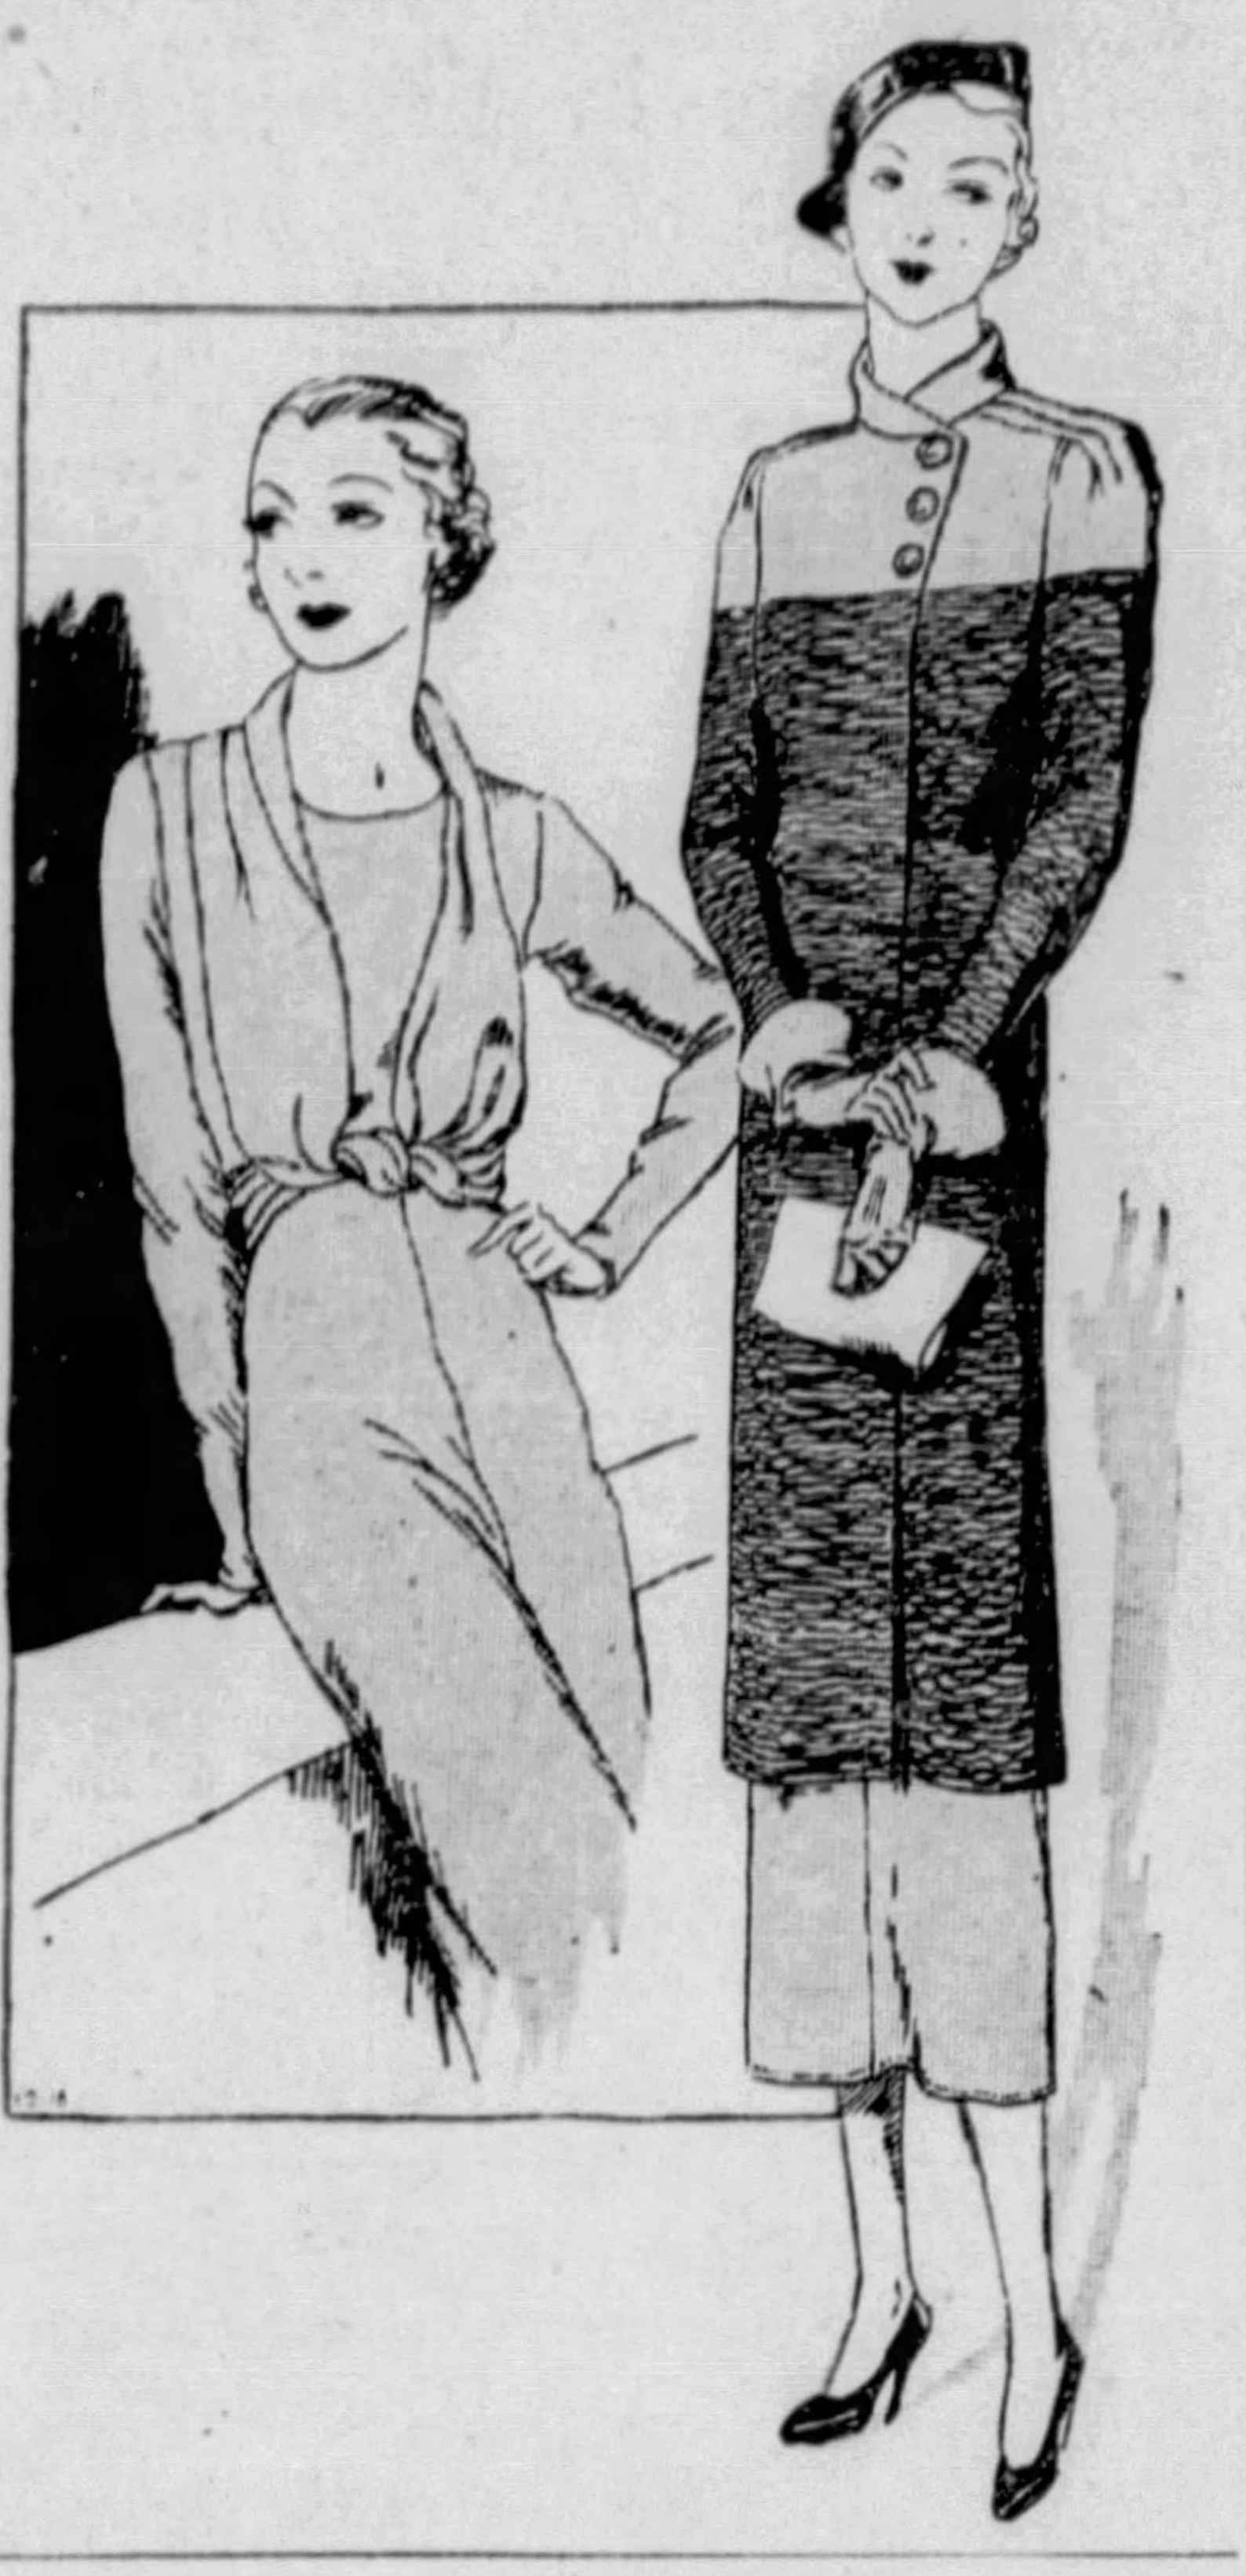
Regis Snyder Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Regis Snyder, 25, who died Wednesday at his home, 1511 Centennial avenue, McKeesport, will be held tomorrow morning in St. Peter's Church, McKeesport. He was a son of W. P. Snyder, superintendent of light and power of the National Tube Company, McKeesport, and former president of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers. He leaves his parents, three sisters and four brothers. Burial will be made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Rich Divorce Jury Has 4 Bachelors

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(Universal.)—Four bachelors and eight married men were selected today as jurors in the divorce action of Freddie Rich against his wife, Peggy Lawton Rich, former Follies girl. Rich, a musical director, charges misconduct with John L. De Ruyter, society man.

NEW COLLECTION FEATURES USE OF BOTH SIDES OF FABRIC



—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Elsa Schiaparelli, the young Rue de la Paix fashion designer, has taught the style world that there are two sides to every fabric. Her recent collection of advance 1933 clothes proved it. The majority of the models in her fashion collection made use of both sides of their fabric in ways that gave the appearance that twice as many as the actual fabrics had been used.

* * *

TO ALL appearances, four different fabrics in two different shades of red were used to fashion the coat, skirt and blouse pictured in today's sketches. Actually, the entire outfit is made from one piece of wool and one piece of silk.

* * *

THE WOOL is used for the coat. The yoke portion shows one face of the material—a soft warm red, which Schiaparelli names one of her hyacinth colors; the lower portion of both coats and sleeves is the reverse side of the fabric, which is a much darker and brighter red, and which has a roughened surface. The buttons and metal buttonholes, new versions of the clip fastening, are of copper.

* * *

THE SEPARATE skirt is made of the wool, with the lighter red and smoother surface in evidence. The blouse is of crepe satin, with the satin side out. It is designed in classic simplicity, with long, rather fitted sleeves and a neckline which marks a curve just below the base of the throat. The satin side of the fabric is again in evidence in the scarf, which crosses the back of the neck, hangs to the waist, where it ties and circles the waist outside the skirt and below the upper edge of the skirt's waistline. At the back the scarf turns about and displays its crepe side, which gives the appearance of a slightly darker and softer red than the satin side.

The club meeting scheduled for Tuesday, December 27, has been canceled and the next regular session will take place January 10.

HOME LIFE PLEA BY MRS. EDISON

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 16.—(Universal)—A plea for more real home life for children was made by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, widow of the inventor, speaking yesterday to the Parent-Teacher Association of Gregory School, here. She said:

"One of the great failings of our times is the lack of respect and irreverence of children toward their parents. To remedy that, parents must be better, so that children will look up to them. Let us omit some of our card playing and gadding about and become true mothers.

"The school must remain as assistant to the parent. Girls ought to learn how to cook and sew at home from their mothers rather than at school."

FLU
and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and it usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

CHILDREN'S FRUIT CAKE—1 cupful brown sugar, well packed; ½ cupful dark corn syrup, 1 cupful sour milk, 1½ cups whole wheat flour, 1 teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cloves, 1½ cups raisins (dates may be used), ¼ cup chopped nuts.

Combine the sugar, syrup and sour milk and beat together with egg beater. Sift flour, spices, soda and salt together, add the raisins and nuts. Combine with the first mixture and stir well. May be baked in one pan or in two smaller pans. Put into a 375-degree oven for 5 minutes, then reduce to 300 degree. Bake one hour. Increase heat for 10 minutes to brown. It must be baked slowly or there will be a depression in the center. This may also be used as a pudding by reheating and using any good pudding sauce.

* * *

SWEETBREAD AND CUCUMBER SALAD—2 pairs sweetbreads, 2 medium sized cucumbers, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 pimentos, cut fine, 1 cup mayonnaise.

Soak sweetbreads in cold water for ½ hour. Put into boiling, salted water to which 1 tablespoon of vinegar has been added. Cook slowly for 20 minutes. Drain and plunge into cold water to keep them white and firm. When cold remove the membrane. Cut the sweetbreads into small pieces. Peel and dice the cucumbers. Mix sweetbreads, cucumbers and pimentos. Add the salt and the mayonnaise.

* * *

FROZEN CHEESE SALAD—1½ pounds cream cheese, salt to taste, ½ pint whipping cream, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 package gelatin, 1 small bottle marachino cherries, ⅛ pound nuts.

Mash the cheese, soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes, then add a little hot water to dissolve it. Add this to the cheese mixture and mix thoroughly with the whipped cream. Line mold with cherries cut in half—placing ½ cherry and a few nuts alternately in the mold or make a design. Add mixture and let stand in the refrigerator 3 to 4 hours until firm. Serve on a ring of pineapple with the following sauce: 1½ cups pineapple juice, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 egg. Boil the pineapple juice with lemon juice and flour. Add egg well beaten, cook until smooth and thick, cool and serve.

* * *

GARDEN ROAST—1½ pounds flank steak, 2 tablespoons fat, 6 medium sized peeled potatoes, 2 cups peeled white onions, 1 bunch scraped sliced carrots, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup boiling water.

Stuffing as follows:

Fry 1 minced onion in 2 tablespoons fat, add 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons warm water, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon thyme.

Spread steak with the stuffing, roll and tie up. Brown in fat. Put in baking pan, add seasonings and water and bake in 325 oven for 1 hour. Add vegetables, bake until all are tender. Remove cover last 10 minutes to brown vegetables.

* * *

NUT BREAD—¾ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Beat egg until light, add sugar gradually, add milk alternately with flour which has been sifted three or four times with the baking powder and salt, add chopped nuts and melted butter, mix thoroughly. Put mixture in a loaf pan, let stand 20 minutes before baking. Bake 40 minutes in a slow oven.

* * *

POTATO UNIQUE—Four cups mashed potatoes, ½ cup cold chopped meat, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, ¼ pound sliced bacon, 1 egg, bread crumbs.

Add seasoning, reserving one-half the parsley, to the potato and mix well. If dry add a little milk. To the meat add the remaining parsley, one-eighth teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Flatten out a large spoonful of potato and lay a teaspoon of meat in the center. Fold the potato around the meat and form a roll about three inches long, being sure the meat is entirely covered. Roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat until golden brown. Fry the bacon carefully. Place the rolls with a strip of bacon on each, on a platter garnished with parsley.

* * *

CHILLI CON CARNE—1½ pounds ground meat, 1 package spaghetti, 1 can red kidney beans, 1 can tomato puree, 1 large onion, salt, pepper and paprika, 2 tablespoons fat.

First cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender, drain off the water and run cold water through the spaghetti. Put diced onion in fat, add meat and brown, add beans, spaghetti, tomato puree and season to taste. Let simmer until all is thoroughly blended. Serve very hot.

* * *

PLANKED HAMBURG STEAK—1½ pounds chuck or round of beef, ¼ pound pork, grind meat and season with 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon onion juice.

Mix and form into flat cake to fit on a plank. Heat heavy skillet, put steak in with a little butter and sear on one side. Have plank heating and when piping hot, brush with salad oil. Put steak on the plank, seared side down. Place under broiler and finish cooking. Serve from the plank with border of well seasoned noodles sprinkled with cheese and the entire blank put under broiler flame to melt the cheese. Garnish with vegetables to be served with the steak.

* * *

PRINCE OF WALES CAKE—Sift together 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves; cream together ½ cup shortening, 2 beaten eggs and 1 cup sour milk with ½ teaspoon soda added. Combine these ingredients and add 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups flour, ½ cup each raisins and chopped nuts.

Bake 45 minutes in loaf pan in 375 oven.

Ice as desired.

* * *

CHRISTMAS NOODLE PUDDING—2 packages broad noodles, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup melted butter, ½ cup chopped pecans, ¼ cup quince or other jelly, ½ cup cracker crumbs, 1½ cups milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender, about 15 minutes. Drain. Line casserole with cracker crumbs, add 1 layer noodles, 1 layer chopped nuts; sprinkle with ¼ cup butter. Add thin layer of quince jelly, repeat until ingredients are used, having crumbs on top layer. Beat eggs separately and add 1 tablespoon sugar to each egg, add the yolk to the milk, which has been warmed; stir and pour over pudding. Top with meringue made of the beaten whites and sugar. Bake in moderate oven 40 minutes. Serve with plain cream.

* * *

VEGETABLE SALAD SUPREME—1 package gelatin, 1 teaspoonful salt, ¼ cup sugar, 2½ cups ginger ale, 1½ cups chopped celery, beets, peas, carrots, string beans or any desired vegetable combination.

Soak gelatin in ½ cup cold water and dissolve over boiling water. Add all ingredients, pour into individual molds and chill. Serve with mayonnaise. A slice of hard cooked egg placed in the bottom of each mold adds to the appearance of the salad.

* * *

BLITZ TORTE—½ cup sugar, ½ cup butter, 4 egg yolks, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder.

Put in layer cake pans, first well buttered, top with the beaten egg whites to which one cup sugar and one-fourth teaspoon cream tartar have been added. Sprinkle with nuts and cinnamon and bake. Put

WIFE ENDS MR. DOW'S MORNING GROUCH!

YOU CAN'T FOOL A MAN ABOUT SYRUP! THEY WANT THE REAL LOG CABIN TASTE!

"NOW don't laugh when I tell you how I changed my husband's disposition. I simply gave him hot cakes regularly three times a week, covered with Log Cabin Syrup!

"You bet! When Harry pours that rich, golden syrup, with the tantalizing maple fragrance, over a steaming stack of pancakes—why he just naturally breaks into a smile.

"Harry says there's nothing like Log Cabin for the genuine, old-time maple flavor . . . and I've discovered something else too!

"I've found that my pancakes seem actually lighter and more tender when they're served with Log Cabin Syrup!"

★ ★ ★

And here's the reason, Mrs. Dow! Log Cabin Syrup has just the right body to really saturate pancakes with delicious maple flavor. And as a result the cakes simply fall apart at the touch of a fork. Try it for yourself—and see!

To achieve this consistency and flavor, we use three distinct kinds of sugar. Delicious Vermont and Canadian maple to give that delicate, mellow maple tang. Then—just the right amount of fine cane sugar to give that smooth, penetrating consistency that makes pancakes served with Log Cabin seem so amazingly light and tender.

Give your husband hot cakes and Log Cabin Syrup for breakfast tomorrow! A product of General Foods.

POPPY SEED CAKE—2 cups sugar, ½ cup butter, yolks 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk and 1 cup milk in which soak 1 cup poppy seed, 3½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt.

First cream 2 cups sugar and butter, then add yolks of eggs. Work until blended and smooth. Then add milk, 1 cup poppy seed which has been soaked overnight in the second cup milk. Then add baking powder and flour. Work until smooth. Then add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Fold in beaten egg whites and beat until smooth. Bake in angel cake tin for 50 minutes in 350 oven.

* * *

PAMONA PUNCH—Make a thin syrup, using four cups water to one cup sugar and boil for 20 minutes. Add 1 quart of apple cider, the juice of 2 lemons and 2 oranges. A thin slice of lemon in each glass adds much to its appearance. This punch may be sealed in clean, hot jars and will keep indefinitely and is handy to have on hand. Pamona Punch is delicious frozen to frappe consistency.

* * *

THE ALL-AMERICA PLATE—1 teaspoon celery salt or 4 tablespoons diced celery, salt, 1 pound of ground beef or sausage (form in cakes), ½ cup tomato catsup, minced parsley or green pepper.

Brown the meat cakes, place onto a serving dish and set aside to keep warm. Put two tablespoons of fat in the pan. Cook the diced celery in the fat. Add the tomato catsup at once to the fat and season with salt, pepper and celery salt.

In the meantime, dice a dish of leftover potatoes of any kind, put into a baking dish with enough cream to cover, add salt, pepper, paprika and butter. If milk is used in place of cream add a sprinkle of flour to the top before baking. This is done to thicken the potatoes.

When ready to serve place the meat cakes around the potatoes mounded in the center of a serving platter and pour the tomato sauce over parsley or green peppers to create a color scheme.

POTATO AND FRANKFURTER SALAD — 9 frankfurters, French dressing, 8 medium-sized cold cooked potatoes, diced, 1 small onion, peeled and minced, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ½ cup diced celery, 6 medium-sized tomatoes.

Prick the frankfurters well and cook them in boiling water to cover or steam them until tender. Then drain, skin them if necessary, and cut in thirds crosswise. Chill well, add ¼ cup of French dressing and let stand ½ hour. Combine the diced potatoes, minced onion, chopped parsley, and diced celery. Add enough well-seasoned French dressing to moisten well—about ⅓ cup. Chill thoroughly, then heap in a mound in the center of a cold platter. Arrange the frankfurters around the potato salad, and then group thin slices of tomato which have been sprinkled with salt and pepper, at the ends of the platter. Serves six.

YEAST COFFEE CAKE—1 cup milk, ½ cup butter, 1½ cakes yeast, 1 egg, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 cups flour.

Scald the milk and let cool until lukewarm. Dissolve yeast and 1 tablespoon of sugar. Beat in 1½ cups of flour. Let rise until double in bulk, about 1 hour. Cream butter and sugar and add to sponge. Beat salt in with egg and pour into mixture. Mix raisins with 1 cup flour before adding and beat in sufficient flour to make a thick cake batter. Pour into greased pans and cover. Let rise until double in bulk. Before baking, sprinkle top with 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 teaspoons flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Bake in moderate oven for 50 minutes.

Cranberry Is a Valuable And Wholesome Food

This Food, Associated With Holiday Festivities, Is Increasing in Popularity.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

Of new foods there is no end. I thought of this the other day when I was pleasantly surprised by being served a cranberry juice cocktail. Of course I refer to a nonalcoholic preparation. In it the flavor of the cranberry was distinct and refreshing. It brought to mind memories of holiday festivities.

The cranberry is known to history. The Indians introduced it to the Pilgrims. It had its place in the first Thanksgiving dinner. Since then it has had an indispensable part in the Thanksgiving Day celebration.

The cranberry is a valuable and wholesome fruit. I am glad to remark its increasing popularity. Now it appears on other days than Thanksgiving.

It was not until 1850 that this fruit was successfully cultivated. Since then, we are told, more money has been made and lost in the cultivation of cranberries than in any other small fruit. When the cranberry crop is good the profit to the producer is larger than that obtained from any other fruit crop.

IDEAL FOR JELLY

The greatest crops of cranberries come from Massachusetts, New Jerse and Wisconsin. There are two important varieties, the small and the large. Many species of the large cranberry are grown. The dark colored berries are generally considered the best.

The fruit contains a large percentage of "pectin." This is the jellying substance found in certain fruits. Because there is so much in the cranberry, it is ideal for jelly.

Not only is it used for jelly, but also for making sauce and pie. It is generally served with meat and fish.

The juice served as a cranberry cocktail is becoming increasingly popular. It is used singly or in combination with other fruit juices.

The cranberry contains small amounts of the food elements. It makes up for this deficiency by its delicious flavor and tempting appearance.

The tart flavor of the berry stimulates appetite. The seeds provide roughage and serve to produce a mild laxative effect.

Cranberry juice contains sugars and important mineral substances. Like the citrus fruits, too, cranberries are rich in vitamin C. Cranberries are regarded as an "anti-scorbutic food." That is, it is a food which will prevent scurvy, which is a vitamin deficiency disease. It is caused by a lack of vitamin C in the diet.

I do not refer to the old-fashioned scurvy of sailing vessels and poor homes. It is the hidden scurvy, indicated by a lack of energy.

COOK RAPIDLY

Cranberries may be canned, dried and preserved, or used in jams or jellies. Recently, dried cranberries have appeared on the market. The delicious cranberry sauce is now available all year round.

Many of us like something tart with the chief meal of the day. A dish of cranberry sauce just answers the purpose. You may be sure it is a wholesome and delicious dish.

Picture Entangles Hunter With Law

CHICAGO, Dec. 16—(AP.)—William M. Jones had admitted today it was a mistake to call up a newspaper photographer and ask him to take a picture of the 125 quail he had shot.

Game Warden George Webster saw the picture in the paper and hastened to inform Jones that 36 quail is the legal hunting limit. And Jones now is liable to a fine of from $25 to $100 for every quail over the limit. Incidentally, Jones exaggerated a bit; there weren't 125 quail, only 76.

FAMOUS AUTHORS ✝ Walsh Salutes Champions In Football Show ✝ ON AIR TONIGHT

Fannie Hurst, R. Hughes Broadcast

Two of America's most famous writers, Fannie Hurst and Rupert Hughes, go on the air tonight.

Riding through the crowded streets of New York's lower East Side, the locale for many of her novels and short stories, Miss Hurst broadcasts her impressions of what she sees—the people, the ramshackle buildings and the twisting alleys—over a coast-to-coast NBC network, with KDKA as the Pittsburgh outlet, tonight at 10:45 o'clock.

Miss Hurst

Mr. Hughes, biographer, novelist and "debunker" of America's heroes, talks on "A Tempest From a Tea Pot" during a broadcast marking the one hundred and fifty-ninth anniversary of the Boston Tea Party, heard over NBC-WCAE at 11:15 tonight. Broadcasting from Los Angeles, Hughes reveals many new historical points, the result of extensive researches into American history.

A salute to America's gridiron champions of the season comprises the final program of the 1932 All-America Football Show series, heard over CBS-WJAS tonight from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Harry G. Kipke, head coach of the University of Michigan's Big Ten champions, is Christy Walsh's interview guest. Walsh also discusses the All-America football team, chosen by the All-America Board of Football, which was published exclusively in this district in the Sun-Telegraph.

Program Pointers

Clarence Chamberlin, noted aviator and holder of several flying records, is interviewed by Richard M. Mock, personal engineering representative of Anthony B. Fokker, on the topic, "How Long Does It Take to Learn to Fly?" during a special broadcast over CBS-WJAS at 3:30 today, in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of boys' work, a branch activity in the Y. M. C. A. Another famed flier, Casey Jones, "speed demon" of aviation ever since war days, appears as guest speaker on the Caravan program over KDKA at 5:15.

Mr. Jones

Highlights of the beer hearings held this week before a congressional committee are dramatized on March of Time—WJAS at 8:30. Premier Herriot's plea to the French Chamber of Deputies to pay the war debt installment also is reenacted.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, making her second appearance on Leo Reisman's program, discusses the social scheme of her debutante days as contrasted with that of the present time over WCAE at 9:30.

Miss Morton Reads Tennyson Poems

Two of Tennyson's best known poems, "The Deserted House" and "Lady of Shallot," are highlights of Phyllis Morton's "Stolen Moments" readings on WCAE at 4 today.

Gus Edwards' Test Winner to Sing

Eddie Thompson, lyric tenor, and one of the three winners of Gus Edwards' contest in which more than 2,000 competed, is scheduled as soloist on WCAE tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

Long's Sports Review WCAE Feature

James J. Long, sports columnist of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews recent events in the world of sports during his weekly talk from the studios of WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest news over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., and over WCAE at 2:15 p. m. today. All four broadcasts are listed on both stations tomorrow.

Spitalny Features Movie Songs

Movie songs, including "Tip Toe Through the Tulips," "Paradise," "Sing You Sinners," "Singing in the Rain" and "Pagan Love Song," are featured by Phil Spitalny's instrumental and vocal ensemble on KDKA at 8 tonight.

'Ye Olde Towne Crier' on the Job

HORACE MILLER — HARRY AZINSKY — JOHN FIEDLER

Town Crier Koch and the musicians who will take part in his WCAE broadcast at 6 p. m. tomorrow from a public-observed studio at Kaufmann's. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

-:- Listening In on Radio Gossip -:-

Jane Ace, of "Easy Aces," is one of the first of radio's stars to forward a New Years resolution . . . She resolves not to resolve "because resolutions just go in one year and out the other, anyway" . . . Vaughn de Leath and the Three X Sisters board the S. S. Leviathan this week to participate in a benefit show for Seamen's House, New York home for foreign sailors . . . Versatile? "Red" Ingle plays saxophones, a clarinet and a violin in Ted Weems' Orchestra, sings vocal refrains with that organization and takes part in Jack Benny's skits. It is Red who portrayed Kringelein in Benny's "Grind Hotel" sketch.

Miss de Leath

Have you heard about the saxophone section of Joe Haymes' Orchestra? Saxophonist John Langsford, seven feet tall and grandson of England's tallest man, is flanked on the right by a 265-pounder and on the left by a 110-pounder.

Ted Husing, who spent every Saturday afternoon during the fall perched on the rim of a draughty football stadium without suffering so much as a mild case of the sniffles, is down with the flu.

Freddie Berrens and his orchestra were discovered the other day crawling around one of the CBS studios . . . because a small piece had been chipped from Berrens' prized violin and the maestro had issued the emphatic ultimatum that there'd be no rehearsal until the fragment was found.

May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose have a new theme song—"Just You and I," written by Peter.

Burns and Allen will be featured in two talkies.

Some of Whispering Jack Smith's friends dropped backstage to see the baritone after his act at a New York theater recently. They asked the doorman where he was . . . and that genial gentleman added to their confusion with:

"Smith? Well, the first part of the week he was in Massachusetts, but Wednesday they moved him to Illinois. Right now you'll probably find him either in Texas or with Arnold Johnson in California."

Fast traveler? No—the dressing rooms are just named for different states in that particular house.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

When the Globetrotters go after things, they get them. Today's mail brings the answers to several queries put here a few days ago.

* * *

First and more important in these debt-dallying days we learn that John Bull was a term applied to England by the witty John Arbuthnot in his book discussing Britain's political affairs and that "Uncle Sam" came about when Samuel Wilson, an early government inspector of supplies, stamped his merchandise "E. A.—U. S." The first two initials representing the contractor, Ebenezer Anderson. A workman jokingly remarked that the remaining letters stood for "Uncle Sam." Thank you, Arthur Fleeger, of Arnold, and William Morgan, of Bridgeville.

* * *

The mathematical correspondents include Anna Marie Carroll, of Beechview; Mrs. G. H. Miller, of Corliss Station, and H. B. Bay, of Virginia avenue, who have answered Jon's stock problem—Four cows, 32 sheep and 64 hogs, or 6 cows, 23 sheep and 71 hogs.

* * *

If you have someone whose slumber you particularly want to disturb, ask him this: If you go to town at 15 miles per hour, at what speed must you return to average 30 miles an hour for the round trip? Yes, I thought it was 45 miles an hour, too, when Joe Taylor, of Shadyside, popped the question in this direction. Don't let it get you.

* * *

And you might try Mrs. C. L. Mosey's "depression dessert." Take a bowl of snow; beat an egg. Then mix with two cups of milk, two tablespoons of sugar and a few drops of vanilla and serve right away. Her husband, children and grandad think there's nothing like mother's tasty invention.

* * *

Miss Jenny R., of Uniontown, wants to know why there is no advice to the lovelorn here. All right, Miss Jenny, what's your particular problem?

* * *

Sophie Kerr, the authoress whose new story was dramatized on the radio Wednesday night, is a former Pittsburgh newspaper woman, working on the old Gazette some 25 years ago.

* * *

What's wrong with this idea from a Globe-Trotter who loves his fellow man? When buying small packages, write your name and address on them. It only takes a moment to do that while waiting for the change and then if you drop it some place it may find its way back to you. Mother's little helper, you know.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Spirit of Adventure Is Fine Thing for Youngsters

What about adventure?

Is there something wrong with a kid who craves it, and will it lead him to wreck and ruin?

Jack's mother is desperately afraid there is—and it will; and she can't understand his urge toward it.

"He has a good home," she wails, "and a car. Why can't he be satisfied?"

Dear Miss Robinson:

You seem to know how to handle almost any situation, so perhaps you can help me and give me some sound advice about mine.

I hope that you can, because I am just frantic.

My boy, who is 17, has a craving to get out away from us, and see things. I have two other children who are younger. I treat them all alike, as I love each one dearly.

My boy has graduated from high school, but we have not the means to send him to college, and even if we had he wouldn't care to go. He is not interested in college.

But now he is continually talking of leaving home. He has gone once before with some other chaps, and was gone three weeks. He came back at the end of that time, but he doesn't seem to be satisfied.

We do so want to raise him the right way, and make a man out of him that we will be proud of. But this going away worries me terribly. I am so afraid he might fall in with bad company. He is a good, clean boy now, but he seems sort of adventurous, and is always wanting to see new things, new scenery and the like.

SEEKS ADVENTURE

This thing seems to be troubling many mothers. What can be wrong? He has a nice home. We are good to him. We even got him a car to drive around in and work on. But nothing seems to do any good. He still wants to "go around."

As far as work is concerned, there isn't a job to be had anywhere these hard days, so I don't know what on earth to do. We can't get him any work. Please help me, if you can. I will be watching for your reply.

JACK'S MOTHER.

"What is wrong?" you ask. Not a thing is wrong, my dear. Your boy is just growing into life. He wants to try life for himself, so he wants to go adventuring.

And it would be a sad day for the human race if youth ever lost that spirit of adventuring. Without it there would have been no long, upward climb from savagery. There would have been no Columbus; no Pilgrim Fathers; no discoverers; no conquerors; no reformers; no scientists—no progress.

LEARNING TO LIVE

Dangerous? Of course it is dangerous. But all life is dangerous. Your boy is bound to "fall in with bad company" no matter where he lives or what he does; and the only shield he'll ever have against them is the quality of his own soul—the fine values, the judgment that you've helped him to have.

Just now he is learning to live, and trying to find out what living is. In his way, he is trying to create life. Help him to do that.

If there is no job for him, encourage him to do something, create something, on his own. Give him a workshop where he can make things. Interest him in building something. Quit worrying about him and be a wise and understanding friend. See that he has plenty of fun and company at home, where you can know the youngsters who are his friends.

And don't try to shield him too much. For every human soul has to find itself—has to meet life and learn to live it, on its own.

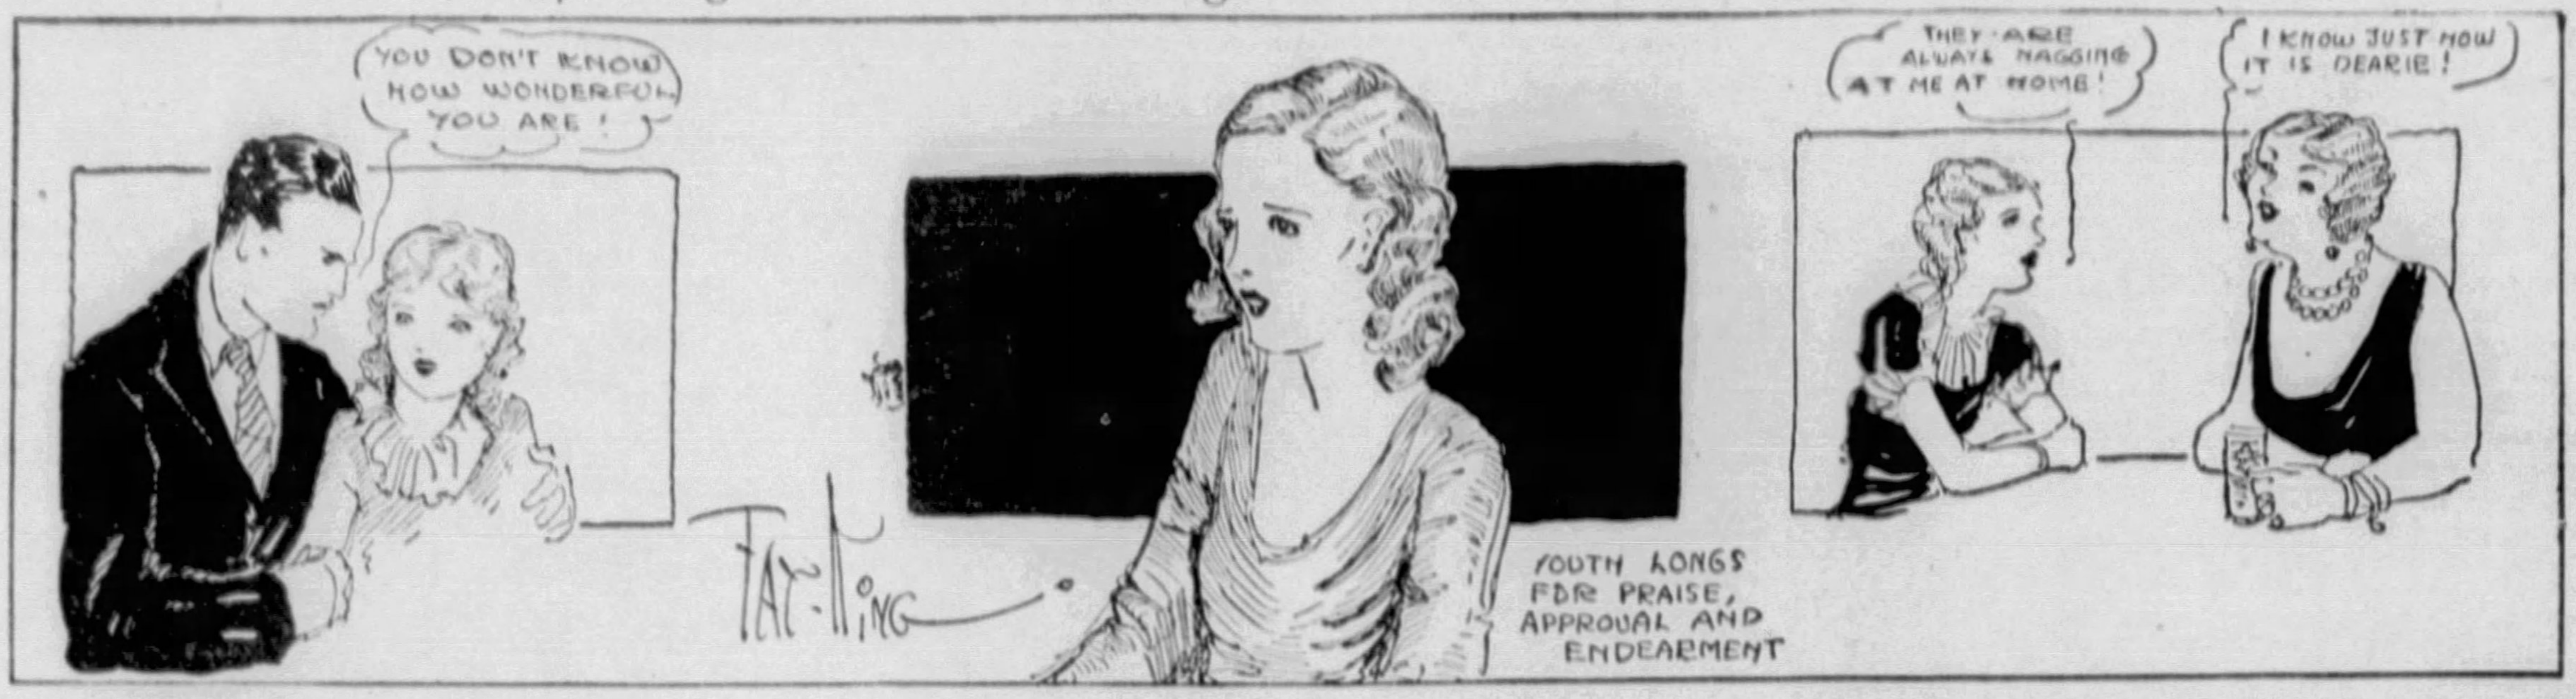
Fay King Warns Youth Against Masked Sordidness of Life



YOU DON'T KNOW HOW WONDERFUL YOU ARE!
FAY-KING
YOUTH LONGS FOR PRAISE, APPROVAL AND ENDEARMENT
THEY ARE ALWAYS NAGGING AT ME AT HOME!
I KNOW JUST HOW IT IS DEARIE!

By FAY KING

Youth has a great capacity for enthusiasm and admiration, approving of all that seems pleasant and seldom looking for flaws or faults.

That is why dangerous places and forbidding associates always assume such a bright, gay, wholesome surface, and like the sugar-coated pill, hide the bitter of evil.

Knowing well how eager youth is for innocent merriment and affection, one never hears anything but endearment and sympathetic encouragement from those who would lure youth into danger.

No girl or boy would seek the sordid of life seeing it as it really is.

It is only because it is so cleverly cloaked and inspires confidence that youth believes it to be good, and is deceived!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Effect of Stress on the Heart

Dr. Copeland

During the last five years there has been a marked increase in the number of sufferers of "angina pectoris". It is found in persons whose occupations require severe mental and nervous strain. I am confident that the greater prevalence of this disease can be traced to the increasing stress and strain of modern life.

Some authorities believe that excessive use of tobacco leads to attacks of angina pectoris. The increase in smoking may possibly account for many of these cases.

The sufferer is suddenly seized with a sharp, agonizing pain over the heart. This attack may occur while walking, sitting or standing still. The pain sometimes passes down the left arm and in rare cases may involve the right arm. Nausea and vomiting occur.

If you have ever witnessed the agony of a sufferer in an attack of angina pectoris, you can appreciate the terrible pain and discomfort of this ailment. The skin becomes gray in color. Cold sweat breaks out on the face. A mild attack wears off within a short time.

Severe attacks of angina pectoris require medical attention. The pain can be controlled by the application of heat and the administration of proper remedies. Medical care is essential to relieve the pain and mental anxiety of the sufferer. His fear and emotional excitement are lessened by the presence of the doctor.

Attacks of angina pectoris occur at indefinite periods, but may be brought on by any kind of exertion. Violent exercise, such as walking against the wind, climbing stairs and lifting objects, may be followed by an attack of angina. Emotional excitement, such as anger, grief and fear, are other factors. Prolonged emotional disturbances are dangerous to those inclined to this disease.

One who has a tendency to this disease should be under the supervision of a physician. Certain forms of angina pectoris are cured when the underlying cause of the disturbance is discovered and removed. In other forms, the attacks can be prevented by avoiding those factors that are known to bring on the symptoms. Let me warn against neglect of this condition.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Just right for the dance is a new novelty handbag. It is made of black cut velvet and is trimmed with two tiny dancing figures made out of marcasite set in silver.

Breakfast in bed and wear one of the new capelet bed jackets. One lovely model is done in pink chiffon velvet appliqued onto a double cape of pink georgette. This opens at the back and fastens by streams that knot at the throat.

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

All the good work of soap and water and a washing machine may be nullified by a dirty clothesline. It is a good idea now and then to loop the line together in a small bundle, toss it into the tub and give it the same sort of refreshing bath that the household wash gets every week.

The buffet drawer is rarely divided into sufficient compartments to thoroughly separate the silver. Put a few extra boxes into the compartments so that each utensil can be kept separate. It not only makes a much neater drawer, but the silver will keep from scratching if separated.

Mystery of Kidnaper's Note Is Cleared Up

The grocer supplying Whitney Hall was a rotund man of medium height, frankly bewildered by his summons to the inner sanctum of Dr. Barnes. His helper, the boy who had delivered the grocery basket, was a fresh-faced, engaging youth, but guileless. Anyone could see that.

"Something very terrible has happened in the school, Mr. Brown," Mrs. Barnes began, "something about which we do not wish the police to know, as let. And we must ask you to pledge us secrecy before we tell you about it and ask your help."

"I'll take my oath, of course, Mrs. Barnes," the grocer said. "You, too, Bud?"

"Sure thing," the boy said earnestly, his eyes widening with astonishment. "Then it isn't anything wrong with the vegetables?"

"Not with the handling of them," Mrs. Barnes answered. "But this gentleman will tell you all about it."

"Two girls disappeared from the school last night," my father began abruptly. "Several hours afterward a note wrapped around a stone was thrown through the glass of the door, telling us that they were being held for ransom, and that we were to be on the lookout for further messages. The note said that we would not know how the messages came, but that they would reach us. Just now we found a note from—the kidnapers—pinned to the paper wrapping a head of lettuce in this basket."

HELPED STRANGER

The grocer wiped his forehead, upon which drops were standing.

"My God, Mis' Barnes!" he exclaimed. "You don't think I had anything to do with it, do you? Or Bud, here? He's flighty, but he—"

"No, no," my father said emphatically. "No one suspects you. This very incident justifies me in not calling in the police. It would be their duty to hold you and question you, and in that way we'd waste valuable time. I only want one thing of you. Who could have had the chance in the store to pin this on? I want to be very sure of this."

"I know how it got there," Bud burst out. "It was that man. I knew I hadn't any business letting him ride, but he was limping and coughing, and looked so sick, I didn't think it would do any hurt."

"If you let anybody ride on that wagon after I've warned you so many times about that very trick, it'll cost you your job, Bud Emery," the grocer said menacingly.

My father put up a protesting hand.

"Wait!" he said. "This very action of Bud's may be the means of leading us to the kidnapers. If so, he deserves praise instead of censure, even though he was at fault."

MAN HAD OPPORTUNITY

The boy looked at him gratefully, and the grocer lost something of his truculence.

"Tell him all you know, Bud," he said. "If you'll let this be a lesson to you, maybe I'll give you another chance."

"He was walking along the road as I turned off the main street," Bud said, "limping along and coughing. He asked me which way I was heading, and when I told him out past the school and on to the turnpike, he asked if I minded giving him a lift as far as the turnpike. And I let him get on at the back.

"I was in a hurry to get here, and I didn't pay any attention to him. He could have put the paper inside all right without me knowing it.

"When I got down to Whitney Hall, he wanted to know how long I'd be, and when I said I didn't know, sometimes it was five or 10 minutes, he said he guessed he'd be going along. He thanked me, and got down and went off down that side road. That's the last I saw of him."

My father drew a deep breath.

"That's the way it was done, undoubtedly," he said, "and he's probably miles away by this time—a car, probably, waiting on one of those side streets.

"Now, son, think carefully about this man's appearance. I want to ask you a lot of questions."

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Planning the Play

One of the factors which are the basis of accurate and successful play of the cards is ability to plan the entire hand as soon as the Opening lead is made and the Dummy hand exposed. Accurate planning and equally accurate execution of the plan permitted a well-known New Jersey Bridge teacher, Mrs. Nan Prophet, to make a Slam in a Duplicate game on the hand below, after the hand had apparently been overbid.

South—Dealer.

North:
♠ A J 10
♢ 9 7 6 3
♣ A K 10 7 6 4

West:
♠ Q 6 4
♡ K Q J 8 5
♢ K Q 4
♣ J 5

East:
♠ 9 8 7 5 3 2
♡ 6 4 3

♠ K
♡ A 10 9 7 2
♢ A J 10 8 5 2
♣ 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡ (1)	1 N T (2)	3 ♣ (3)	Pass
3 ♢ (4)	Pass	3 N T (5)	Pass
4 ♢ (6)	Pass	5 ♢	Pass
6 ♢ (7)	Double (8)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A bare minimum Opening bid, but justified by the two-suited nature of the holding.

2—A very questionable Overcall. West should not warn his opponents of possible danger.

3—A Forcing Takeout.

4—The correct response.

5—Not a good bid. Either a Rebid of the club suit or an immediate Raise of the diamonds would be better.

7—Perhaps overbold, as the hand, even opposite a Forcing Takeout, suggests the possibility of enormous losers.

8—West's Double is bad, as it affords Mrs. Prophet a clue to the correct play of the hand.

West's Opening lead was the heart King, and the Declarer, while realizing the danger in the hand, saw that there was a chance to make her contract. West was apparently marked with all the missing trumps—the King, Queen, four—and two or three more hearts. Now if the distribution was favorable, there was a chance to make the contract. The West distribution quite probably was 5-3-3-2 or 4-4-3-2. The notrump bid made it appear improbable that, as West was vulnerable, the hand contained a singleton. In any event, if the Slam was to be made, the Declarer must assume the distribution of the adverse cards to permit the fulfillment of the contract.

Thus planned, the play proceeded as follows: The first round of hearts was won with the Ace, and a small heart returned to Dummy and ruffed. The closed hand was re-entered with a spade in order to permit the ruff of the second heart. Now the Ace of spades was led and ruffed in the closed hand, and another heart led, which was ruffed in the Dummy. Then the spade Knave was led and ruffed by the Declarer, and the last heart led and trumped with Dummy's last trump. The Ace of clubs was now cashed, and a small club returned, which was trumped by the Declarer. Now, all other suits having been eliminated, West was thrown in by the lead of the Knave of trumps and forced to lead up to South's tenace for the last 2 tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Under the new scoring, what is the penalty for 3 undertricks doubled when not vulnerable? In other words, is the penalty 200 points or 450 points?

Answer: 450 points—the total of 100 plus 150 plus 200.

Gifts at a Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I am 18 and I am going to have a birthday party and I would like to know if it is proper to open the gifts when they are presented, or should I wait until the following day and acknowledge by card.

2—Is it necessary to acknowledge an "At Home" card advising when I intend to call? There was no time specified as this is just a new residence.

SALLY.

1—I'd like to have you open each present as the giver gives it to you, for in this way you will register at once your spontaneous enthusiasm. It does give, I'm sure you'll admit, an appearance of awkwardness and self-consciousness if we "hoard" our gifts until the next day. Part of the joy in receiving these gifts at a party of one's close friends is to open each present as it arrives in your hands, say pleasant and admiring things about it, and have others look at it and admire it, too.

But I also do want to have you write those notes of appreciation the day following the party.

2—No, it isn't necessary to acknowledge by answer these cards of "At Home," especially when the time is "any time." But you do go to pay your visit of compliment fairly soon, to show enthusiasm and appreciation of the invitation.

POWERS OF COMMISSIONER REDUCED

K. M. Landis

IT MAY NOT be true that Kenesaw Mountain Landis is to retire as commissioner of organized baseball when his present term expires in 1934, but the way the major leagues kicked some of his pet rulings around at their joint session yesterday could hardly be construed as offering him encouragement to stay. Whether or not it was because the refusal of the judge to render a decision in the Brooklyn-Jersey City dispute had peeved the magnates, who had no desire to see the matter get into the courts, the fact remains that yesterday's action on at least two points amounted to a step to make him less a czar than formerly in his $65,000-a-year job.

One instance of overriding the commissioner was the approval given to the chain-store system and the practice of shifting players around from one chain club to another as independent deals, and another was the decision to let the contesting clubs in the world series decide for themselves whether to sell tickets singly or in blocks of three. Landis has always firmly opposed the chain operations and has insisted on the continuance on the three-ticket system, unmindful of the fact that in these times many a fan willing to pay $5.50 to see one world series game can't afford the $16.50 required to buy three tickets. Evidently the club owners are determined to take some things into their own hands.

PITTSBURGH'S FIRST CLUB in the National League in 1887 is recalled by the death here yesterday of one of its members, William R. Bishop, a local pitching product and one of the most popular of the old-time ball players. Bishop also pitched for Pittsburgh's last team in the American Association in 1886. His death followed that of an 1886 battery mate, Tommy Quinn, of Braddock, by only five months.

Bishop joined the American Association club here when the Virginia League, where he had pitched for Richmond, disbanded late in the 1886 season. He pitched only two games that fall, a nine-inning 7-to-7 tie against the Athletics in Philadelphia and a 7-to-5 defeat against the Mets, of New York.

WHEN PITTSBURGH TOOK the place of Kansas City in the National League in 1887, Bishop remained as a pitcher for a short time but worked in only three games, as almost all of the pitching was done by Jimmy Galvin, Ed Morris and Jim McCormick. Galvin pitched 48 games, and Morris and McCormick 36 each. Five balls constituted a walk that year and every walk counted as a hit.

The four men named were Pittsburgh's only pitchers. The catchers were Doggy Miller, Fred Carroll and Jocko Fields; the infielders, Alexander McKinnon, who died in midseason; Sam Barkley, Pop Smith, Billy Kuehne and Arthur Whitney, and the outfielders Abner Dalrymple, Tom Brown, Jack Coleman and Ed Beecher.

WHEN A YOUNG ball player does well in his first season in the majors and then flops in the next pennant race, the usual inclination is to rate him as only a one-year flash not at all likely to come back. But Bill Terry, Giant manager, has different ideas about Johnny Vergez. He insists that Vergez is a natural born big leaguer who simply experienced an unfortunate slump last season, and as evidence of his firm belief that Johnny will speedily return to his form of 1931 the Giant skipper announces that he is going to start Vergez at third base next year and keep him there as the regular guardian of the hot corner.

Ed Brandt

TERRY REVEALS THAT before he closed the deal sending Freddie Lindstrom to the Pirates he turned down an offer by Bill McKechnie of Pitcher Ed Brandt for Lindstrom and Catcher Frank Hogan. He says he was very eager to get Brandt, but not at that price.

"The Lindstrom deal was my own trade," Terry declares. "I am wholly responsible, and it can be pinned back on me if it does not help the Giants. I started making the medicine for that deal the first day we were in Columbus, and wore out my tonsils trying to put it over. So do not blame Mr. Stoneham or Mr. Tierney or anybody else if it does not make something for the Giant fans to rave about."

THE PITT PANTHERS will be the last act in a record series of visiting football shows when they pitch camp in Tucson, Ariz., for at least a week's practice stay on the road to the coast.

Alabama was the first to establish temporary practice quarters in Tucson this fall. Notre Dame followed, and then came Georgia Tech, all headed for the coast. Before Pitt arrives, U. C. L. A. and Oregon, bound Southeast, will have called.

ASIDE FROM THE salubrious Arizona climate, the main factor in the growth of this custom of stopping off at Tucson for grid practice has been J. F. McHale, director of athletics for the University of Arizona. McHale's wide acquaintance among coaches and the work he has done in improving the University of Arizona athletic plant are largely responsible. An athletic field with a world of room around it, a fine training building and good equipment make it an ideal place for teams to work out. Coaches and players who have made the stop report that the residents are friendly and the stay of the visiting athletes always is pleasant.

THE SUCCESS OF Southern California's quick kicks against Notre Dame is viewed by football men as further evidence of the rare strength of the Trojan line that Pitt will face two weeks from next Monday. It is explained that few teams use the quick kick to any great extent, because it is a dangerous weapon when a line cannot be depended on to hold.

Gridiron authorities list it as a play that calls for special ability. Not all punters can quick-kick. Some of the best booters are useless on kicks of that type. On the Pitt team, for instance, Bobby Hogan does not shine at it, though doing the regular punting, whereas Warren Heller does it well. Used behind a strong and sure line, it becomes one of the best strategic moves in football.

ACCORDING TO AN English magazine, commenting on the months-old Walker Cup matches, the difference between the American and British golfer lies in the approach shot, with the American trying to split the pin while the Briton merely goes for the green. Further, the English observer finds, there is a difference in competition.

The American, he says, is "always in incessant combat," whereas the British golfer sees no reason for "playing against persons whom he does not know or does not wish to know." From which an American critic gathers that the British players are handicaped socially, as well as mechanically.

Jimmy McLarnin

A CHALLENGER FOR the welterweight championship now held by Jackie Fields is expected to come out of tonight's fight in New York between Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Fuller. McLarnin, as usual, will have an advantage in weight, scaling around 147 pounds to Fuller's 140. That has been the case in practically all of McLarnin's Eastern matches except those with Lou Brouillard and Benny Leonard. Poundage and punching power give McLarnin the edge in tonight's tilt, but Fuller must be conceded a chance unless the slipping of which Jimmy gave evidence in his last two bouts was only temporary.

WILD TRADING MARKS CLOSE OF CONFAB

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Baseball's "chain store" systems will flourish in the future without interference from Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of the game.

By unanimous vote, major league magnates, closing their annual sessions here yesterday, gave the system a vote of confidence and drastically curbed the weapons with which the Commissioner frequently has attacked it.

The magnates ruled, in effect, that player contracts negotiated by two or more clubs of the same "farm system" shall be regarded as independent transactions and in exactly the same light as those negotiated by clubs having no common interest.

LANDIS' HANDS TIED

An outspoken foe of "chain-store" baseball, Landis heretofore has declined to regard dealings among clubs of the same chain as independent transactions. Under the new rule, he will have no choice.

Only one direct step was taken in the general direction of economy during the three-day sessions. That move advanced the player limit date from June 15 to May 15, thus saving each club a month's salary to a number of players who might otherwise be retained until the later date.

A policy of "home rule" was adopted with regard to radio broadcasting in view of the wide difference of opinion prevailing on the question of its effect on attendance.

Competing clubs in the world series were given the privilege, if they desire, of selling tickets for single games as well as in three-game strips.

TERRY AFTER VANCE

The wildest trading season in all baseball history has come down to its climax with the close of the annual meetings, but the end of a mighty effort to stir interest in 1933 with new faces in new places is by no means at hand.

Bill Terry, young manager of the New York Giants and ringleader in the National League shakeup, still was not content with disposing of almost half his athletes and went to work anew on the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves in a three-cornered swap.

This shift involved Catcher Shanty Hogan, who would go back to his first major league love, the Braves, for cash and perhaps a player who could be added to Terry's bid to Brooklyn for Dazzy Vance, once the right-handed pitching marvel of the league.

Involved in this same transaction was Terry's offer of substitute First Baseman Sam Leslie for Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn outfielder, once refused but still alive if the Giants will throw in more collateral. Pending definite decision on this, Brooklyn has virtually closed with Joe Judge for his first base services next season.

NATS GET PAIR

Yesterday, the Boston Red Sox traded Pitcher Durham and Shortstop Hal Rhyne to the White Sox for Outfielders Fothergill and Seeds and Infielders Hodapp and Mulleavy. The Phillies sent Pitcher Ray Benge to Brooklyn in exchange for some cash, Pitcher Moore and Infielders Finn and Warner.

TITLES AWAIT RIFLE CHAMP

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Winners of the national championships in the 1933 Reserve Officers' Training Corps matches for the William Randolph Hearst trophies will earn the distinction of being the nation's undisputed marksmanship title holders.

More than 450 teams have already been officially entered in the matches, representing more than 250 universities, colleges, military academies and high schools in United States and possessions.

That these rifle matches have had a marked effect on the ability of young men in universities, military academies, and high schools to shoot is indicated by a comparison between the results of the Hearst and those of the national inter-collegiate matches.

In 1932 the University of Washington won the national championships in the Hearst shoot, and the same institution pulled down first place in the National Intercollegiate.

In 1931 the University of Washington won the championship in the West section of the Hearst matches, while the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas was first in the National Intercollegiate and Ohio State was the Hearst national champion.

In 1931, Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas was defeated by Ohio State by only five points and by University of Washington by only three.

SHOOT DATES SET

DAYTON, O., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—John W. Esselman, of Lancaster, Pa.; R. C. Coffey, of Prairie City, Ia., and R. A. King, of Wichita Falls, Tex., directors of the Amateur Trapshooting Association have fixed the week of August 21 to 26 as the time for the thirty-second annual Grand American tournament at the permanent home here.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Notre Dame's "fighting Irish" football teams may be a gag to some people, in view of the Schwartzes, Carideos, Sheeketskis, Melinkovitches and Jaskwiches in the lineup—but wait! . . . You ain't heard nothin' yet.

How about the local Y. M. H. A. and its boxing team? . . . The most Jewish part of it is Phil Goldstein, its coach . . . There are the Quaills, and the Campbells, and the O'Briens, and the Sislowskis and the Schipanis, and the others, with just a few Cohens and Goldsteins and Feldmans in the list.

Goldstein, a former leading local lightweight boxer, has been coaching the Y. M. H. A. boxers for two years and in that time his squads have included Matt Callagher, Irish, flyweight; Jimmy White, Slavish; Ed Furlong, Irish, and Frank Tatomer, Polish, bantamweights; Wade Stevens, German; Ray Jarres, Welsh; Frank Schipani, Italian, and Joe Hayden, Irish, featherweights; Jimmy Campbell, Scotch-Irish; Jack Peters, Croatian, and Tom Houlihan, Irish, lightweights; Al Quaill, Irish; Walter Zack, Polish; Jimmy O'Brien, Irish; Jack Snyder, German; Johnny Leonard, Croatian, and Vic Marino, Italian, welterweights; Steve Levandowski, Polish; Red Davison, Irish, and Walter Geis, German-Irish, middleweights; Frank Sislowski, Polish, light-heavyweight, and Tubby Mills and Ray Rayner, both Irish, heavyweights.

All of these young fellows of mixed nationalities have to be members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association in order to be eligible to represent it in the ring . . . The team's record for this year to date is 76 victories in 107 battles . . . Al Quaill, the best so-called "Fighting Hebrew" turned out by Coach Goldstein, is the holder of the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. Junior welterweight title . . . He is one of three boxers representing Pittsburgh in intercity competition in Detroit tonight.—HARRY KECK.

New River State College will be met at Montgomery, W. Va., on January 12. A game also is planned with the Army Material team at Dayton, O., late next month.

D.-E. Five Loses To Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan., Dec. 16.—Davis-Elkins hopes to reverse matters on the Kansas State Wildcats as they clash tonight in the second game of their two-game basketball series.

PRACTICE TILT WITH ALUMNI UNLIKELY

By JESS CARVER

The chances are very much against there being a varsity-alumni game in the Pitt Stadium tomorrow afternoon and the odds just as strong that the Pitt Panthers will complete their home work in preparation for the Rose Bowl game, in Pasadena January 2, under cover. At that, the indoor drills have not been productive of any great results, for it's been too cold for the boys to function as they should.

The warmth of Tucson, Ariz., where the Panthers are to put in nine days prior to moving on Pasadena, will be more than welcome. Doc Hartwig, star guard, says it will take him two weeks to become completely thawed out.

TO DRILL TODAY

A workout today, again in the Hunt Armory, and another tomorrow in the same place, provided the game with the alumni is not played, will wind up Pitt's local preparations for the game with Southern California. The squad is due to depart Sunday night, bound for the great Southwest. A few hours will be spent in St. Louis Monday, a workout is carded for Dallas on Tuesday and the boys will arrive in Tucson to pitch their camp Wednesday.

Yesterday's workout in the Armory was very unsatisfactory. In the first place, Joe Tormey and Izzy Weinstock, regular center and fullback, were absent because of illness. In the second place, it was so cold that the lads were unable to handle the ball in the forward passing drill which has been planned, so the first dummy scrimmage went by the boards.

After this afternoon's workout, the squad that is to make the trip will be selected. It is planned to carry 35 players in the party. Assistant Coach and Scout Bill Kern also will go along, and will have charge of the "Southern California" lineup, which will operate Trojan plays in the Tucson workouts.

COURT TEAM IN WEST

The Panther basketball varsity is sojourning in Evanston, Ill., today, and tonight, will make its second start of the season against the Northwestern University Wildcats. Tomorrow, Dr. Carlson will take his boys to Minneapolis, for a tussle with Minnesota and on Monday, they'll meet Butler at Indianapolis.

Coach Max Hannum has sliced his varsity basketball squad at Tech to 15 men, and is as far from definitely set on a starting lineup as next football season. The squad at present consists of Co-Captains Bob Smith and Ed Jagnow; Red Fergus, George Silverman, Jerry Seigal, Ed Stentz, lettermen; Brad Edelblut, Fred Freedle, Bill Petransky, Johnny Ewalt, Ted Riggs, Bill Carlson, Joe Mihm, Haden Beers and Earl Biggin.

Jagnow and Fergus, with their trick knees still trucky, are being kept out of uniforms. With this pair hors de combat, the lineup Der Maxie seems to favor most has Ed Stentz, at center, Smith and Ewalt at the forwards, and Silverman and Riggs at the guards.

GENEVA SIGNS BOBCATS

Geneva, like Carnegie Tech, is having its coaching troubles. Athletic Director Edgecomb, at the Covenanter institution, is being swamped by applications for the job Howard Harpster is expected to relinquish to take the post at Carnegie Tech.

It also has been announced at Geneva that the gridiron series with Tech, which was resumed this year, is off again for 1933, and that West Virginia Wesleyan has been secured to take the place of the Skibos.

McKeesport, Ellwood Cards Announced

Scott High and Greensburg are the new opponents carded for the McKeesport High School eleven next fall, according to the schedule announced today. Nine games have been arranged with two dates yet to be filled. The schedule follows:

September 15—Glassport, at home; September 22—Scott at North Braddock; September 30—Monessen, at Monessen; October 6—Homestead, at Homestead; October 14—Open; October 21—New Kensington, at home; October 28—Uniontown, at Uniontown; November 4—Greensburg, at home; November 11—Norwin, at home; November 18—Open. November 30—Clairton, at Clairton.

Seven football games have been scheduled for Ellwood City High in 1933. Ganzy Benedict is coach. The schedule follows:

September 16—Union Township, at home; September 22—New Castle, at New Castle; September 30—Butler, at Butler; October 7—Beaver Falls, at home; October 28—Monaca, at home; November 11—New Brighton, at New Brighton, Nov. 18—Rochester, at Rochester.

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Dec. 16.—The Slippery Rock Teachers held Grove City to a tie in football last fall, but were unable to do so well in basketball. The Grovers defeated the Teachers in the opening game of the season here last night, 58 to 42. The lineup:

WARNER PLACES FIVE TROJANS ON ALL COAST TEAM

U. S. C. GIVEN BOTH TACKLE POSITIONS

By GLENN S. (POP) WARNER
Member All-America Board of Football.

In selecting my All-Star team of the Pacific Coast for 1932, I have departed from my custom of naming three elevens and have chosen only one. I am considering all of the men listed here as members of the All-Star Pacific Coast squad.

Pop Warner

My reason for listing the 11 men at the beginning as THE All-Coast team is that if I were put in charge of this great squad, I should probably start these 11 men. However, it is highly probable that a number of the others listed would do as much playing in a single game or throughout a season as the 11 first team players. Only three men whom I chose in 1931 played during the 1932 season—Corbus, Stanford, guard; Smith, Southern California, tackle, and Colvin, Stanford, end. Corbus and Smith again are included on the team, and Colvin is omitted from the first eleven not because he has gone back but because new men coming up have improved.

I believe, that, on the whole, there are less outstanding backfield men on the Pacific coast this year than there have been in some past seasons, but more outstanding linemen. Several outstanding players have been eliminated from first-team consideration because injuries kept them out of the game for a good part of the season. Notable among these are: Mohler, Southern California, quarterback; Caddel, Stanford, halfback; Schaldach, California, halfback; Keeble, U. C. L. A., fullback. These men very well might have replaced the four listed on the first team had they been able to play through the season.

FINE PAIR OF ENDS

Bisnet and Sparling make up as fine a pair of ends as one would wish. Strong, both defensively and offensively, these boys would gladden any coach's heart. Sparling also has proved himself quite a ball carrier on reverse plays.

Although there are several great tackles on the Pacific coast this season, I have not seen one whom I believe could beat out Ernie Smith or Capt. Tay Brown, of Southern California. Big, powerful, fast and aggressive, these boys have played havoc with every team they have met.

Corbus, of Stanford, and Rosenberg, of Southern California, win the guard positions. Corbus is chosen for the second successive year. This boy has displayed no weakness as a football player and has played spectacular football all season. Rosenberg, a big, powerful and fast fellow would be a fine running mate for the smaller Corbus.

A large crop of excellent centers made the selection of this position very difficult. Rubel gets the call because of his consistent play and the great heights to which he often rises on defense.

SANDER, SIM PRAISED

Sander, of Washington state, and Sim, of Stanford, are awarded the halfback positions because, to my way of thinking, they have turned in the consistently best performances of any men in this section. Sander is one of the finest backs developed on the coast in some time. He can kick, pass, run, block and tackle equally well. Sim also is adept at all of these tasks, and is one of the most dependable players I have had in several years.

Griffith, of Southern California, one of the most underrated players on the Coast as the season opened, is placed in the all-important quarterback position. Griffith was used at fullback for a time and was shifted to the quarterback spot permanently when the brilliant Mohler was lost for the season on account of injuries. Griffith came through in great style, and handled the Trojan team admirably.

MIKULAK GREAT PLUNGER

Mikulak, the Oregon powerhouse, is chosen for the fullback spot because of his tremendous drive on both offense and defense. This big fellow deals out plenty of punishment to his opponents regardless of whether he has the ball under his arm or is plowing into an opposing ball carrier.

As usual, I have had the help of nearly all of the coaches on the Pacific Coast in making my sections. I might point out that in the "honorable mentions" I have not attempted to rank the men in the order of their rating.

Score a knockout for ol' King Boreas.

His spray of zero weather over Pittsburgh and environs today caused the postponement at noon of the boxing show scheduled in the Arena on the North Side tonight until next Monday night.

Jack King, of Little Rock, Ark., and Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, are the main bout principals in the show, and the fans were het up for a hot return scrap, following the close tussle between the welterweights in the same ring several weeks ago. King will remain over in Pittsburgh and work out at the Pittsburgh Lyceum to keep on edge for the battle.

TO BE HELD MONDAY

In announcing the postponement, Matchmaker Lew Raymond said the club had received many telephone calls from patrons who had reservations saying they would have to cancel them because of the severe weather. Frozen automobiles and risky highways were given as reasons. When the cancellations began to pile up, the postponement was decided upon, since the show planned at Motor Square Garden next Monday night already was out, leaving the night open.

The Arena also has a show listed for one week from tonight, with Dave Shade and Frankie Goosby in the 10-round main bout and Charley Baxter and Eddie Hebner in the eight-round semi-final.

Between Rounds

Frank Wimgo, Al Quail and John Ochs will represent Pittsburgh in a big benefit amateur boxing show in Detroit tonight.

Jimmy McLarnin has been installed an almost 3-to-1 favorite to beat Sammy Fuller in their bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, but Fuller is conceded a chance to upset the dope in view of McLarnin's just-fair performances in recent bouts. Boston backers of Fuller are reported to have plunged on him to the extent of $50,000 at the juicy odds.

Jimmy Bradley will box Joe Kuglemaier, Steve Bencho will oppose Bill Zurick, Jimmy Campbell tangles with John Bodnar, Walter Zack takes on Joe Mazur, Harry Dunkle fights Steve Levandowski and Steve Mazur is paired with Louis Ceerer in the amateur boxing show of the Allegheny Elks next Monday night for the benefit of the needy of the community.

CUE CHAMPION TIED FOR LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Frank Taberski, the 43-year-old cue master from Schenectady, N. Y., rates only an outside chance of winning the national pocket billiard championship, but for sheer gameness he takes the honors.

The "Gray Fox," of Schenectady, N. Y., dropped his fourth game in seven starts last night to Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, but seldom, if ever, has a loser staged a more brilliant battle.

Shoved in the hole, when Rudolph ran 59 in the fourteenth inning and took a lead of 106 to 63, Taberski fell back on his famed defensive play. He deliberately lost 43 points through scratches and then came back to carry Rudolph to 34 innings before bowing in defeat, 125 to 93.

With Rudolph and the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf, tied for the lead with five victories each, two of the three holders of third place, Pasquale Natalie, Chicago, and Young Jimmy Caras, Wilmington, Del., match strokes tonight. Natalie remained in running for the title when he won his fourth game in five starts with a 125-to-62 victory over Benny Allen, of Kansas City, yesterday.

The opening contest today brings together Allen and James Mills, of San Jose, Cal. Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, has his last chance of winning a game when he meets George Kelly, of Philadelphia, last year's runner-up in the second matinee match.

Poreda, Schaaf Bout in Balance

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Decision as to whether Madison Square Garden will go through with the Stanley Poreda-Ernie Schaaf match, December 23, has been deferred until the Boxing Commission's attitude can be sounded today, it was announced by Promoter James J. Johnston.

Poreda was suspended overnight by the Pennsylvania Commission because his manager, William Reppenhagen, did not appear to answer charges that he had attempted to "fix" a fight between Poreda and George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight.

BOAT RACES CARDED

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Lynn S. Nichols, vice president of the American Power Boating Association, has announced that the beginning of the annual International Gold Cup races would be held here in February.

CLIFTONVILLE WINS

BELFAST, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Cliftonville today defeated Linfield, 2-1, to win the Irish Gold Cup emblematic of soccer supremacy in Ireland.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

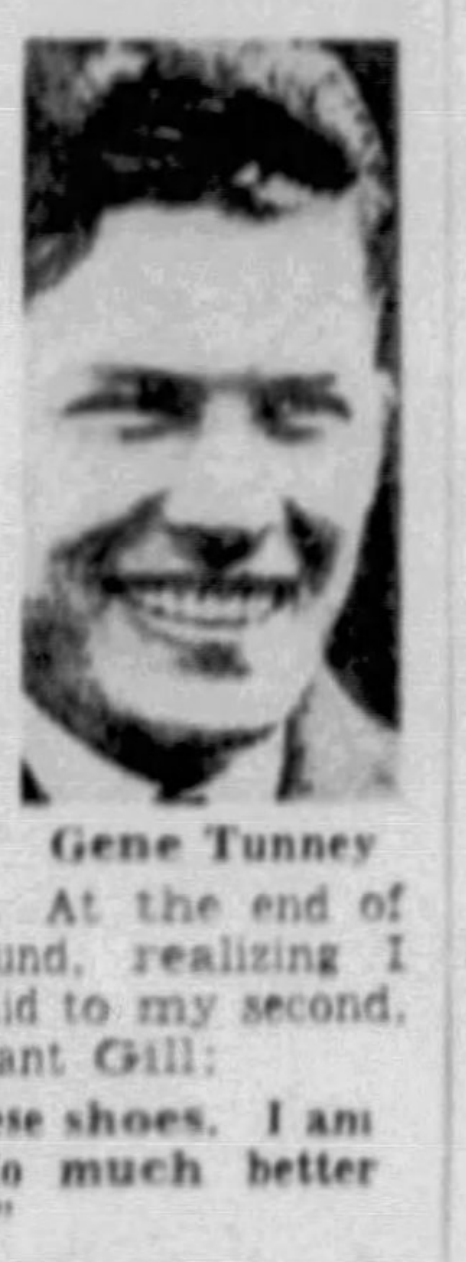
By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

SYNOPSIS

Tunney thus far has traced the early course of his fistic career, from athletic boyhood in New York's Greenwich Village, through fight clubs, to his activities with the United States Marines, his company then being encamped at Romorantin, France, where he won both the middleweight and heavyweight championships. Tired of guarding empty balloon sheds, Tunney is delighted when given time off to represent his company in the ring. He's about to square off with Tommy Gavagan, the Is-sur-Tille A. E. F. champ. "Beaucoup francs" have been wagered. The gong sounds . . .

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Not being able to get Captain Greene's shoes for this match, I was forced to borrow a pair of football shoes from which we pulled the cleats. There was no rosin on the canvas and no padding under it. While trying to move around with the stiff-soled football shoes I slipped all over the place. This went on for two or three rounds. I was in a quandary. At the end of the fourth round, realizing I was losing, I said to my second, Gunnery Sergeant Gill:



Gene Tunney

"Pull off these shoes. I am sure I will do much better without them."

I fought the next eight rounds in my stocking feet and, at the end, Gavagan was tired and weary. The referee called the fight a draw. I thought I had won. Gavagan thought he had won. The 10,000 spectators, every one of whom had bet one way or the other, were as divided as the principals. The officers who came over with Gavagan were greatly disappointed at not returning with an extra car-load of francs. It was a sure thing from their point of view. They offered odds as high as 3 to 1. Being one of a marine company of 250 men in a camp of 10,000 soldiers affected my support in this fight considerably. Every member of our company bet every sou he could beg, borrow or steal, but that was a mere drop in the bucket compared with what the supporters of Gavagan had to bet.

SEEKS TRIP TO PARIS

Had it not been for a motor mechanic and gambling fool named Slim Estheridge, who came to my support with thousands of francs, I would have entered the ring with comparatively no backing.

The next match in the balloon shed was against Johnny Newton, who had been the Army middleweight champion on the Mexican border and who was champion of St. Aignan. Newton was one of those boys who had all the mannerisms of a great and confident champion—the kind that upon entering the ring walk to every side shaking hands with friends and acquaintances and nodding to many imaginary ones. Johnny also could put any champion to shame in the loosening-up calisthenics in his corner before the start of a fight. The well-secured ring shook to its foundations as Johnny did his warming-up stuff. It did the same in the sixth round when Johnny tumbled to the canvas for the count.

After Newton was eliminated, there was a dearth of worth-while opponents in our section of France. I had to look for new worlds to conquer or go back to guard duty. A friend of mine, Gus Anderson, who is now a detective in Brooklyn, got leave to go to Paris for a few days. I had not seen Paris. The ambition of every soldier in France was to visit it. The stories we heard from lucky ones who visited it over-fired our imaginations. Why not try to get a fight in Paris? What an idea! Accordingly I asked Anderson to go either to the Knights of Columbus or the Y. M. C. A. headquarters when he got to Paris to see if they would not be interested in having me come up to fight in one of the mixed matches that were being staged once a week by both organizations. The mixed fights were between doughboys and French professionals.

MATCHED WITH MARCHAND

As Gus was a devout Catholic, he leaned toward the Knights of Columbus, believing they should have the privilege of being the first to exhibit the great Romorantin champion to the metropolis of France. Presently a telegram came from Jake Carey, Director of Athletics for the Knights of Columbus in France, asking would I accept a match against K. O. Marchand, the French middleweight, on January 13, 1919.

Would I? Well, I dashed 200 yards to the company headquarters in 20 seconds flat, or less, to show the telegram to the company commander and ask his permission. It was given without hesitation. Over night I became not only the most prominent member of the marine company, but the most popular. It was discovered I could take two seconds with me.

The top sergeant immediately appointed himself one of my seconds. All kinds of offers were made me, but I chose a close friend, Mark T. Eagleton of St. Louis, as the other second.

We arrived in Paris after a whole day's travel. It being my first railroad trip in France as a passenger, I slipped into a first-class compartment. When the ticket-taker came around and saw our party was made up of two privates and a top sergeant he insisted we go back to the second or third-class cars. The more he insisted the louder I repeated:

"No compre!"

LATE FOR FIGHT

We decided to get up early the next day and see as much as possible of Paris before reporting at the theater in Rue St. Martin to do battle with K. O. Marchand. Naturally, I was late for the fight.

Good old Billy Roche had despaired of my coming and put Marchand in against another American boxer called Izzy Green. I appealed to Billy. I told him I was from the West Side of New York and that I had seen him referee in Madison Square Garden many times. I advised him that if I did not fight somebody in Paris, when I got back to Romorantin my company commander would punish me for making him the victim of a hoax.

Billy listened sympathetically and said:

"I'll see if I can't make Marchand give up Green and take you on instead."

I asked him to do all that was possible.

When Marchand, who had boxed in the United States before the war, where he had learned English, heard Billy's proposition he said he would have to see "Tooney." So Marchand came into my dressing-room to look me over. I was stripped, rather undeveloped, with no pugilistic badges of honor and on the whole, made a very unprepossessing appearance for an alleged fighter. As Marchand beheld me he said:

WINS BY KNOCKOUT

Marchand and I fought a whirlwind first round. The doughboys were standing on the backs of their seats shouting and screaming. It seemed that Marchand was not a favorite with the boys because he was knocking out American soldiers every week for their particular entertainment.

After a fiery exchange in the beginning of the second round, I happened to land a swinging left uppercut followed by a right to Monsieur Marchand's midriff. He folded up and was duly counted out by Jack Lewis, the doughboy referee, who now runs a boxing club in Syracuse, N. Y.

Izzy Green, who had all the appearance of a veteran pugilist, turned out to be the weakest kind of a setup. A young French lightweight, who was nothing but a novice, knocked him stiff in the third round after giving him an awful beating. Marchand later said to Jake Carey:

"Eyes, sometimes zay make meestake!"

Tunney will relate tomorrow how he outpointed Bob Martin, met Jimmy Bronson and the late Billy McCabe in Paris, and broke a knuckle on his right hand when scoring a K. O. in A. E. F. championship preliminaries early in 1919.

GIBBY ANGLES FOR HURLER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Still running over with enthusiasm as a result of the Lindstrom deal, Pirate Manager George Gibson and Vice President Sam Watters returned today from the New York winter baseball meetings. President William E. Benswanger remained over in New York on other business.

Gibson reiterated his stand concerning pitchers. He would like to land another high-grade hurler, but he will not "rob Peter to pay Paul." Gibby said:

"If I could feel sure that Remy Kremer is to have another big year, I would not worry over our pitching staff. News that I have on Kremer is to the effect that he went into the mountains to prepare himself for a big comeback. I only hope the soreness in his arm leaves and that he will be himself again."

NO MEINE DEAL ON

Commenting on the trade rumors involving Heine Meine, Gibson said again that he regarded Meine as a fine hurler. In this connection he declared:

"Would it not be foolish for us to start to tear down after we had made a fine start on building up? There has been no mention of Meine in our trade talks. Heine is a good pitcher, one we can count upon to start in his regular turn. Now, if we were to trade him we would have to be shown a pitcher of the same caliber or one who we figured would be a big asset to the club. In other words, if Meine were to be traded, the Pirates would have to get a fine pitcher in exchange."

Gibson added he was satisfied with his club in his present state, but he said the efforts to acquire another sure-shot sharpshooter would not be lessened.

The other two contests will be played in 1933-34.

Scranton Pitcher Seriously Injured

VALPARAISO, Ind., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Malcolm Fyfe, right-handed pitcher for Scranton, of the New York-Pennsylvania League last season, was seriously injured early today when his automobile skidded into a pole near here. His skull was fractured and hopes for his recovery were slight.

The Erie Strong Vincent basketball team, runnerup for the state championship last season, opens a two-day invasion of Western Pennsylvania tonight when the Lake City passers oppose Johnny Reed's Scott High floor machine on the North Braddock court.

Tomorrow night the Strong Vincent aggregation will be the attraction at Braddock High School.

The Erie passers are coached by Sam Kramer, former mentor at Braddock High School. Last season Erie Strong Vincent defeated Fifth Avenue High in the P. I. A. A. semi-finals at Sharon. Prior to that contest, Fifth Avenue had eliminated Huntingdon and Braddock High in the state eliminations.

In stacking up against Braddock tomorrow night, the Erie passers will be meeting the defending champion of the W. P. I. A. L.

Scott High will be out to score its fourth straight victory tonight. The Reedmen defeated Stowe Township, 46-15; Avalon, 47-12, and Homestead, 22-17.

Two members of the City League go out of town for important engagements today. Fifth Avenue, led by Coach Chester E. Briggs, invades Uniontown to oppose Pop Everhart's Fayette countians, while Peabody, coached by Hugh Lambie, makes its second trip down the Beaver valley to clash with Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge quintet. Ambridge started its season by swamping the Deaf Mutes, of Edgewood, 44-15, and will be out to chalk up victory No. 2 tonight.

KURTH CHOSEN CAPTAIN OF 1932 ALL-AMERICA TEAM

IRISH TACKLE FIRST TO WIN DISTINCTION

By CHRISTY J. WALSH

Member and Originator of the All-America Board of Football

In the first election of a leader ever conducted by an All-America football team the 10 star players of the 1932 All-America Board honor squad—adhered to the precedent of many colleges by voting the captaincy to a lineman, Joe Kurth, Notre Dame's burly tackle. Kurth played his last college game against Southern California and will bow out of football completely in the annual East - West charity affair at San Francisco.

Joe Kurth

The 11 ballots were distributed and collected by the All-America Board of Football and information regarding each player's qualifications was provided for the remaining 10 candidates. The preference of the individual players offers an interesting study in sportsmanship and a complete absence of selfishness on the part of any team or player.

MICHIGAN VOTES SWAY

No one has ever accused Michigan of being in love with Notre Dame, and yet the honor of being the first all-America captain goes to Kurth, a Notre Dame man, by reason of the votes of two splendid Michigan players—Newman and Petoskey. And with equal good fellowship, but without knowledge of the ballot, which was secret, Kurth, 2,000 miles distant in California, voted for Harry Newman.

The eight remaining players voting were as follows: Smith, Southern California; Smith, Colgate; Corbus, Stanford; Krueger, Marquette; Heller, Pittsburgh; Moss and Horstmann, Purdue, and Hitchcock, Auburn. And for the information of suspicious souls—no player voted for himself.

Kurth has been the anchor man in a strong Notre Dame line for the past three seasons, never having missed a game since the first contest in 1930. When Marchy Schwartz was at his peak in the South Bend backfield, his brilliant off-tackle dashing depended to a great extent on the blocking of Kurth. Although the Irish were defeated twice in 1932, power plays by the enemy made little headway through Kurth's station in the forward wall.

SEVEN POINTS STRESSED

Seven qualifying points were laid down by the All-America Board in this interesting plebiscite. (1) Leadership; (2) sportsmanship; (3) sacrifice; (4) team loyalty; (5) influence on teammates—morally and physically; (6) record on offense and (7), record on defense.

On every count, Kurth's performance during 1932 measures up to the best traditions in American football—and the lessons to be obtained from the game by the youth of the land.

Kurth is one of the best-liked players on the Notre Dame squad. His natural flare for leadership has been most apparent when the going was toughest and his teammates invariably look to the big tackle for encouragement.

The fact that he is the youngest of 11 children and that his father was an officer in the German army probably accounts for his remarkable self-discipline and spirit of sacrifice.

CAPTAIN MODEST

When fellow students remind him of the quantity and quality of personal publicity which has come to him this fall, the booming laugh of the big, 200-pound charger, is the tip-off on his modesty.

Kurth, an honor student in the school of journalism, has two aspirations on which his heart is set to achieve after graduation—he plans to get married and he hopes to get a good-paying job on a newspaper staff. In these days that's showing a lot of courage, even for an all-America captain.

FORMER PIRATE STAR DEAD

The hats of baseball followers of the old school are across their breasts today in silent tribute to a star of long ago, William R. Bishop, a member of the Pittsburgh team in the old American Association, and of several star minor league clubs.

Bishop, a retired Pittsburgh policeman, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lucetta White, 6911 Manistee street, yesterday. Until four months ago, when he was stricken by a paralytic stroke, Bishop was still active. He was 63 years of age.

Bishop was a member of the Pirates in 1886 and 1887. He started out on his league career with Richmond, in the Virginia State League. After being sent to Lowell, of the New England League, by the Pirates, Bishop pitched for London, in the old International loop; Syracuse and Utica, also of the International; Cap Anson's famous Chicago Colts; Mansfield, of the Tri-State League, and Olean, N. Y. After being released by Olean, he retired.

The former star is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lucetta White, and a son, George J. Bishop, a mechanical dentist, and a brother, M. J. Bishop, of Beaver, Pa., an official of the Bell Telephone Company.

Bears Engineers' Luncheon Guests

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Georgia Tech's Engineers and California Bears will battle it out with no quarter asked or given in their intersectional football tilt here tomorrow, but yesterday they came together in a luncheon-scrimmage with eating honors about even.

The Southerners were hosts to their Bear rivals and the boys spent an hour in friendly chatter and joking about the game's outcome.

Clark May Coach At Colorado College

GOLDEN, Col., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The Ore Digger, Colorado School of Mines student publication, says Earl (Dutch) Clark, professional football player, probably will be offered the position of head coach at Mines in the event of a shake-up in the school's athletic department.

Clark, who was an all-America quarterback at Colorado College in 1928, and was named quarterback on the all-America professional team this year, has indicated he will not play football next year, but will seek a coaching position.

Flu Cuts Field For Pasadena Open

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Influenza has cut into the ranks of the possible starters today for the annual Pasadena $4,000 Open golf tournament, with three of the leading contenders in the ranks of the doubtful.

George Von Elm, who made a special trip from the East to play, was taken sick and may be forced out of the tournament.

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal., P. G. A. champion, suffered influenza as a result of exposure in the San Francisco Open and is not sure whether he will be able to play. The same is true of his brother Mortie, who also contracted influenza during the tourney there.

PITT SCHEDULE CITED

"One of the leading features of the season was the killing schedule which Pittsburgh played without dropping to defeat. The Panthers were thrown against West Virginia, Duquesne, Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech and Stanford, a campaign that included at least eight hard games. While there were two drawn battles against Ohio State and Nebraska, both fine teams, there had to be brief breathing spells somewhere along this heavily guarded path, thick with trouble from start to finish. Pittsburgh's sudden thrust against Notre Dame, after a stout defense of its own goal nearly all afternoon, was one of the most spectacular accomplishments of the year."

HELLER "BIG FACTOR"

Explaining its choice of Heller, of Pitt, for the fullback post, Collier's says the competition for positions was very severe, and moves him out of his halfback berth to make room for him on the team.

Heller was picked because he "was the big factor in Pitt's victories over Army, Notre Dame and Stanford."

Local Catholic High Fives Form Circuit

Eight Catholic high schools in the Pittsburgh Diocese have organized a basketball league. Father Martin O'Toole is the head of the circuit.

Included in the membership are Duke Preps, St. Mary's of the Mount, St. Justin's, St. Veronica, of Ambridge; St. Joseph, of Natrona; St. Thomas, of Braddock; St. Luke, of Carnegie, and St. Francis de Sales, of McKees Rocks.

CHAPTER LV.

I placed a good deal of confidence, however, in some flares with which our party happened to be equipped. A few days before this, I had located a young leopard a few miles north of our temporary headquarters and we had made some night pictures of the young spotted cat, using flares to light up the vicinity in which we had treed him. We had transported a good supply of these brilliant torches with us from America and had taken a box of 25 from our base at Singapore up to the Johore camp.

Five of the flares had remained unused after making our leopard shots. These are what are known as two-minute flares—meaning that when you light one it burns steadily for that length of time.

The ingredients are a highly powerful chemical mixture which when lighted by a fuse throws out a brilliant light to a radius of 60 or 70 feet, at the same time radiating a great amount of heat. As a matter of fact, these light-makers generate so much heat that if you bring one of them in contact with a piece of armor plate it will burn right into the hard metal.

METHOD OF PROTECTION

These were the flares which I proposed to take with me into the enclosure. I decided to enter the brush carrying one of them, not so much to light up the dark interior as to protect me against a possible charge. For if the tiger came at me, his onward rush could be stopped by a thrust toward him of the burning carbide.

The flares are about two feet long and two inches in diameter, resembling a big roman candle. The outer surface is of heavy cardboard, with a hollow place at the bottom to permit its being mounted on a pole.

On deciding to go into the brush I had asked my Malay boy, Ali, if he was afraid to go in with me. He replied, as I knew he would, "Wherever you go, master, I go." So we prepared the flares by cutting five poles, six to eight feet long, and fastening a flare on the end of each pole. Ali took the flares while I buckled on a heavy revolver—a weapon of maximum deadliness in close quarters—and took up my rifle, loaded with 180-grain soft-nosed bullets. We lowered a long bamboo ladder into the enclosure from the top of the wall, and the two of us climbed down.

I have no desire to exaggerate the risk we were taking. There was a fair chance that it was no risk at all. It was quite possible the tiger would take to his heels the second we got anywhere near him.

FLARES LIGHTED

These great cats, like all other denizens of the jungle, have an instinct which teaches discretion as the better part of valor. Under ordinary circumstances they will usually avoid too close contact with human beings. But, after all, a tiger is a tiger and one can never be sure what these incalculable beasts will do. It is the best tactics, when dealing with them, always to expect the unexpected.

This was the mental attitude with which Ali and I approached our task. We got down into the enclosure and worked cautiously over to the edge of the thicket, keeping a keen lookout for any movement in the high grass. I had my rifle ready for instantaneous use, although I certainly would not shoot unless it was absolutely necessary.

Ali walked behind me, holding the sticks and a box of matches. I would light the first flare. His instructions were to keep his eyes glued on me, and the second my flare began to burn down he was to light another and hand it to me. I had impressed upon him that I did not want to be in the brush for even part of a second without a lighted flare.

I left my rifle leaning against a small tree and, taking one of the sticks from Ali, I ignited the fuse and we started into the real thicket. I kept poking the burning flare into the brush in front of me as we went in, first to the right and then to the left, in all directions. But one thing I had not figured on was that the dazzling brilliance of the torch was almost blinding to Ali and me.

I could not see a foot ahead of my flare and I did not like that at all, but I still felt that this burning brand with its intense heat and brilliant light was sufficient protection from a charge.

TIGER CHARGES

The first flare began to die down and Ali lighted a second one and handed it to me. I had no more than started ahead with it, when suddenly I heard a tremendous roar and a crashing of brush. The tiger was coming.

He was making for me from a point at my left. I stepped back quickly in order to give myself more room in which to manipulate the flare, the idea being to use it as a means of warding off the charge. As I moved backward my right foot caught in a creeper and I went down, flat on my back. In falling I dropped the pole and made a feverish grab for my revolver, but on account of the awkwardness of my position I could not seem to get hold of it.

The pole fell across my body, the burning end of it still blazing fiercely not three feet from my face. It all happened in an instant. Before I could make a move the tiger was almost on top of me, coming with a tremendous rush. Then suddenly, with a great roar, he jumped—but instead of landing on me he leaped clear over me and the sputtering torch.

I could see his striped belly as he went over. He had evidently come with a mad lunge through the heavy brush and then, all at once, finding himself faced with that flare, had completely lost his head and jumped clear over me without actually knowing what he was doing. He was just as much in a state of panic as I was.

By the time I got to my feet he had veered off into the heavy brush. That was O. K. with me. I had somehow got my revolver out of the holster—anyhow it was in my hand when I stood up, but I had no desire to shoot anything but pictures, and just at that moment my main wish was to get out of that brush.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The story in all the gazettes last week over "the great mystery" surrounding the cancellation of Lady Astor's speech before the Foreign Affairs Committee in the House at Washington isn't a mystery at all . . . The fact is that more than a year ago, when several congressmen were On The Other Side, they asked Lady Astor to assist in the Washington Bicentennial, and she turned them down cold—for reasons, perhaps, she couldn't help . . . After all, Washington was one of England's first Pains-In-The-Neck, and if Lady Astor, an American born gal, helped revive any ill feeling the Britishers might have, she would have embarrassed her Lord and Parliament . . . However, the same men were on that committee the other day — and they wouldn't let her make that speech!

That Judge Crater disappearance has my goat . . . Wonder how much there is to the talk that the cops know that exactly three months to the day he disappeared he was talking to a famous detective on a train bound for Beacon, New York? . . . Come out, come out, wherever you are! . . . Add neat tricks: Kate Smith singing, "You've Got Me In the Palm of Your Hand" . . . What a pashy song that is—Cole Porter's "Night and Day" from the "Gay Divorce" show . . . The lyric of the chorus is delightful . . . Can't even remember how it goes, I mean the wordage . . . But I like that part where he says "like the drip, drip, drip" of something or other, and "the tick, tick, tick of the great big clock," and so on . . . The big idea being that something inside of him keeps saying—"you, you, you!" . . . Plenty nice song . . . The accident at "Take a Chance," when the scenery felled some of the girls, didn't stop the clowns from thinking up jokes about it . . . With one of them observing: "Nowadays when a show won't flop—the scenery does!" . . . Funny story about The Street Singer . . . Between song records in the studio the other day, he spoke his opinion of rivals—and a meanie there made a recording of the opinions! . . . And now the victims are being invited to get a load of what their critic thinks of them!

Interesting report this . . . About the speakeasy in the 50s, which is terribly exclusive. It bars the socially registered—if the owners don't like them . . . The two owners being a former taxi driver and a delicatessen slicer . . . The legend has it that they are protected by a Senator from New England, whose name I had better not record now . . . At any rate, the protecting statesman is a lame duck, who paddles out of office in March—and I wonder who will protect that sassy speak then? . . . Borzage the director of "Farewell to Arms," looks like an Italian and has an Italian name, but he's as Irish as a St. Patrick's Day parade . . . Liked everything about his movie—except the last two minutes . . . When the beautifully sad ending is ruined by a mess of doves flying about the scene . . . Shades of "Once in a Lifetime" . . . When the belittlers of Hollywood used the same stunt to show their contempt for Hollywood intelligence.

Most amusing about that process server . . . Who had a summons for a newspaper publisher, and when he arrived at the scene and smelled printer's ink—he was so filled with aspirations to be a newspaperman! . . . So after serving the publisher—he confessed his desires—and got the job! . . . In his books Alec Waugh, the English novelist, always insisted he would never marry anyone excep an American woman . . . The gossips suspected it would be that fetching actress, Erin O'Brien Moore—for it was on her that he based the character of the American actress in his novel, "That American Woman." . . . But, after all, Waugh must have changed his mind about the charming American woman, for he married an Australian heiress . . . What a horrible crack to make! I mean about such a good comedian, too . . . After his broadcast the other night one radio critic said: "The reason the house was so quiet after he pulled a joke was that the audience in the studio was listening to hear Joe Miller turning in his tomb!"

Those of us in the editorial rooms have been enjoying this between editions . . . One of those difficult-to-believe things happened . . . One of the town's most dignified city magistrates was socked right on the schnozzle by a resentful mendicant whose request for alms he had just denied. The brave panhandler, after socking the judge, ran like the devil, of course, and never even knew he had banged up the august kisser of a man who wore black robes in a court . . . If he has the price of a newspaper he probably will see this here and have a thrill . . . At any rate, the jurist had his revenge by ordering the cops to round up all the vagrants in the neighborhood—so that he might find his antagonist and even matters . . . They began streaming into court the next day, accompanied by arresting bluecoats, until the pettiness of their offenses caught the attention of a night court magistrate, who demanded the reason for the wholesale arrests . . . One cop explained it was because another judge had been [illegible] . . . The reporters in the room immediately flashed th[illegible] to their rags . . . The judge-victim burned when he saw the story—and threatened to have the poor journalists fired for their temerity in using his name without authorization . . . That is, until he suddenly remembered that he couldn't deny it . . . for when he was hit he was accompanied by a friendly reporter, with whom he had just been on a party! . . . He then dropped the entire matter—which convinced me that even a judge has intelligence.

The third morning musicale in the hotel Schenley yesterday morning brought two good talents, Margaret Stoner Klingelhofer, contralto, and Ellen Scanlon, 'cellist.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Scanlon played to so much better advantage than on a previous hearing, offering parts of the Bach C Major Suite for unaccompanied 'cello, a Bach air, and then more recent works, including an exotic "Serenade" of Samazenilh, with whom we are unacquainted, and who surely must have some other interesting works in his portfolio. During the Bach, Miss Scanlon's tone was sonorous and flowed with grace, certainly not without firmness. There were the rugged outlines and the bel canto side by side.

Mrs. Klingelhofer has an attractive contralto voice, rather light in quality, and she sings very prettily. There is musical feeling in all she does, and her Russian songs had excellent restrained, though dramatic effect. She gave a moving interpretation of Harvey Gaul's "Go Tell It on the Mountain," itself a deeply religious tune. Miss Lefridge again played accompaniments.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Una Merkel Cast With Truex

Una Merkel has been given the feminine lead in "Whistling in the Dark," which will go into production soon at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios under direction of Elliot Nugent. Ernest Truex repeats his original stage role, and the cast also includes Johnny Hines, Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Tenen Holtz and Marcelle Corday.

New Show Boat Bill Begins Today

Sylvia Sidney And Gary Teamed

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—After two years of rising cinema fortunes, Sylvia Sidney will be teamed again with Gary Cooper, her first leading man in Hollywood.

Miss Sidney

Not so long ago, it was George Raft who was supposed to do this picture, but Hollywood has a way of changing its mind. Schulberg thinks he has a great team in Gary and Sylvia. They almost did "Madame Butterfly" together, but plans went awry.

* * *

Since that time, you've heard a dozen people named as on the receiving end of the tirade. Recently, O. O. McIntyre pinned it on the assistant director.

"That part of the story is wrong. I wouldn't mind so much myself, but it made my tailor sore as the devil."

* * *

You hear lots of rumors that Charles Chaplin has consented to do a national radio broadcast and that he will talk about his book . . . Leaving Paramount isn't worrying Claudette Colbert. She is moving into the former Greta Garbo home on Brentwood Heights, a modest four-acre estate with a 65-foot swimming pool, tennis courts, etc. With Norman Foster living at the other end of things, it will be almost a Pullman-jump between the abodes of these two married individualists. . . . The Marlene Dietrich (without Josef Von Sternberg) picture is supposed to go into production on Monday. Fredric March hops from "The Queen Was In the Parlor" right into the lead opposite the German star. If you can believe rumor, Paramount wants to finish one Dietrich film and get started on another before her contract ends in February . . . Freddie March, by the way, can produce a snapshot of his adopted daughter on a moment's notice. Maybe the Marches will adopt a boy next year . . . I see that Robert Armstrong has been going to the Grove with Gladys DuBois . . . Sally Blane and Billie Bakewell have all the match-makers casting suspicious eyes at them.

Mr. Chaplin

Strong Drama In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Doctor's Sacrifice," film in the Fulton, is an example of how a wholly implausible situation can be made interesting to audiences and give dramatic punch to a picture that is blessed with unusual incidents to offset an ordinary story. The situation in mind is that of a man whose life is saved by another trying to kill his benefactor. It is explained in the fact that there is a pretty girl, Thelma Todd, between the two men, Lyle Talbot, as the life-saver, and Jason Robards, as the saved.

Most of the action takes place in the Klondike region of Alaska, hence one of the unusual incidents referred to is an airplane flight thither, with our hero, Mr. Talbot, as companion to a real-life aviator, Capt. Frank Hawks, noted speed flyer, playing the character of an airman. Could we say he acts naturally without being suspected of trying to spring a joke? Well, he does. Then there is an airplane crash, in which but one survives.

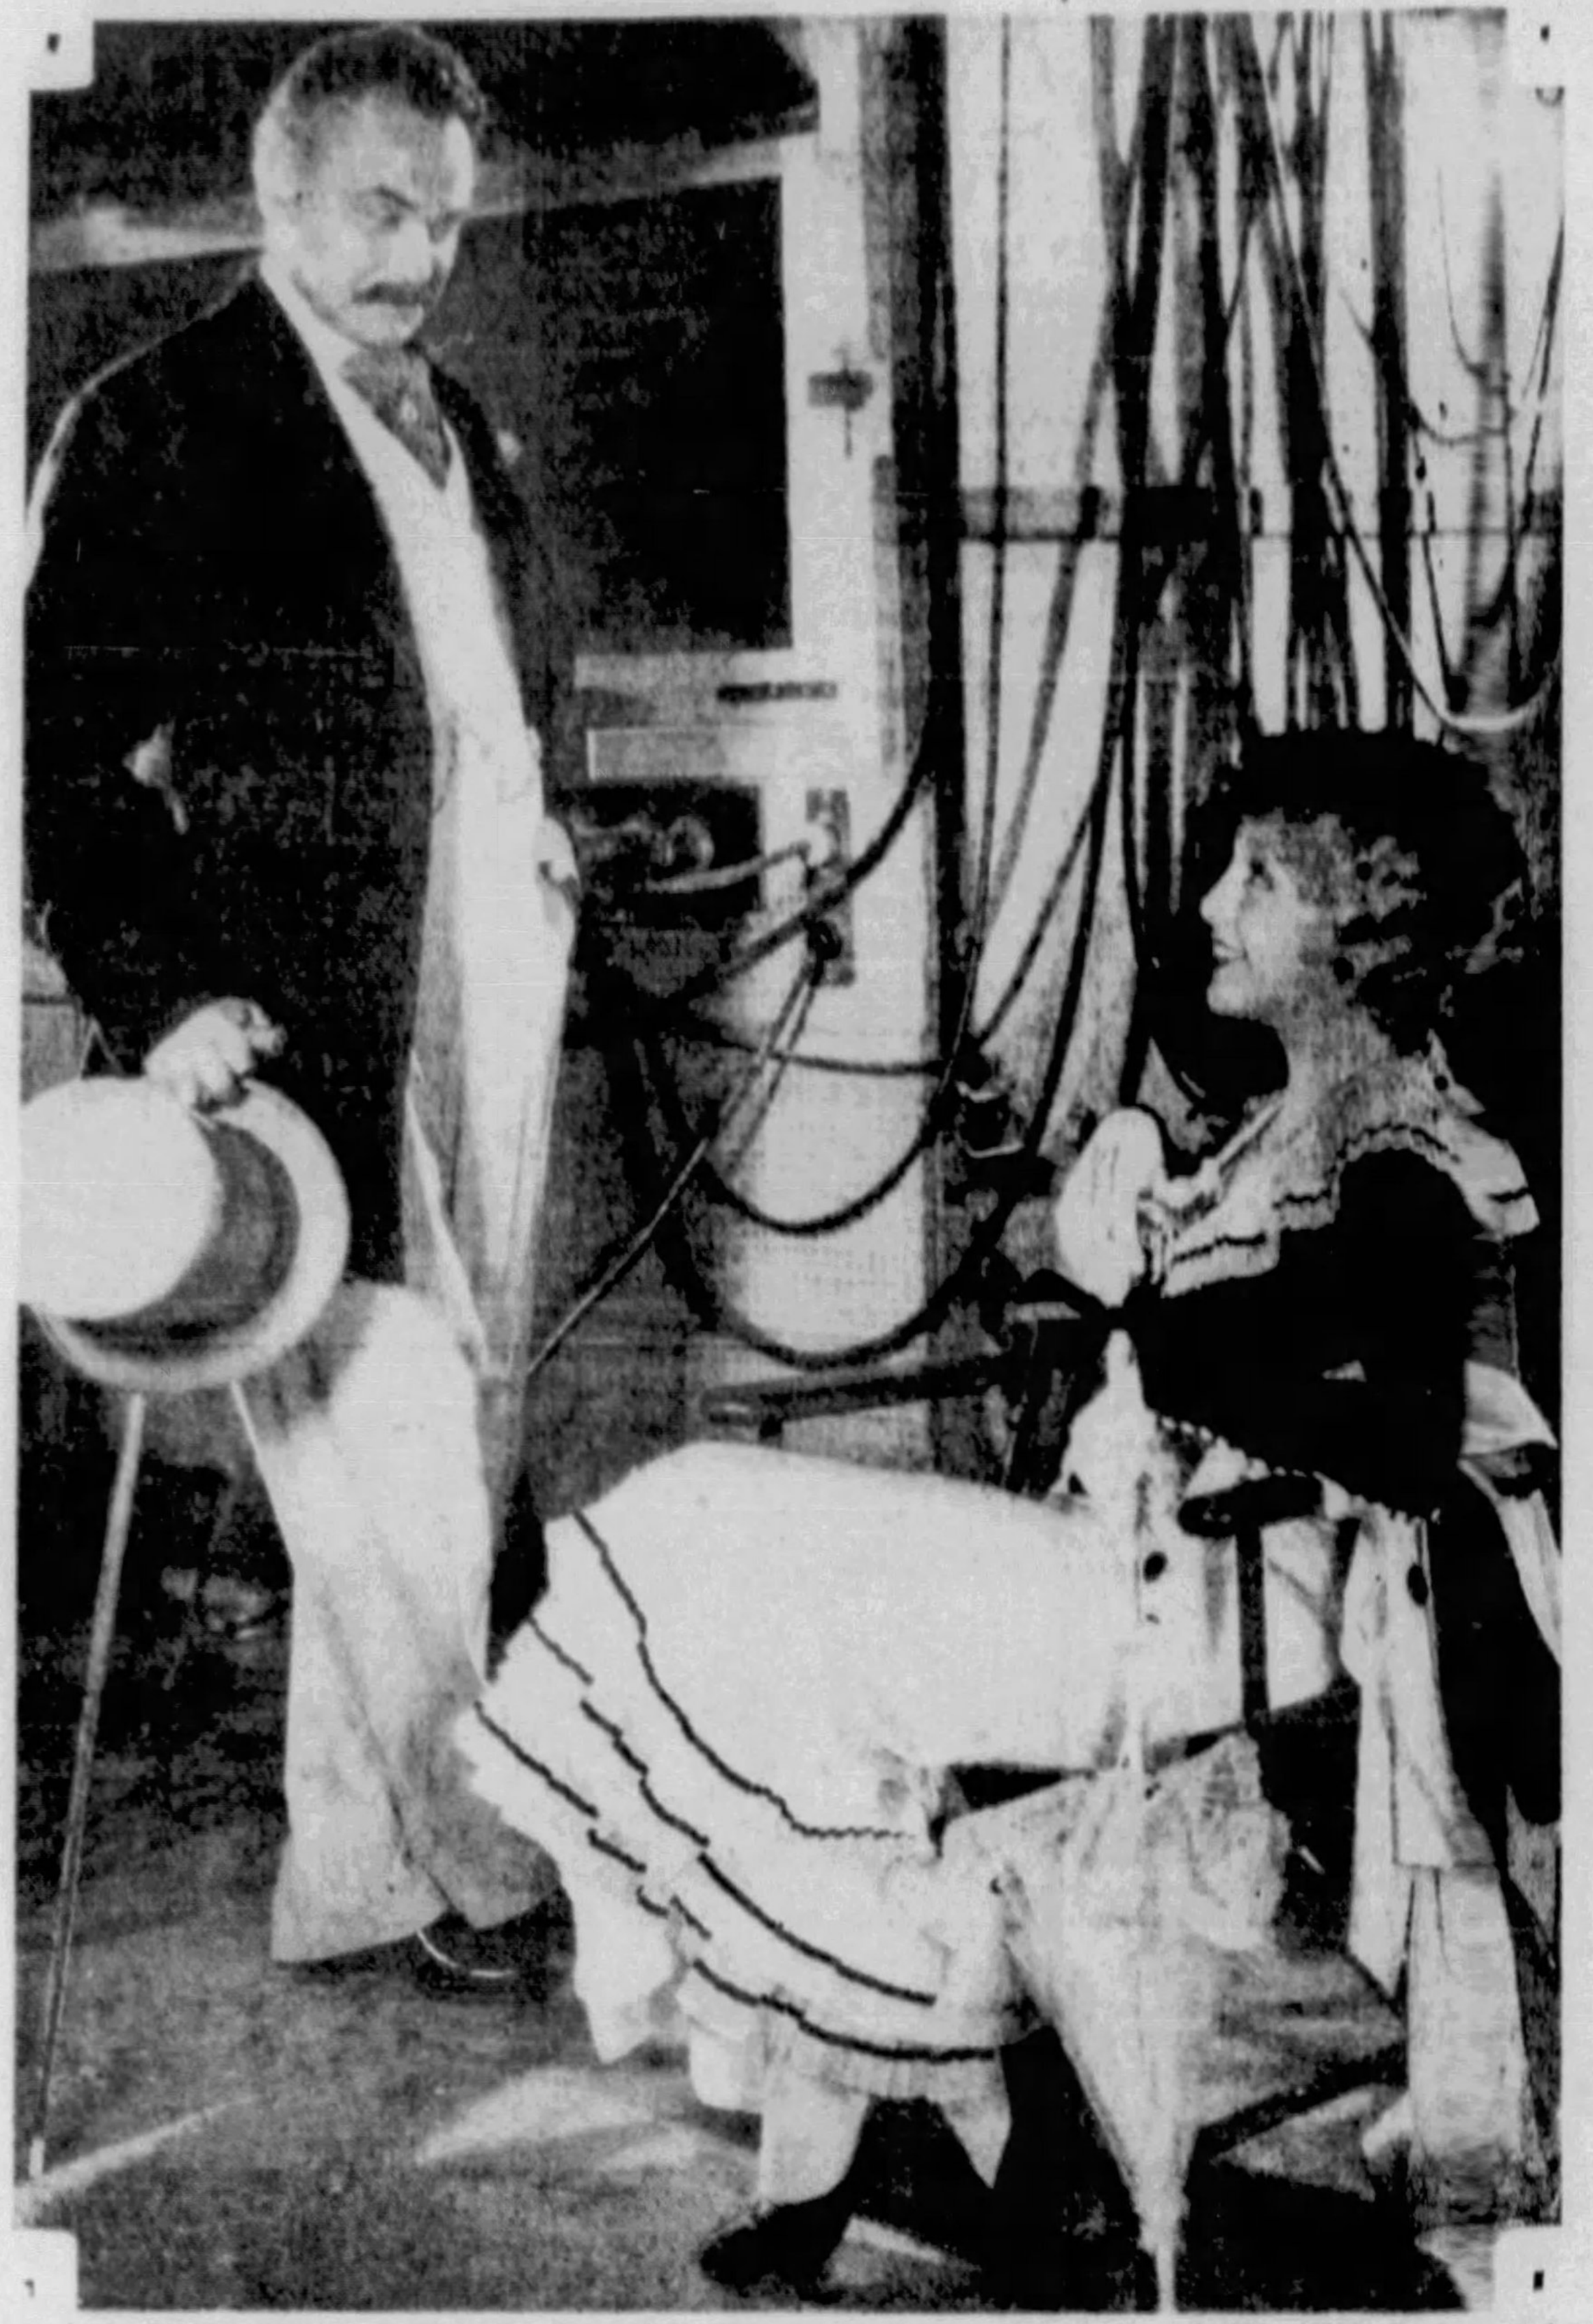
The fortunate one is a surgeon who has been discredited by the public and his profession at home. But that doesn't deprive him of his skill, and it is put to use in the north, with the strange result mentioned at the outset. Yet, of course, everything terminates rosily, with the doctor's reputation re-established, and the girl his wife.

It is well acted by the principals mentioned, and there also is a nice character portrayal by the veteran, Henry B. Walthal. Priscilla Dean, star of silent films, has little to do, but does it well. Hearst Metrotone News and other screen numbers round out a diverting bill.

California Democrat In Political Role

Frank Sheridan, who portrays Kelleher, a big-shot politician, in Columbia's "Washington Merry-Go-Round," is in real life a political power. He is Democratic leader in Monterey County, Cal., and was secretary of the last California Democratic state convention.

Gold Rush Days



Edward G. Robinson and Bebe Daniels as actual characters of Denver's gold rush, re-created for the screen as "Silver Dollar," depicting the career of one of Colorado's most noted figures of that period, one who arose from poverty to riches and spent it all.

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Irish Players of Dublin, nearing the end of a week of high dramatic accomplishment in the Nixon, will present "The Far-Off Hills," comedy by Lennox Robinson that has been listed for two performances, Tuesday and tonight. Yet tonight's production will be its first this week, that of Tuesday having been prevented by the illness of a member of the company whose presence was necessary. A delightful feature of the Irish plays this week has been the accent, a shading that is a song-like inflection imparting rythm and cadence even to commonplace utterances. It will add to the richness of "The Far-Off Hills," described as a boisterous comedy. The story is laid in the household of a widower, a home dominated by an old-maid daughter, much to the discomfiture of her two younger sisters whose plot to mend the situation provides the humor. Tomorrow's matinee will be a repetition of "The New Gossoon." The concluding performances in the evening will be W. B. Yates' one-act play, "Kathleen ni Houlihan" and a second performance of "The Playboy of the Western World," last night's principal vehicle.

* * *

As a feature of the next week's bill in the Pitt, George Sharp will throw a Christmas party for youngsters on the stage of the theater. It will be held at the conclusion of the matinee performance of "East Lynn," Saturday afternoon, December 24. Children under 16 will be admitted to this performance at half price and, as an extra boon, there will be gifts from Santa Claus to be distributed at the party. Mr. Sharp, host, will have the assistance of Alden Chase, Jean May and other members of the company in giving welcome to the juvenile patrons of the theater on this occasion. "East Lynne," which is being revived here for the first time in many years, was originally presented in America in the Academy Theater, New York, 70 years ago. In the cast was a young actor destined to become one of America's greatest tragedians, the late Lawrence Barrett.

New Movies In Town

Dick Powell is back in the Stanley today, but in the shadow instead of the flesh. He has the leading romantic role in support of Will Rogers in "Too Busy to Work," playing opposite Marian Nixon.

The new week's screen features in the Penn, beginning today, are "Fast Life," starring William Haines and Madge Evans, a new Laurel & Hardy comedy, "Their First Mistake," and a novelty, "The Isle of Desire."

"No More Orchids" begins a week on the Warner screen today. This photoplay has Carole Lombard, Lyle Talbot, Walter Connolly and Louise Closser Hale in the prominent roles.

The Davis and Regent will begin a new week tomorrow with Lee Tracy featured in "The Night Mayor," and Joel McCrea and Fay Wray in "The Most Dangerous Game."

The Saturday change of bill in the Enright will feature Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in their latest comedy drama, "Prosperity," to run through Tuesday.

In the Sheridan Square tomorrow, to run for three days, will be the Joe E. Brown comedy, "You Said a Mouthful," with Ginger Rogers opposite the star.

Synge's 'Playboy' at Nixon Shows Slight Reason For Celtic Wrath

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It was not the first time John Millington Synge's comedy, "The Playboy of the Western World," has been produced in Pittsburgh, but after these years it was possible to judge of this roystering farce with a sort of historic perspective—like discussing the battle of Waterloo in 2015. What was the row about? Why should there have been mobs and anathemas and the smashing of windows and cracking of skulls over this Irish bull in a theatrical china shop? Last night at the Nixon Theater it was possible to ask that question and get a glimpse of the answer.

Mr. Seibel

No doubt the Greeks felt sore at Aristophanes and the Romans at Plautus, for the characters in their plays were not exactly handsome and glorious. Compared with them, the "Playboy" is rather mild and good-natured. At worst it is an overdrawn caricature, but no more a lampoon on the Irish race than Sir John Falstaff on the British people or the Emperor Jones on the Negroes.

What the play is could be deduced from the hearty laughter of an intelligent audience—a rollicking picture of rural regions, with all the good-humored vices of gossip and deep drinking that belong to primitive communities.

RIA MOONEY'S PEGEEN

Eileen Crowe was still unable to appear, and Ria Mooney took the role of Pegeen Mike. She did it with dash and charm, while May Craig as Sara Tansey and Kate Curling as Honor Blake were just as spirited and girlish.

Arthur Shields was the Playboy Christy, and P. J. Carolan was his father—both as convincing as could be. Barry Fitzgerald as the publican was deliciously absurd, and Michael J. Dolan as the second cousin suitor seemed a visible inferiority complex. Maureen Delany played the Widow Quinn with her usual gusto.

LIKE "PEER GYNT"

The kinship of this play with Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" comes out more forcibly the longer you study it. Peer's boasting and his poetic vein, intimately related, are also the mainsprings of Christy's character. When he finds that the confession he has killed his father makes him a hero, coddled and fed by all the pretty girls, he piles on the details with elaborate embroidery. This imaginative strain rises into high poetry during the last act, when he woos Pegeen with an eloquent warmth that makes him a Hibernian Romeo.

It is hard to see what the Irish people hold against Synge, who is a major poet just as surely as William Butler Yeats. Lady Gregory's dramatized anecdote, "Spreading the News," which was used as a curtain raiser, shows the same sort of characters with the same line of blarney.

Tonight "The Far-Off Hills," by Lennox Robinson, will be played for the first time this week, as the Tuesday bill had been changed. This is the most entertaining of all the dramas in the Abbey repertoire.

STOCKS AGAIN FALL IN DULL TRADING

Coppers and oils were adversely affected by the price situation in both industries, and the steel shares were under pressure, with United States Steel preferred appearing to drag down the rest of the list.

Selling of Steel preferred in recent sessions has evidently reflected fresh uncertainty over the dividend. Directors are not slated to meet until the last Tuesday of January. Some quarters in Wall street feel that continuance of the payment will depend upon the extent of the recovery in steel operations after the turn of the year. The last two weeks in December are normally one of the dullest periods of the year for the steel makers.

Brokerage quarters continued to reflect considerable bullishness, chiefly on the theory that the market was well sold out, and that the final weeks of the year often see an upturn in shares. The public, however, has shown little inclination to re-enter the market, although a trickle of "good" buying is reported here and there by some houses.

WORLD WHEAT PRICES DROP

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Downturns of grain values here early today resulted from sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations and bearish aspects of the United States government crop report. Official estimates of 1932 domestic spring wheat production were reduced less than expected and winter wheat estimates were increased to a surprising extent. Opening ⅜-1 lower, Chicago wheat futures subsequently dropped further. Corn started ⅛-⅜ off and afterward held near the initial figures.

Exporting countries were reported selling wheat futures heavily at Liverpool, with competition keen between Canada and Argentine. New all time low price records for wheat were quickly reached at Winnipeg and Liverpool. On stop loss selling, Chicago July wheat contracts outdid the bottommost figures heretofore this season.

FURTHER RALLY IN STERLING

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Further strength in the British pound sterling lifted the rate 1 cent to $3.30⅛, a new high for the recovery movement and 15 cents above the all-time low. Other exchanges allied to the pound, such as the Scandinavian and Canadian, also were strong.

The franc, however, continued weak and under the gold point at 3.90¼, off ⅛, along with the currencies of other defaulting nations such as Belgium, which ruled at 13.84, .001 of a cent under the gold point.

The Federal Reserve gold statement showed transactions of record proportions yesterday as a result of the bookkeeping through which the English debt payment was made. The net gain to the country's gold stocks amounted to $98,101,800 net, of which $95,550,000 resulted from earmarking of that amount in London. Gold received here amounted to $4,540,800, of which $1,989,000 was earmarked for foreign account.

RADIO MELON BAN DENIED

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John C. Knox yesterday dismissed the suit of the Torquay Corporation against the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, after denying a motion by the plaintiff to remand its suit to the New York Supreme Court.

Judge Knox also denied an injunction sought by the plaintiff company, an R. C. A. stockholder, to restrain General Electric and Westinghouse from distributing 7,500,000 shares of R. C. A. stock among their stockholders.

The decision in effect leaves the matter of distributing the R. C. A. stock in question in the hands of General Electric and Westinghouse, which, with R. C. A., consented to a Federal Court decree entered in Delaware providing for dissolution of an allegedly illegal combination on the part of R. C. A., General Electric and Westinghouse.

Decline in Sugar Output Forecast

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—World sugar production for the season 1932-1933 is estimated at 16,063,000 metric tons by Dr. Mikush, sugar statistician. This compares with 27,771,000 tons and 30,208,000 tons, respectively, in the previous two seasons.

He places the Javan 1933 crop at 1,400,000 tons.

Preliminary Estimates Indicate Drop in Car Loadings

Tomorrow's report on carloadings is expected to reveal a shrinkage perhaps a little greater than seasonal, but if rail shares follow their course of recent weeks the report will have little bearing on the market. Preliminary forecasts suggest the drop will run somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000 cars from the total of the preceding week. This would indicate total loadings of about 524,000 cars, which if borne out would represent a decrease of about 15 per cent from the total of approximately 614,000 cars reported moved in the same week last year. Loadings last week ran 14 per cent under the corresponding period in 1931.

The Annalist says there was little change in the average level of business activity in November from October. The publication's preliminary index for last month is 59.9 compared with 60 for October and 60.4 for September, the advance over the July low is about 16 per cent. Records going back to 1790, it says, show that "the initial rebounds from the lowest depths of several past depressions have been followed by several months of hesitation before the general upswing was resumed." However, the first recovery from the second post-war depression of 1874-79 "was followed not by a resumption of the recovery, but by recurring relapses which prolonged the period of severe depression for a period of more than two years."

Automotive observers are awaiting disclosure of Ford's plans for 1933 for clarification of the price structure which will prevail next year in the all-important passenger car field. While preliminary announcements by some manufacturers have indicated lower prices as well as additional lines in this section of the industry, prices placed on the new Chevrolets have about maintained the status quo with 1932 schedules.

The International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation has acquired title to 610,000 shares of stock of L. M. Ericsson Company, Ltd., Stockholm, and canceled its claim against the bankrupt estate of Kreuger & Toll for a corresponding number of such shares. As a result of this arrangement International Telegrape has no further interest in nor relationship with Kreuger & Toll. Arrangements have been made for representation for I. T. & T. in the direction of the L. M. Ericsson Company.

The total of money in circulation contracted by $5,000,000 in the past week, the report of the Federal Reserve shows. This is in contrast with the expansion of $71,000,000 which took place in the corresponding week last year, when currency was going into hiding in substantial volume. Ordinarily the period from the first week in November to the middle of December, is one of considerable expansion in money circulation. This year it has been much smaller, probably due to two factors, first the lesser demand for currency due to conditions, and secondly, the continued return of funds from hiding this tending to act as an offset in some measure to actual demand.

Pennsylvania is among the several rail issues which of late have reflected rather confident buying, particularly on slight dips. Demand here is accounted for in some degree perhaps by indications that the road will be among those able to cover fixed charges by a comfortable margin this year. Estimates now current indicate final net will run between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000, which would be equivalent to better than 50 cents a share on the capital stock. This would compare with actual net of $19,545,000, or the equivalent of $1.48 a share reported for 1931.

CROPS CONFORM TO ESTIMATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The Department of Agriculture in making its final 1932 crop report yesterday said it confirmed earlier indications of substantially lower production of crops raised for sale and substantially heavier production of seed crops than in either 1931 or 1930.

The report showed the sharpest reduction in wheat, cotton, tobacco and rice, the leading cash crops of which there is normally a surplus for export.

Fruit production was described as substantially below average because of weather conditions and commercial production of vegetables for canning was reported the lowest in several years, primarily because of a reduction in acreage planted.

Production of seed grain was the largest since 1920, and the hay crop than in either of the last two years.

The back-to-the-farm movement was reported as having no measurable effect in increasing the agricultural output except for food crops for home use. It was described as probably helping to maintain acreage under present adverse conditions.

N. Y. CHRISTMAS SAVINGS

Savings banks in New York State, through Christmas Clubs, this year will distribute $13,934,728, a decrease of 6.48 per cent from last year. The distribution is being made to 313,209 club members, the largest on record, according to the Savings Banks Association of New York. Of 142 mutual institutions in the state, 105 conduct Christmas Clubs.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES NARROW

Prices moved in a narrow range on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the early dealings today, with volume holding about at yesterday's levels, which were slightly above those earlier in the week.

The flurry in the fuel stocks, which followed the declaration of an initial dividend on Western Public Service yesterday, appeared to have petered out but most of the stocks retained the small gains made on the previous session's bulge. Scattered trading was the general rule throughout the oil and gas division. Crude oil cuts in the Southwest had but little reflection on the local market.

Industrials were narrow but displayed a fairly steady tone. United Engineering started unchanged but receded fractionally on subsequent sales.

COTTON PRICES RULE STEADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Cotton figures opened steady, 1 lower to 2 higher with lower Liverpool cables offset by unfavorable weather. December 5.84; January 5.84; March 6.00; May 6.10; July 6.20; October 6.37.

On the whole, orders seemed evenly divided, but if anything the market was a shade steadier after the call, with January holding around 5.88 and May 6.11 at the end of the first half hour or about 1 to 3 points net higher.

More price fixing seemed to be reaching the market during the middle of the morning, but general business continued quiet and after selling up to $5.90 for January contracts and $6.13 for May, or about 3 to 5 points net higher, the market reacted slightly. Prices at midday were holding around yesterday's close. Southern selling was less active than yesterday and a continued firm spot basis was reported in the south.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 16.—Cotton, 10,000 bales including 8,600 American. Spot quiet; prices 4 points lower; quotations in pence; American strict good middling, 5.96; good middling, 5.66; strict middling, 5.41; middling, 5.26; strict low middling, 5.11; low middling, 4.96; strict good ordinary, 4.76; good ordinary, 4.46. Futures closed quiet and steady. December, 5.00; January, 5.00; March, 5.03; May, 5.05; July, 5.06; October, 5.07.

European Copper Prices Hold Firm

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—While a small tonnage of copper was sold at 5 cents a pound c. i. f. Havre, for French delivery, there is copper available abroad at 4.90 cents c. i. f. European base ports. Buying on the other side is virtually all on speculative account.

In the domestic market, Copper is 5 cents a pound, delivered, to the end of March, and there are indications that a price of 5 cents may prevail upon April to June, 1933, shipments within the next day or two.

CRUDE OIL CUTS SPREADING IN WEST

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Crude oil prices today tumbled far below the dollar peak that has been the battle cry of producers more than a year.

Two major purchasers, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and the Consolidated Oil Corporation (Sinclair), announced through their mid-continent buying units that they will begin paying in certain areas on a gravity schedule from 45 cents to 77 per barrel today.

Other companies were paying on divergent scales and there was no apparent concerted attempt to stabilize the price at any point.

FURTHER DROP SEEN

The Tulsa World, however, forecast that the Gypsy Oil Company (Gulf Oil Corporation) and the Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing Company (Standard Oil of Indiana), will follow the lead of the New Jersey Standard and post a 77-cent top.

Consolidated Oil said:

"The drastically lower levels announced may be expected to lead to the establishment within a short time of prices far below former schedules."

Sinclair was the moving spirit behind the advance of 12 cents in October which brought prices to $1.12 and above $1 for the first time since March, 1931.

EAST TEXAS IN TURMOIL

LONGVIEW, Tex., Dec. 16.—(INS.)—Eyes of the oil industry turned to the East Texas field today, where crude oil once more was offered for sale for as low as 25 cents a barrel, throwing the field into the greatest turmoil of its existence.

With guardsmen withdrawn from active enforcement and the staff of the State Railroad Commission greatly reduced, more than 300 wells were reported to be producing more than the daily allowance. A number of the wells were reported running wide open.

Fears were expressed that the field would be entirely wide open within a short time.

BUSINESS

New Beer Company Will Apply For Listing On Market Here

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

APPLICATION WILL BE made shortly to add another brewery stock to the trading list of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. This is to follow the public offering of 129,000 shares of stock of the Victor Brewing Company through a group of local brokers at $1.50 a share.

The stock being offered at present is part of a total authorized and outstanding capitalization of 800,000 shares of $1 par value. The company has no preferred stock or bonds outstanding.

The Victor Brewing Company was organized in 1907 with a plant at Jeannette, Pa., with an annual capacity of 125,000 to 150,000 barrels of beer. It operated as a brewery until prohibition became effective in 1920, and from that time until 1923 it was engaged in the manufacture of non-alcoholic cereal beverages and ice.

Organization And Plant Kept Intact

THE MACHINERY and plant equipment has been well maintained. Vats have been filled with water to keep them tight and clean. Other equipment and buildings have been kept in repair in order to permit the resumption of operation at any time.

The president of the organization is Frank A. Maddas, who directed its affairs during pre-prohibition days. The key men in the company, including the brewmaster, have been retained in the organization during the prohibition period and are still available to insure efficient operation in the future.

The plant is the third largest unit in Western Pennsylvania and is within trucking distance of the principal markets in this part of the state. In the opinion of the management, present buildings are adequate, with additional equipment, to increase capacity by 50 per cent.

* * *

Proceeds to Provide Working Capital

THE PROCEEDS FROM the sale of the stock are to be used for expenses and plant reconditioning, for the payment of debts and for operating capital. Of the money to be derived from the current offering of stock, 85 per cent will be impounded in the First National Bank at Pittsburgh to be released when the Pennsylvania Securities Commission notifies the bank of the issuance of a permit to the Victor Brewing Company by the State Alcohol Permit Board. In the event that the Volstead act is not amended or repealed the company will operate its plant for the manufacture of cereal beverages and ice.

A letter from the company to brokers participating in the sale of the stock said:

"No accurate estimate can be made of future business or earnings. However, if the manufacture of beer is authorized, it seems reasonable to expect that the Victor Brewing Company can operate profitably without delay in view of its past reputation, the condition of its plant and its experienced management."

LESS RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ending December 14, was reported by the Federal Reserve Banks as $2,194,000,000, a decrease of $15,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $288,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

On December 14, total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,189,000,000, a decline of $8,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with drops of $5,000,000 in money in circulation and $4,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, non-member deposits, etc., and increases of $17,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $10,000,000 in Treasury currency, adjusted, offset in part by an increase of $30,000,000 in member bank reserve balances.

Holdings of discounted bills declined $10,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and $15,000,000 at all Federal Reserve Banks.

The system's holdings of bills bought in open market and of United States government bonds show little change for the week, while holdings of Treasury certificates and bills increased $22,000,000 and those of United States Treasury notes decreased by the same amount.

Forbes

Has America Today Become Shock-Proof?

—By B. C. FORBES—

HAS THIS country become shock-proof?

There are increasing grounds for deducing that it has. France's dumbfounding action this week failed to disturb. Last month the Democratic landslide was accepted calmly by the financial world. A fresh drop in commodity prices to new low levels caused no disturbance whatsoever on the security exchanges.

Mr. Forbes

It is proverbial in Wall street that when bad news ceases to precipitate demoralizing liquidation, the market is ripe for an advance. Certainly, stocks lately have heroically resisted bear attacks and unfavorable news.

Does all this portend the dawning of better days?

"DIRECT FROM manufacturer to consumer" has long been a familiar phrase. Never heretofore has it been used by automobile manufacturers. Now President W. R. Angell, of Continental Motors, announces:

"Motorists will be able to buy their automobiles direct from the manufacturer in 1933."

The plan is to set up Continental "terminals," meaning distributing stations, in every important center, from which deliveries of the company's new low-priced car will be made. Continental has long supplied motors for other car manufacturers, but is now making its debut as a car manufacturer on its own account.

To attract buyers, I understand that advertising will be extensively employed; also mail-order efforts.

I hear that department stores may shortly be induced to sell low-priced autos.

REFERRING TO figures recently credited in this column to the American Laundry Machinery Company, its statistician wants the explanation made that "the figures were all based on maintaining the same dollar profit, and not the same dollar volume of sales."

STANLEY DOLLAR, president of the United States Lines and other important shipping companies, says:

"Shipping volume is increasing gradually and I believe it will continue to pick up steadily."

He adds:

"Sentiment among the shipping fraternity is much better—although they are not unmindful that there is still much surplus tonnage in the trans-Atlantic trade, with new Italian liners and other French and British liners planning to go into commission soon."

Here, however, is his inspiring conclusion:

POINTER FOR those still able to give Christmas presents: Give securities. They cannot fail to enhance in value by and by.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The bond market moved cautiously today and prices generally displayed a mildly irregular trend. Several foreign issues, recently depressed by the French and Belgian defaults, apparently thought better of the problem and rallied moderately. United States government obligations, after their spurt of Thursday, showed a tendency to rest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

SHIFT IN U. S. LOAN POLICY AWAITED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The federal government will sound a signal of cheer, which will have a profound effect on investors and on thoughtful business executives, when it decides that the time is ripe to fund some of the excessive short term Treasury obligations into long term bonds.

There is some disposition to defer such an operation because the Treasury has been getting short term funds at fantastically low interest rates. Such low rates, of course, really reflect artificialities in the money market, which has been glutted with timid funds by the Federal Reserve open market policy, rather than the public appraisal of federal credit.

Mr. Rukeyser

BIG DEFICIT LOOMS

Of course, under exsting conditions the federal government would have to pay a distinctly higher rate or long term funds than for these short term obligations, yet, in doing so, the Treasury would be assured that its needs had been taken care of on a lasting basis, instead of continuing wholly on the existing hand to mouth basis. Before the maturity of the long term bonds, short term money rates are likely to be considerably higher than they now are.

Of course, the looming of huge deficits does not heighten the public credit. On the other hand, I am not one of those who have become hysterical on this subject. If steps can be taken to reach an actual budget balancing in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, United States credit will, in my opinion, still represent par in the investment world.

A real balancing of the budget must entail a program of tax revision along scientific lines, tapping a broader base, including a general manufacturers' sales tax and an excise tax on legalized light wines and beer.

OPERATION IMPORTANT

The time to consider funding operations is after Congress has acted on appropriations and taxes for the coming fiscal year. Maturities of bills and certificates will reach $2,750,000,000 in 1933.

Of course, it has become habitual since the war for the government to keep short-term indebtedness outstanding. Banks and corporations welcome this form of liquid investment. There should therefore be no attempt to eliminate the short-term debt, but it is merely suggested that it be retired in part with long-term financing. Part of it, of course, consists of loans and will be automatically retired when they are paid off.

From the standpoint of its effect on the minds of investors and business executives, a substantial and successful long-term funding operation at a satisfactorily low rate of interest will be interpreted as an important milestone in economic reconstruction.

I do not know your street names so I shop up and down the Sun-Telegraph "To Rent—Rooms" advertisements—not up and down the street for signs. You probably have just the room I am looking for. THE MAGIC VALLEY

We just opened a new colony and offer some of this wonderful land (none better anywhere) in tracts of 10, 20, 40 and 80 acres to the actual settler and investor, on terms never offered before; adjoining land sells from $200 to $750 per acre; if set out in orchards it sells from $1,000 to $3,500 per acre. I have now only one price for a short time only—$300 per acre; terms, 10% cash and one-half of your crop until paid in full; under this plan you don't trade or pay any more cash, just one-half of your crop pays for the land. You understand: No crop, no pay, and if the land does not pay for itself in 10 years, we give you deed and abstract without paying me one more cent cash. Does this appeal to you? If so, come investigate. For information write the owner, Nicholas Piklor, 2659 Lakewood, Detroit, Mich. Brokers invited; pay good commissions.

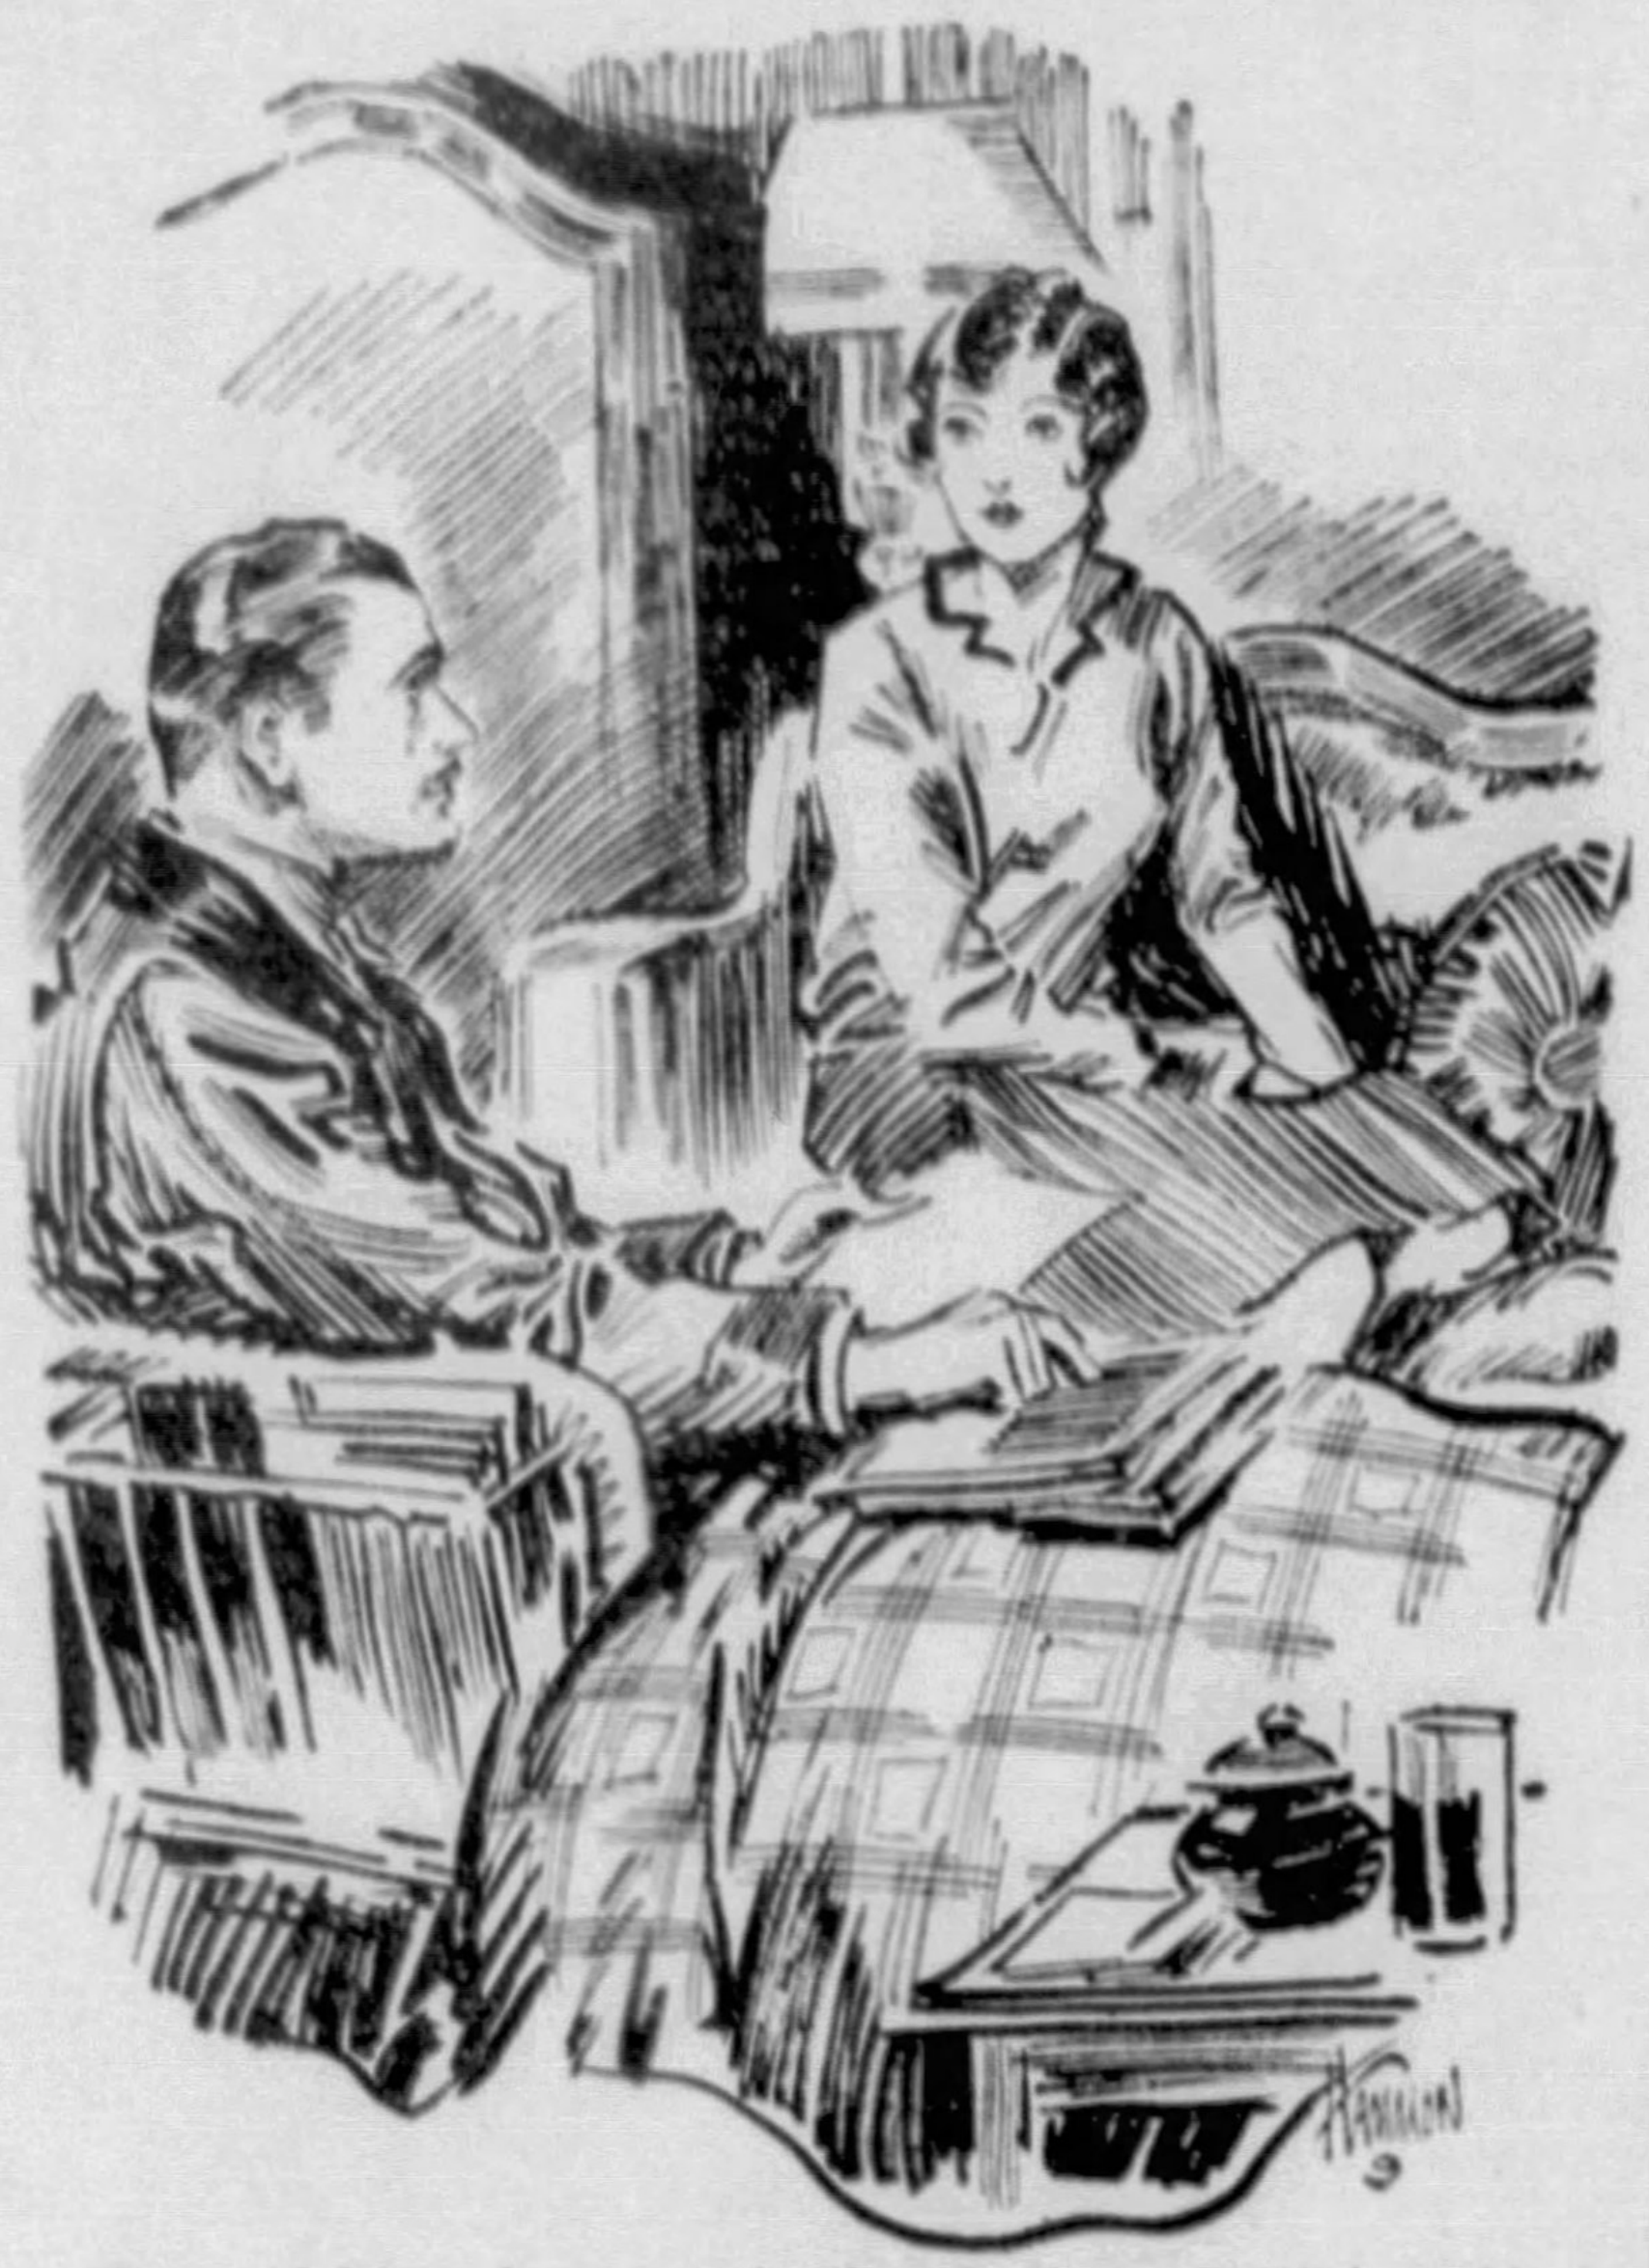
"Here we is, Miss Fenton!" he said, "I got you here jus' in time for lunch."

Within, the Nesbit house fulfilled its outward promise of warmth and comfort and beauty. A wood fire, crumbling to pink embers, glowed in the fireplace in the long, white-paneled hall. On the mantelshelf stood a jar of roses that made Mary Faith think of Haltnorth Park in June, and the carpet under her feet was springy and soft like gray-green moss.

Synopsis

Mary Faith is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young businessman. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation.

Now Go On



"You and I have known each other for four years," he said.

"Mr. Mark says for Miss Fenton to come right upstairs to his study, please, ma'am," said the colored houseman who had opened the door to her and taken her typewriter from Loftus.

He led the way up the stairs and Mary Faith followed him.

Mark Nesbit was waiting for Mary Faith in his study at the head of the stairs. He was stretched out in a long chair before the fireplace. A steamer rug was tucked around him and he had a magazine in his hands. But he was not reading it. His eyes were fixed on the doorway when Mary Faith stepped into it. He looked somehow as if he had been lying just that way, watching for her, for a long time.

"Well, here you are." He grinned at her in welcome. "You were such a long time on the way that I was beginning to think you'd gone into the ditch the way I did."

PLEASANT PLACE

He seemed to be very cheerful about his accident. And it struck Mary Faith that he looked younger than usual with his dark hair rumpled and his soft collar turned in at the neck above his house coat.

"Loftus had to drive very slowly," she said. "The roads are like glass and the wind tried to blow us into the ditch once or twice."

It was hard to believe, in the pleasant warmth of this quiet room, that a wild December gale was blowing outside and that there was ice on the roads and snow in the fence corners.

Azaleas in Dutch pots were in bloom on the window sills and there was a bowl of roses on the white-covered table that was drawn up beside Mark Nesbit's chair.

"We're going to have lunch up here on this table, Mary Faith," he said. And then, without taking his eyes from her face, he spoke to the houseman: "Will you please tell Mrs. Nesbit that Miss Fenton is here, Silas? You can bring lunch up as soon as it's ready."

He took the letters Mary Faith had brought to him and tucked them into a pocket of his long wicker chair.

"Those can wait until we've had something to eat. Move that chair closer to the fire, Mary Faith. I'm sorry I can't do it for you, but I can't move out of this chair. It took Loftus and Silas to get me into it."

MOTHER PRESENT

"Why don't you send in to town for a wheel chair? Then you wouldn't have to stay in this one room for the next week or two?" asked Mary Faith. "Not that it's an unpleasant place to be . . . It's a lovely, comfortable room. It's like a stage-setting."

From the depths of a Sleepy Hollow chair beside the grate she looked around at his study. It was a typical man's room—brown leather couch, flat-topped desk, book shelves, fishing rods and golf sticks in a corner, photographs of mountain scenery on the walls. But it had a cozy look, as if a woman's hand had passed over it, leaving the flowers on the window sill and the brown velvet cushions on the couch.

The door opened, and Mr. Nesbit's mother came in.

Mary Faith had seen her a dozen times before during the years she had worked at Nesbit's. She was a tall, pretty woman with white hair that she wore in a pompadour, bright brown eyes and naturally pink cheeks. Mary Faith had always liked her looks, her soft southern voice and the air of dash with which she wore her plain, well-made clothes.

MAKES SUGGESTION

"How do you do, Miss Fenton? I was listening for you." She shook hands with Mary Faith. "But I didn't hear you come in. I was in my little greenhouse at the very back of the house, taking care of my poor roses. The wind blew a pane of glass out during the night, and this morning I found five of my bushes frozen."

"Have you ever tried covering them with five or six thicknesses of newspaper on cold nights?" asked Mary Faith shyly. "My mother used to have some plants in our dining room when I was a little girl. And I remember that on winter nights she used to let me help her wrap them up in newspaper."

The door of the room opened once more, and Silas came in on his felt soles, carrying a large silver tray. The meal he set out upon the table was simple and very good. Cold sliced chicken and fresh Parker House rolls with butter melting in them, orange salad and coffee in a fat silver pot.

"Newspaper! That's an idea." Mrs. Nesbit murmured as she poured out the coffee. "I wonder if brown wrapping paper wouldn't be better. It's thicker—and it seems to me we have a big roll of it downstairs."

Mary Faith nodded her head. "I suppose it would be better. My mother used newspaper probably because we always had such stacks of it in the house. . . . My father was a newspaperman and he never came home from the office without bringing a lot of papers with him . . . I was brought up on the Kansas City Star and the Los Angeles Herald and the Atlanta Constitution. Sometimes he even brought home the London Times."

Over the table she found herself talking to Mark Nesbit's mother as she never had been able to talk to Kim's mother. Telling her all sorts of things that she had half-forgotten. Things about her brilliant, improvident father who had died when she was 16, leaving her mother and herself $2,000 and a library of 600 books.

She sat down, her hands clasped at the edge of the table in front of her, and waited for Mark Nesbit to begin dictating to her. He had taken his letters out of the pocket of his chair and he was reading them as he filled his pipe.

Suddenly he glanced up from them and his eyes fixed themselves on Mary Faith's eyes with that intent look of his.

"You and I have known each other for four years," he said as if the thought had just struck him. "But until today I didn't know that your father had been a newspaperman. I didn't know anything really about you and your life outside my office. It's a funny thing when you stop to think about it, isn't it?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Tomorrow the members of the Plaza Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club are in for a real treat when they attend the regular meeting. The stage show which played the Schenley Theater for the Komic Club meeting last week, and which made such a hit with the youngsters, will be at the Plaza tomorrow with the same group of youngsters, pupils of Miss Gertrude Bales School of Dancing.

Due to the unusual length of the stage show the doors of the Plaza Theater will open at 12 noon and the stage show will start promptly at 12:15. So remember boys and girls, if you don't want to miss any of this gala show, be at the theater at 12 o'clock.

"Christmas Eve In a Toy Shop" is the name of the Christmas show which will be presented a week from tomorrow at the Arsenal Theater by the members of the Arsenal Junior Komic Club Stock Company. Rehearsals started last week and they will continue right up until time for the show to be presented.

TOY SHOP CAST

Santa Claus, who will of course be portrayed by himself, Josephine Lang, Mimmie Fundi and Eleanor Johnson, will take the part of the "dolls;" Tom Hart, Ernie Jenkins, Gresham McGuire and Ray Davis, will be the tin soldiers. Russell Niggl, who is assistant manager, will play the part of "Jack In the Box."

The ogre, hideous giant monster of fairy tale and folklore, will be played by Walter Lunk. John Hilliard will be the drummer boy and Stanley Kane will be "Little Boy Blue." Josephine Barran will be the walking and talking "Ma-Ma" doll and the dwarfs are Ray Lesner, Joseph Otnigal and Ralph Mander.

The action of the play takes place in Santa's workshop and there are several interesting scenes. However more about this later.

Wise Words

We Can't Enforce It

Man from California says that beer drinking will be a failure. He says we can't enforce it.

Well, man, we ain't going to use force. We're going to do just the opposite. We've learned our lesson from the last few years.

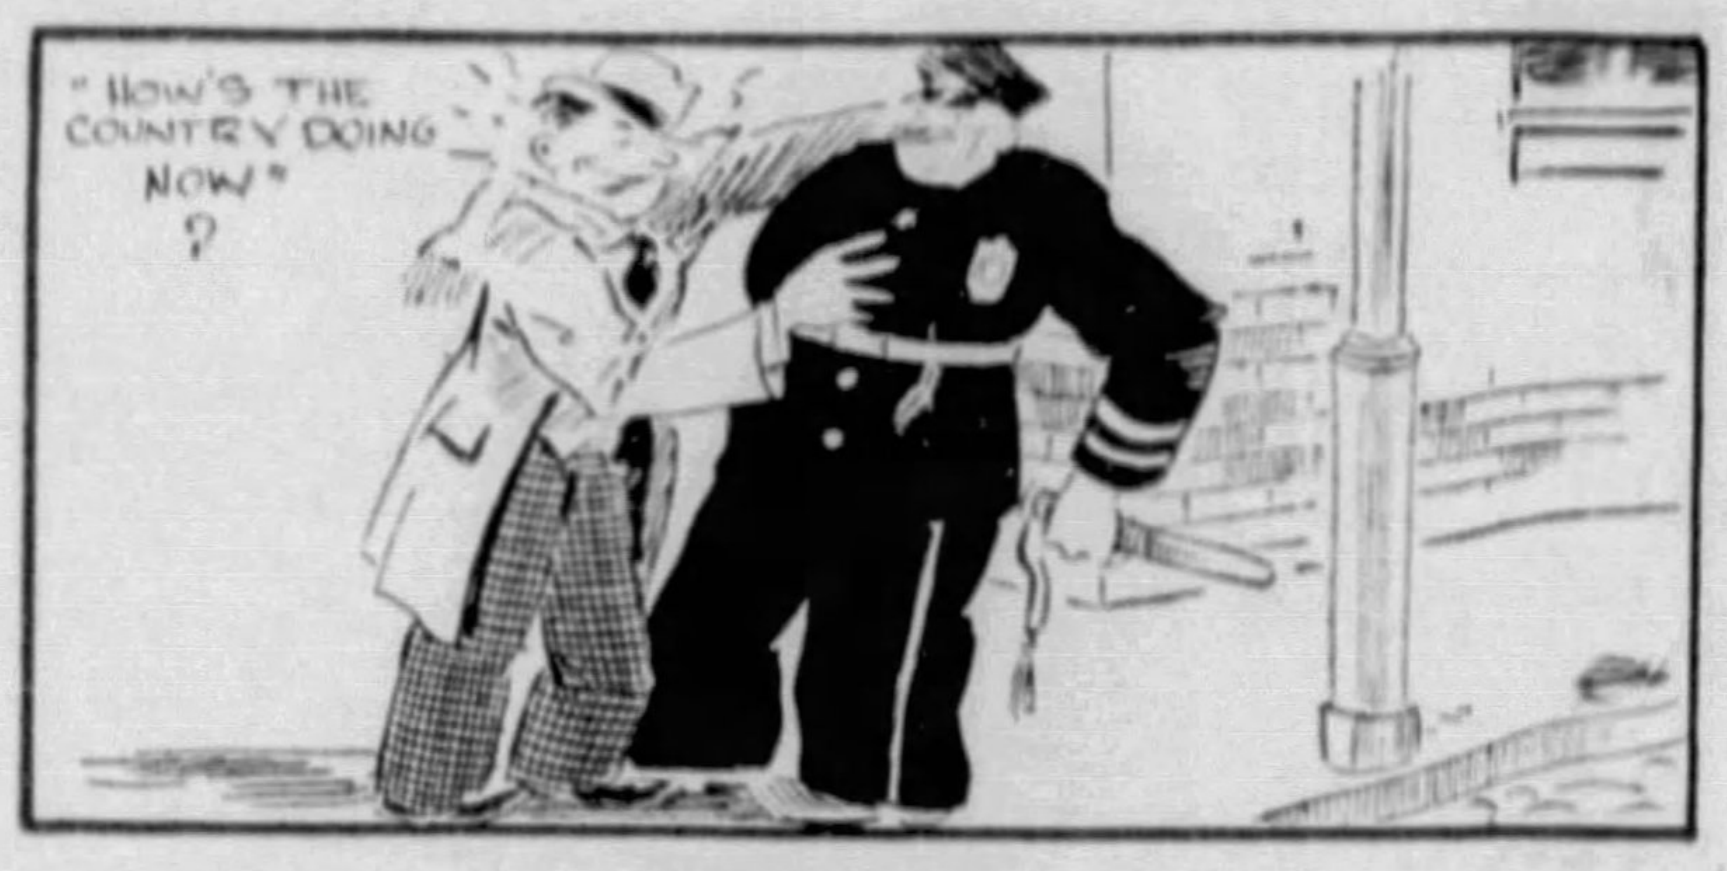
Benevolence and kindly guidance will be the thing. We're also going to encourage it with subsidies and loving cups.

We're going to stake earnest students to bonuses and diplomas. We shall also have athletic instructors to show the correct posture against the bar.

There will also be the patriotic urge to pile up beer taxes for the government. A citizen will take his beer stein in his mitt, look in the mirror and toast the budget.

About his fifth glass he will throw his arms around a policeman's neck and gargle, "How's the country doing now?"

The officer of the law will be thoroughly cognizant of the nation's finances. Looking into his note book he will say, "Go back and knock off two more and it will balance the works for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1932."



"HOW'S THE COUNTRY DOING NOW" ?

But we will not use brute strength or any other demonstrative tactics. For instance, if you don't drink we ain't going to raid you.

That will certainly be a relief from the old gadgets. Every citizen will be his own boss. We will merely insinuate by subtle propaganda that the government will benefit by the beer regardless of the foam on top. There is no tax on that.

The foam is free and equal. It is higher than the tariff which is below. We aim to run things on the level. That's more than the prohibitionists did. We are going to be honest with the men, and women and also the children. We ain't going to teach the innocent kids that the five Great Lakes are Pilsener, Budweiser, Schlitz, Anheuser and Pabst.

It will be a great temptation to do that. But we shall refrain.

The Taxpayers' Victory

Council's action in reducing the city tax rate on land from 23 to 20.6 mills, and on buildings from 11.5 to 10.3 mills, is a smashing victory for the taxpayers.

If the budget as submitted by Mayor Charles H. Kline had been accepted, and provision made in the tax levy for wiping out this year's deficit, the rate for next year would have been 30 mills on land and 15 on buildings.

Thanks are due Council for its courage and decency in throwing out the Mayor's proposals and saving the people from the crushing new load that he would have laid on their already overburdened backs.

Real courage was required, because the tax cut will necessitate a general reduction in wages and salaries of city employes, and the payroll had threatened political reprisals if that should be done. The threats were made openly at a firemen's meeting.

The political strength of the payroll is not to be underestimated; but it is probable that the Councilmen have gained more votes by their action than they have lost.

The decency of their move lay in the fact that they took cognizance of the citizens' difficulty in paying even the current tax rate. At the outset of the budget hearings the opinion was widespread that the Council would trim the Mayor's estimates and maintain the tax rate at this year's level; but there was not great hope that the rate would be reduced. The majority of the members had appeared to be too strongly under the Mayor's control for that.

The representations of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, the Building Owners and Managers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce, and particularly of the citizens' committee headed by W. P. Witherow, which had been appointed to find new sources of tax revenue, had their effect, however, and in the showdown yesterday the Mayor's outrageous proposals received no support.

The Sun-Telegraph laid down a barrage of forceful statements by prominent Pittsburghers demanding tax reduction, and the other newspapers helped by pointing out where the pruning knife could be applied to the budget. The attack was irresistible.

Voting Machine Repairs

The County Commissioners Have Made a Fair Arrangement for Meeting the Expense.

Not the least important of the reasons which actuated the people of Allegheny County in demanding voting machines was that they expected through the use of the devices to prevent fraud.

Since it has been found that the Poole machines, as delivered by the manufacturer, permit a voter to vote more than once for a candidate and in five other respects fail to comply with the specifications of the contract, it is, of course, necessary that the defects be remedied before the machines are placed in use.

The County Commissioners, with good reason, have lost faith in the ability of the Poole Company to make the changes in a satisfactory manner, and have accordingly arranged to have the work done by another company at the Poole Company's expense. Some other changes are also to be made, but at the county's expense, since they were not called for by the contract.

Congress Dodges Duty

The "Lame Duck" Session Shows Reluctance to Serve The National Interest.

A question which for a long time has been forming in the public mind grows sharper and more arresting. It is this—is the Congress of the United States really conscious that it owes any duty whatever to the GENERAL WELFARE of the WHOLE PEOPLE? Is Congress capable of serving the national interest?

In addition to the defeat of prohibition repeal notwithstanding the pledges of both parties, a growing opposition is noted in Congress to the SALES TAX, which means a more equitable distribution of the tax burden as well as a new and productive source of public income, and to the passage of a BEER TAX BILL, which promises a much needed prop to our rapidly falling national revenue.

While the present Congress is a "lame duck" Congress, nevertheless much useful and sound legislation in the past has come from the short session of an expiring Congress whose members find themselves, as their political careers come to a close, no longer shackled by the fear of defeat or by the temptation to stoop and compromise which besets a candidate for reelection.

It would seem that there might be, under these conditions, at least a belated manifestation of patriotic and disinterested approach to THE SIMPLE DUTY which every legislator owes TO HIS COUNTRY.

Can it be that we are mistaken?

Must the nation in this hour of desperate difficulty accept as an unchangeable fact that Congress, instead of being a truly representative assembly, is nothing more or less than an arena for competing private enterprise and conflicting local interests?

Is the service of the whole people beneath the notice and outside the ken of a Congressman who can hear nothing but "HIS MASTER'S VOICE"?

The situation is a very serious one for the American people. Their tool-kit has gone back on them. The very implements of salvation, on which they have been taught to rely, have become broken and defective.

What matters it that the people see clearly what should be done and that they resolve with united voice that it shall be done, if their elected representatives feel no concern as to what the common interest demands and are without purpose or desire to do what their public duty and their oath of office enjoin upon them?

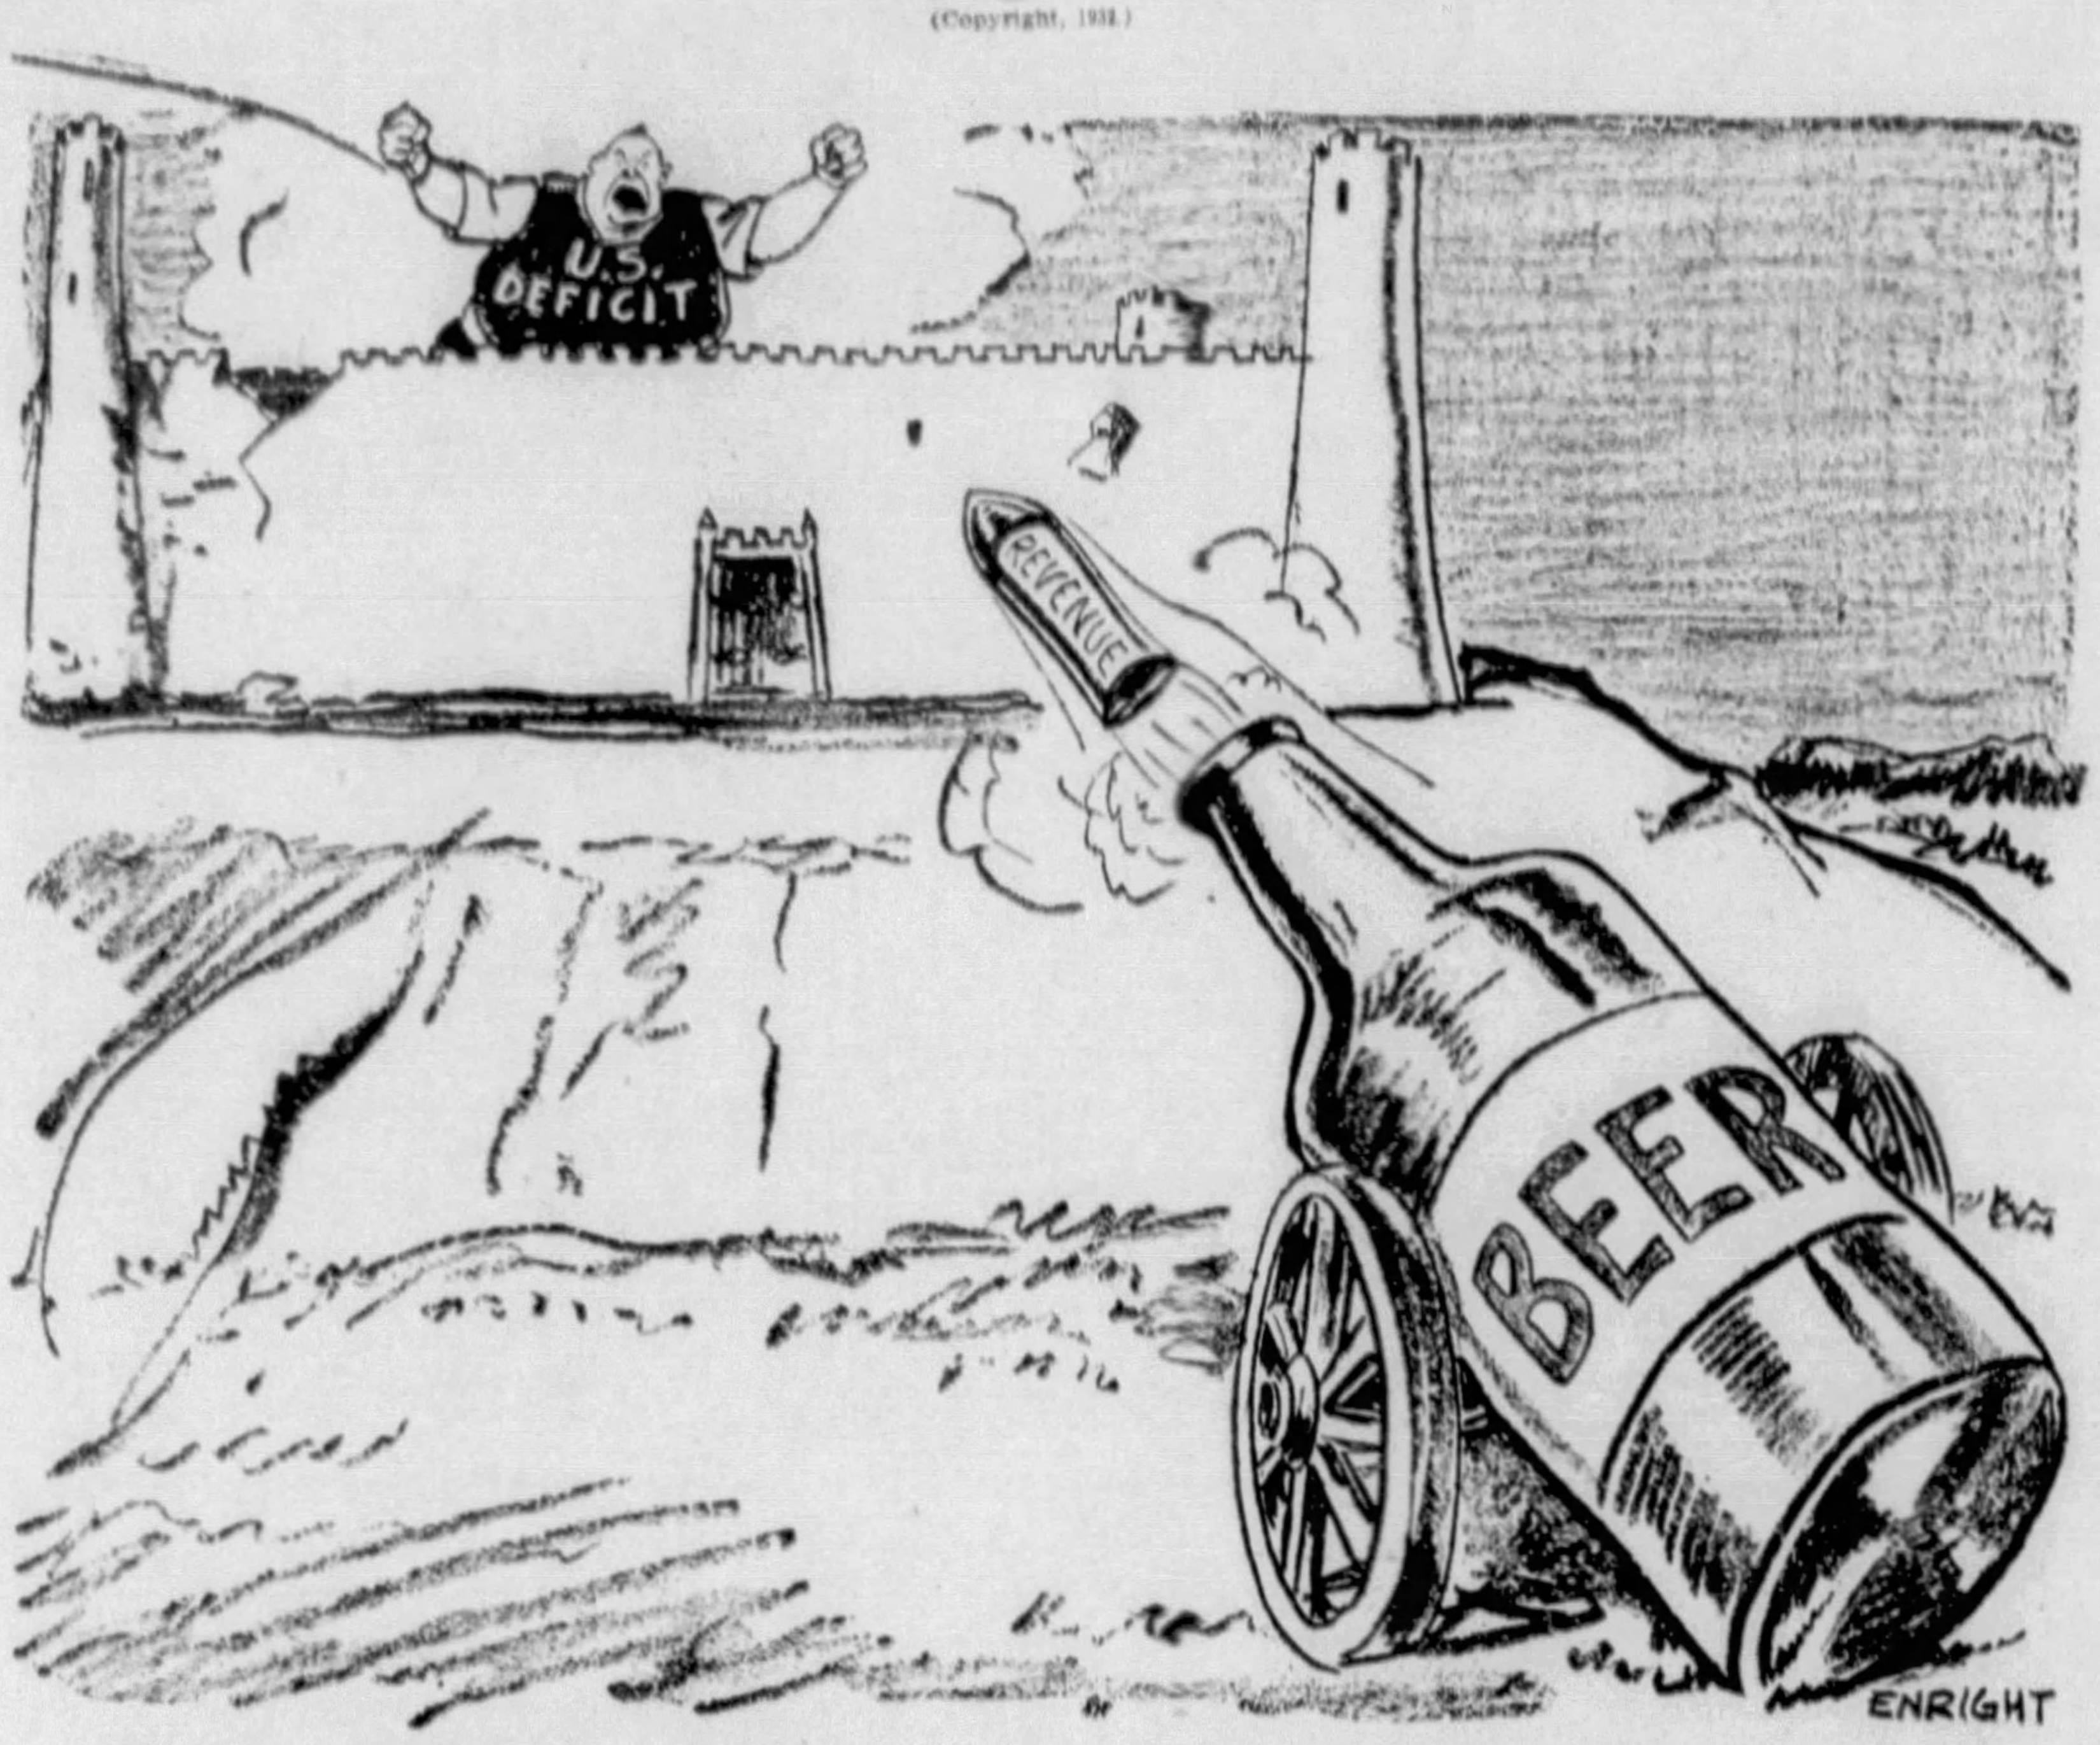
The Big Beertha

(Copyright, 1932.)



Behind his walls and turrets high
The Deficit is waxing.
He grows exceeding strong and spry
In spite of nuisance taxing.
The nuisance taxes merely sting
But give no satisfaction,
And now the time has come to swing
Big Beertha into action.

Big Beertha has a healthy kick,
A jarring detonation.
The Deficit is feeling sick
In fearful contemplation.
But all the folks for miles around
With hope and joy are hopping,
For it will be a pleasant sound
To hear Big Beertha popping.

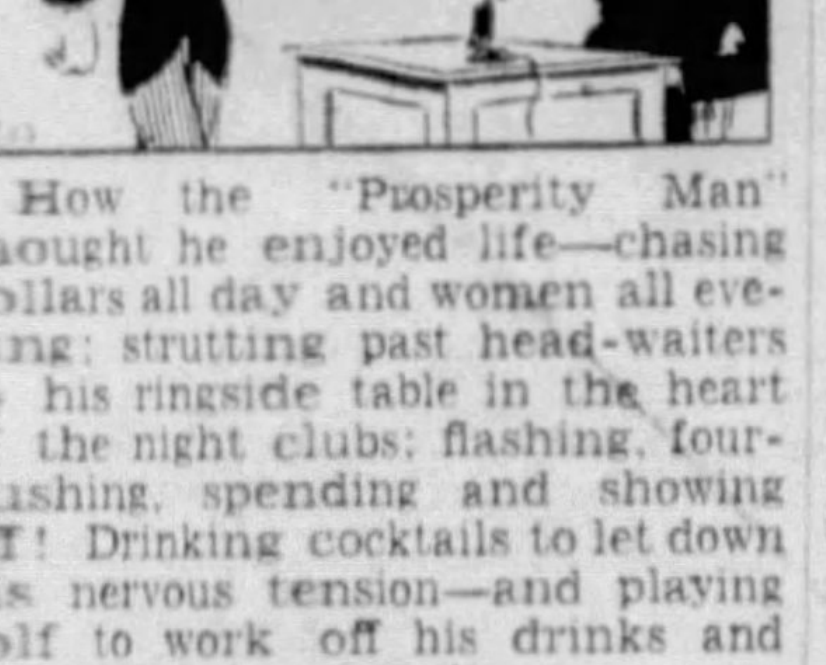
Man—1933 Model

I like the Post-Depression Man. Don't you? * * *

What an improvement he is over that smart, snappy, go-getting super-salesman of the so-called "Prosperity Decade." YOU know the man I mean; the Bright Young Hero of all the short stories in the magazines, who always succeeded in out-smarting the other fellow and ended by marrying the Boss's daughter.

* * *

The Big Prosperity Boy, who thought only in terms of dollars and cents and ticker tape; who always drove a "long green car" or a red sport model, rounded corners on two wheels and scraped past lights. The cocky fellow with the high-pressure sales-talk, who kept 'em signing on the dotted line.



I KNOW YOU'LL BUY THIS--

How the "Prosperity Man" thought he enjoyed life—chasing dollars all day and women all evening; strutting past head-waiters to his ringside table in the heart of the night clubs; flashing, four-flushing, spending and showing off! Drinking cocktails to let down his nervous tension—and playing golf to work off his drinks and keep down his waistline.

* * *

But now, we have the Post-Depression Man—the man who has faced the crisis and has come through it, unjaundiced and undefeated. The man who has WAKED UP from that Dream of Alnascher and is facing life with his eyes wide open and his brain-cells working on all cylinders.

YOU'VE BEEN SOME LITTLE PARTNER

His coat may be a little less "snappy," but he wears it with a brand new grace—the grace of MODESTY. Gone are the cockiness, the bluster and the superior ego. Gone is the bravado of aggression—but in its place has come a new courage and a new purpose. He has discovered, in the last three years, that life is not a gamble but an endurance test. And that the secret of success and happiness is not GETTING THINGS, but DOING things and accomplishing things.

* * *

He does not whine about his troubles; he smiles grimly and WORKS. And the women who work by his side are not just "frails" or "skirts" or "Janes" or "wimmen" to him—they are side-partners, for whom he has a new respect and a deeper regard. And sometimes a little real romance.

* * *

I like the Post-Depression Man. He is a man who THINKS—a man who reads—a man who can talk about something besides stocks and bonds and highballs. An All-American man!

* * *

You'll meet him everywhere these days—in shops and banks and drawing rooms, and in the new plays and books and magazine stories. And you'll find him quite refreshing by comparison with his hard-boiled, wisecracking, woman-taming predecessor. The Post-Depression Man is altogether the best specimen of MAN we've seen in many a weary year!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Thoughts while strolling: Calvin Coolidge strikes me as the only public figure free of personal vanity. Richy Craig, Jr., looks so fragile in a close-up. Hale Byers and Walter O'Keefe could pass for twins. One-word description of Will H. Hays—spry. How Jack Kennedy has shrunk!

That sweet after-taste of a sudden shower. What's this press agent hooey about Chevalier facing death every time he sings? Well, maybe he does at that. Louis Calhern is needing a haircut again. The Brummelish Frederic McKay. Don Marquis, a Walnut, Ill., boy, who made good in the city.

I'm always awed by those Englishmen named Basil. Except, of course, Basil Woon. Ina Claire has a glacial haughtiness, too, but it doesn't seem a pose. Not so many raccoon coats this year. Donald Brian could pass for 40. One of my favorite people—Leon Errol.

Those testaments of defeat in the Mills hotel windows. And the seesaw of youthful spirits around the taxi dance halls. About time for another play by Marc Connelly. Louise Groody's perky walk. Why do people describe their sciatica symptoms?

* * *

Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg begin to look alike. Margaret Sullavan talks like Ethel Barrymore. Marion Hopkins and Ruth Etting bear slight resemblance. Those East Side mansions rubbing elbows with speaks. Wasn't it Edna Millay's line: "Where licks the purple blossom, crops the spiky weed?"

Most outlanders are invariably impressed with wifely tolerance in New York's buz-fuz. In fear of being labeled narrow-minded or catty, they permit dubious damozels to teas and dinners. Out our way, matrons hadn't this graciousness. They did not even allow them in the back way. Here they sweep in imperiously, scattering wisecracks and an abundance of scent. And that's how many a husband is lost.

* * *

* * *

When a speakeasy receives a consignment of brew highly needled or otherwise inclined to ripen patrons to break down over a mother song, the barkeep apologizes: "Bad barrel today, boys. We gotta take what they hand us."

* * *

There's a fascinating interlude for saunterers in that glittery Japanese fish, bird and dog store on a Sixth avenue corner. Especially, days when a supply of frolicking puppies have been consigned to windows. There is a weird contagion, too, watching huge tanks of goldfish in a dizzying vertigo of automatic gasping. I walk off short of breath.

* * *

Next to a bird, fish and dog store, I can while away a half-hour in nice clean fun the most agreeably perusing "opportunities" in the Billboard. Few travel books contain more sheer romance. One learns that at Versailles, Ky., Antioch's two comedy pigs are at liberty. Prof. Heggleston, noted mitt reader, will consider al-fresco salesmanship of freaks during the winter. A 15-foot stiltwalker, doubling in clarinet, is available for street-walk ads and the sale of a flea circus, complete with banners, for $50.

* * *

I had a close-up of the widely discussed lapel orchid sported by the equally discussed Daddy Browning at a first night recently. It was in full flower and the white-haired headline-maker, in swayback strut, was the cynosure of all lobby hounds. I am told, it requires four years to grow an orchid, and what a fate to be sniggered at instead of dignifying Milady's shoulder! But the orchid does not annoy me like Browning's tri-colored, block-long upper Broadway sign, which continually skips letters and blends a cockeyed coloring. It's driving me cuh-razy.

* * *

There's Chaucerian flavor to the takeoff of those coast-bound busses at a spot near that cul-de-sac known as Shubert alley. Almost immediately the passengers attain a stagecoach familiarity. This noon, for instance, they were chorusing "Merrily, We Roll Along" before reaching the second block.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I have always remembered something a woman once said to me.

We had come back from her husband's funeral. Silence, heavy as a grave mound, lay over the empty rooms. For a long while we sat there idle, staring out through the darkening windows on which the winter mist gathered and broke in a slow trickle, like painful tears.

If she, too, could have found tears! But her face was dry and drawn. Something harsher than natural grief lay behind the strained silence which she had maintained since they brought him home dead. I wondered. Why was she taking it so hard? It had never seemed a happy marriage. There had been no open rupture but one felt the invisible barriers between them. She was a fine woman. What wrong had he done her, to make her retreat like that? What remembered pain dried her tears now?

Suddenly, without any preface, she began to speak.

"If I'd only known, before it was too late."

A pause so long that a darkness mounted like a tide across her ashy lips and burning eyes. Then, in a curious voice, as if she were talking to someone I could not see trying to explain something in which I had no part—she went on.

"I mean, if I could only have known it was really love. But I had such different ideas about love. All girls do. We're taught that way—taught to believe that true love is a sort of fairy tale.

"It's all so silly—I see it now—these theories about husbands and wives and marriages! Maybe there was some reason for them once, when boys and girls didn't grow up together and didn't know each other so well. But now there's no reason for expecting what we do.

"Crazy, romantic ideas! Expecting your husband to be perfectly brave and strong and clever under any circumstances. Expecting he's going to take over the whole job of making you happy and contented. Then, if he doesn't—why, you decided he's the wrong man and it isn't real love.

"That's how it was with us. If I'd been willing to take him as he was we could have been happy. He wasn't bad. He didn't neglect or abuse me. But he was just different from what I thought a husband should be. He was gentle and easy going. He didn't like fights; didn't try to push ahead; didn't seem to care much what people thought of him.

"And I suppose my vanity was hurt. I got to thinking he wasn't good enough for me; that he was cowardly and stupid. And marriage was so different from what I thought it was going to be. I was just as restless as ever, and irritable. I felt he was to blame that I wouldn't feel like that if he'd been the right man. So I decided it was all a terrible mistake—not real love.

"Oh, I can see it now. He wasn't to blame. It was my fault, trying to fit him and marriage into a romantic picture. If I'd only realized that everything was really all right, that marriage is like that."

She stopped. Now the darkness hid her entirely. When she spoke again I knew she had left me. She had gone out into the night and her whisper, so faint that I could hardly catch it, was searching desperately through endless space.

"If I'd only known, before it was too late, that I really loved you, dear."

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Doesn't jealousy and envy rob you of much of the enjoyment you might get out of life?

You have ill-feeling for those who have a better job or position.

In fact there are scores of things other people have which cause you to envy them.

How very foolish this is.

There is no room in your heart for joy when its place is taken by envy.

It is particularly foolish to envy those who were created with a better physique and finer features than you have.

That sort of envy is little short of blasphemy.

It creates disturbing thoughts that make your physical deficiencies all the more noticeable and disfiguring.

When such thoughts possess you, you fail to exhibit those qualities which make so many persons with unattractive faces so pleasing and charming.

Text for Today

And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.—John, vi:35.

The English Note; Dignified U. S. Reply

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

To the average American the British note, announcing the payment on the debt due on the 15th, seems all but incredible. England has asked a reconsideration of her debt because of abnormal conditions affecting her, and this appeal had received a sympathetic hearing among those opposed to the cancellation or transfer of the debts.

It has been made quite clear by us that Congress alone has the power to transfer all, or any part of the debt to the American taxpayer; that the refusal by England to make her payment on the 15th, according to the contract, would greatly prejudice the move for a reconsideration of her settlement; that the payment would facilitate it.

Under these circumstances it must be amazing to the average American to read in the English note that the payment offered "is not to be regarded as a resumption of the annual payments contemplated in the existing agreement," and that England proposes that the payment shall be considered as "a capital payment of which account should be taken in the final settlement."

The acceptance of the payment with this proviso would be an acceptance of the English proviso, and would mean a surrender to the debtor nations of the determination of our own future policy.

Under these circumstances, Secretary Stimson has acted with celerity, dignity and decision; for within a few hours England knew that we could not accept London's interpretation of the meaning of the payment. He merely served a notice that should have been unnecessary—that until an agreement is revised, it exists.

* * *

In Heaven's Name, Why?

Knowing, as England unquestionably must know, the state of feeling in this country; knowing that Congress alone can transfer any portion of the debt to American taxpayers, the wonder grows that there should have been any astonishment in London over the Stimson note. It seems impossible that the London papers should have captioned the American note with such words as "bombshell" and "sensation."

In heaven's name, why? Where is England getting her impression of American sentiment? Is it brushing Congress aside as flippantly and ignorantly as some of our own people in High Hats? Is it assuming that our government can utterly ignore public sentiment, based upon ancient and honorable rules of international conduct?

Who is England consulting in America on American policies? The note from Stimson exonerates him here. It is to be assumed that Mr. Mellon in London did not advise contrary to the policy of his chief.

And yet we have it from London that the Stimson note "will take Britain entirely unawares." It seems impossible! The very idea is as confusing to common sense as the experiences of Alice in Wonderland.

However, Mr. Stimson had indicated a way out for the English.

* * *

Unfortunate For England

Will she take it? There are indications that she may not, and the reason is that no longer can there be any doubt that there has been an understanding between England and France, our chief debtors, to act in unison to force the transfer of the debts. This is unfortunate for England; it is not fortunate for the Anglo-American relations so much desired.

There has not been until recently any feeling against France because of the debt controversy. The reason there is no such sympathy for the French demands for further transfers of the debt burden to the American people as there is for the English is that France can pay; that France is prosperous; that compared with the United States at this time, France is opulent. And there is another reason—France has already received most generous terms at the expense of our own people. And another reason—France up to this minute has not taxed her people a penny to get the money to make payments on the debts. And there is still another reason—France is spending much too much in preparations for another war.

When England takes the position that she can accept no concessions on her debt without more concessions to France she does herself no service.

* * *

And So It Turns Out

Meanwhile the French politicians are exhausting their vocabularies of vituperation in denouncing the United States.

Some years ago, riding in a train with a prominent political leader who had been saturated by life with cynicism, I heard him told that some person in a certain city was bitterly attacking him. The old cynic seemed surprised. And then, slowly, came his comment:

"That's strange. I cannot think of anyone there for whom I ever did a favor."

We are afraid that was wisdom.

We have it from McAdoo that when the loans were under discussion, years ago, it was agreed that the very great favor rendered by the loans would be hard for the beneficiaries to forgive. And so it turns out.

There is no question of the unfriendly feeling of France for the United States. This is not so remarkable to anyone familiar with history. We have been fed an appalling amount of "bunk" in this country about the French partiality for us. It is impossible to cite an instance.

* * *

The Debt Was Paid

We had such serious trouble with France in the days of Jefferson, because of her intervention in the interest of another nation, and Jefferson consulted his Cabinet on the wisdom of an English alliance. The Battle of Trafalgar, which diverted France's attention from us, ended that prospect. But for the triumph at Trafalgar there might have been an alliance that would have changed the course of history.

In the days of Jackson we were on the verge of war, because of a French debt. The language used against us now was then heard in the French Parliament, diplomatic relations were broken, war was in the offing, when England offered mediation. It was accepted by Jackson, bristling, with the characteristic provision that the settlement would have to mean the payment of the debt, and the debt was paid.

We were not close to war because we wished a war but because French public men threatened us with war; and, of course, there will be no war now.

Then came the French defiance of the Monroe Doctrine, when Napoleon the Little marched his troops into Mexico to hold Maximilian on his tottering throne. He took advantage of our domestic war here; but when that war was drawing to a close and we were preparing to turn our armies toward Mexico, Napoleon withdrew—and that was just too bad for Maximilian.

So the "traditional affection of France for the United States" is just another of those convenient myths of "history."

Since that little brush over Mexico we have done some favors for France. Money and men and a lot of American graves in France testify to that; but the affection does not appear in the attacks upon us now. They began almost as soon as the armistice was signed.

* * *

We Prefer France's Friendship

If England had to write that amazing note because of a secret agreement with France, as is implied, it is unfortunate. The effect will be to weaken American sympathy for England's plight, and to make more difficult, through Congressional action, a downward revision of the English debt.

We prefer France's friendship to her enmity, but it is too much to ask that we buy friendship by sacrificing the interest of the American people.
